Nationwide Flu Shots Planned

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford announced Wednesday a $135 million plan to vaccinate every American against a deadly flu virus by next November.

"We cannot afford to take a chance with the health of this country," Ford said. He emphasized that at this point no one could determine the exact extent of the potential threat posed by a strain of flu known as swine influenza that could become epidemic here next fall.

However, the President said there was "no cause for alarm" because physicians and the drug industry are prepared to produce enough vaccine to protect every man, woman and child in the country against the disease.

If Congress provides the money he seeks to produce the vaccine, Ford said, flu shots will be available in schools, hospitals, doctors' offices and public health facilities.

"The reaction, I am told, may mean a few sore arms for a day or two," the President related.

But he called that "a small price to pay" for protection against a flu strain that killed an estimated 548,000 Americans in 1918-19.

After Ford met with more than two dozen scientists and health and political leaders, the White House said Ford also directed the Department of Health, Education and Welfare to develop plans to make the vaccine available to everyone during September, October and November. Ford urged citizens to get a vaccination against the potentially lethal virus this fall.

"Extraordinary measures are necessary because of the short time period available to assure adequate vaccine production and to mobilize the nation's health care delivery system," the White House announcement said.

Although there was only one outbreak of swine flu last month (at Ft. Dix, N.J.) the statement said, "present evidence and past experience indicate a strong possibility that this country could experience widespread swine influenza in 1967-77."

Since every American under the age of 50 is almost universally susceptible to the virus, there is the possibility of a "severe epidemic, or pandemic," the White House said.

On the basis of concerns expressed by scientists and public health officials, "the President believes that it is important to take effective countermeasures to avoid an outbreak similar to the one in 1918." That epidemic of a type of swine flu virus led to deaths of an estimated 20 million persons around the world including 548,000 Americans.

Even those people over age 50 who have swine-like virus antibodies in their blood from previous exposure to the influenza cannot be sure that they are protected against the disease, the statement said

Basically, the federal government would pay for the development and manufacture of the vaccine by manufacturers. States would coordinate immunization programs, with most patients paying for the vaccination and the doctor's fee It would cost the government an estimated $130 million to $140 million to get enough vaccine for everyone

Drug manufacturers have said they need an answer before April 1, and that even then it will be a race against time They currently produce about 20 million doses of vaccine annually for protection against the common B and A flu strains, but those vaccines are virtually worthless against the swine flu virus

The federal effort would require at least 48 million fertilized chicken eggs to grow the virus and many thousands of new vaccine guns to administer the flu shots

There is no proof that a global outbreak of swine flu virus will occur next season but it is safer to gamble with dollars rather than human lives the President's health advisers said

Political Reform Bill, Gas Tax Hike Advance

Legislature stories on Pages 13, 19

The Unicameral Wednesday tentatively approved a gasoline tax increase of one cent per gallon, and a sharply revised political reform act.

The two proposals headed a list of bills which struggled past their initial tests on the deadline day for first round floor action.

For the third straight day, senators met into the night to move a logjam of bills, finally quitting at 8:36 p.m. after a seven-hour afternoon sitting.

The gas tax hike, contained in LB863, sponsored by Sen. Richard Maresh of Milligan, was sent on its way on a 26-20 vote.

9½c Per Gallon

If ultimately enacted into law, the proposal would hike the state excise tax on gasoline from 8½ to 9½c cents per gallon, producing an additional $9.5 million in annual highway construction funds.

The tax boost would take effect on August 1.

Funds would be distributed on the current formula of 53 1/3% to the state, 23 1/3% to the cities and 23 1/3% to the counties.

Sen. Ernest Chambers of Omaha suggested that the state consider its authority to issue highway bonds if more money is needed.

Rider Rejected

Chambers attempted to add a rider to the bill to increase the food sales tax credit from $16 to $18 per person, but the proposal was rejected on an 18-27 vote.

The revised political reform bill, LB987, introduced as an alternative to the proposed Sunshine Initiative, was battered by two dozen proposed amendments before it finally broke free on a 29-8 vote.

Marge Schlitt of Lincoln, who watched the proceedings as a representative of the Coalition for Open Government, sponsor of the proposed initiative, said she was "very pleased" with the Legislature's deliberations.

"They resisted most of the efforts to badly weaken the bill," she told newsmen after the vote. "I have to give them a lot of credit."

If the bill is ultimately approved, she said, the coalition would review the proposal in detail before deciding whether it is acceptable enough to drop the petition drive.

Sen.s Roland Luedtke of Lincoln and Frank Lewis of Bellevue, who drafted LB987, hope it will persuade the coalition to abandon its effort.

Legislative failure to act would mean that "somebody else is going to do it to us in the spirit of post-Watergate retaliation and reaction." Luedtke warned senators during the debate.

The bill reforms campaign finance, lobbying, conflict of interest and financial disclosure laws, and would create a new eight-member enforcement commission.

"It's a reasonable bill," Lewis insisted.

Many, if not most, of Wednesday's refinements were proposed to senators by the Republican Party.

Common Cause

Among changes proposed by the Legislature's Miscellaneous Subjects Committee were amendments requested by Common Cause, the coalition's leading force.

Several senators were concerned that all the changes may have either weakened the bill, or made it politically impossible to enact.

"A piece of cheese full of holes," Chambers said.

Among major changes approved by the Legislature.

— redefinition of lobbyists to include public officials and those who represent another in promoting or opposing legislation.

— establishment of an eight-member commission which includes only two elected officials, namely the governor and the secretary of state.

— a requirement that lobbying fees be reported.

— removal of exemptions for candidates for office in school districts and cities under 5,000, and in counties under 9,000 population.

Efforts Turned Back

Three efforts to kill or delay the bill were rejected, but a proposal to fund the commission's activities with $49,999 was also turned down.

Voting against advancement were Sens George "Bill" Burrows of Adams, John DeCamp of Neligh, Walter George of Blair, Thomas Kennedy of Newman Grove, Richard Lewis of Holbrook, William Nichol of Scottsbluff, Harold Simpson of Lincoln and George Syas of Omaha.

Here is the vote to advance LB863, proposing a gasoline tax increase of one cent per gallon:

For: Bereuter, Burrows, Carsten, Cavanaugh, Clark, Cope, DeCamp, Dworak, George, Hasebroock, Johnson, Kelly, Kennedy, Kime, Koch, Kremer, R Lewis, Luedtke, Mahoney, Maresh, Marsh, Moylan, Nichol, Schmit, Simpson, Skarda

PLEASANT DALE FIRE TRUCK . . . douses smoldering grass north of Denton.

Open Burning Ban Result Of Grass Fires

A ban on open burning throughout the state, issued by State Fire Marshal Martin Dineen early Wednesday afternoon, may help ease county firefighters' recent work load.

City and rural fire fighters have responded to at least 14 grass fires within the past four days, according to City Fire Department records.

Grass fires along the sides of railroad tracks have been a particular problem recently, said Lincoln's Chief Fire Inspector Dale Boettcher.

Rural firemen battled track-side blazes along S.W. 50th and W. A Sts. both Tuesday and Wednesday afternoons. The Wednesday fire burned well into the night and covered an area along and about a half mile either side of a line from Lincoln to eight miles southwest of Lincoln.

Firemen from the Southwest Rural Fire District were on the scene just after 3 p m Units from Southeast Rural Fire District and Crete and Hickman joined the battle, and by 7 p.m. six rigs, several of them four-wheel-drive vehicles, were in use.

At one point during the fire, flames burned into the backyards of homes in the Highridge Acres area northwest of Pioneer Park. One fire unit stayed in that area to protect the houses, fire officials said.

Shortly after 7 p.m. fire flared up again in a partially burned out area near S W 56th and W Van Dorn. Another Southwest unit was called from the Denton station to fight that blaze

Firemen decided to let several stands of dead timber and a gulley full of brush burn themselves out while they concentrated on the dry grassland, officials said

Railroad grass fires are often started by chunks of carbon coming out of diesel stacks after the railroad engine begins moving The carbon landing on the nearby grass, is fanned into flames by the passing train, Boettcher explained

Fire Department dispatchers notified railroad officials of the blazes and several railroad crews were dispatched to the area to help firefighters

The open burning ban in Nebraska will be in effect until further notice Fire Marshall Dineen said.

The ban covers any burning of trash or leaves but would not include backyard grills Boettcher said

Planners OK Capital Improvements

By LYNN ZERSCHLING
Star Staff Writer

With only a few minor revisions, the City-County Planning Commission recommended approval of city department heads' proposed one- and six-year capital improvement programs Wednesday.

The planners approved a one-year plan totaling $55 million and a six-year plan calling for $484 million in capital construction projects.

The city departments' budgets will be reviewed next by a committee of city staff members which will make recommendations to the mayor as she prepares her budget. The mayor's budget will be presented to the City Council in July.

The commission basically is charged with stating whether the projects listed in the capital improvement program conform to the Comprehensive Plan.

Discussed Merits

Since most of the projects do, the planners spent most of their time discussing the merits of various proposals.

The only item which fell into disfavor was Lincoln General Hospital's request to add four floors to the Physicians Office Building. The hospital board earmarked $750,000 this year for adding up to four floors on the building

Medical doctors who serve on the hospital's staff rent office space in the nearby building which is owned by the private Lincoln General Hospital Association

However, some commissioners said they didn't think the city should spend its money on that project

With that recommendation, the planners approved the hospital's proposed $1.3 million capital improvements budget for 1976-77

The biggest request came from the Lincoln Electric System which wants to spend $33 million next year.

In approving the budget, the planners requested only that LES submit the location of a proposed service center to the commission for approval

LES has budgeted $1.6 million to build a center so it can consolidate 13 storage and service sites LES administrative offices will remain downtown.

A major chunk of LES's money would go to meeting future power supply requirements. LES put in $23 7 million for 1976-77

Street, Sewer Projects

The Public Works Department has requested $8 1 million in street and storm sewer projects

Director Bob Obering has budgeted $1 million for arterial street resurfacing and intersection improvements and $1 million for residential street resurfacing

The planners endorsed the proposed $14 million northeast wastewater treatment plant, which would be built on N. 70th and Salt Creek and endorsed plans to expand Lincoln's water system and wells along the Platte River

The commission also approved the Parks and Recreation Department's requested $1 6 million budget for 1976-77, which again includes $350 000 for a swimming pool at Seacrest Park The pool was cut out last year by the mayor

The commission also okayed the Urban Development Department's $568.600 budget, which is aimed at paving dirt streets and revitalizing neighborhoods.

The commission also approved the library's requested $525.000, which includes money to build an addition to Bennett Martin Main Library

New Fire Stations

The Fire Department wants to construct three new stations over the next six years, but none during 1976-77

Pershing Auditorium wants to do some remodeling, costing $262.000 next year, while the Lincoln Transportation System hopes to buy more buses, shelters and bus signs, for $430.000

The planners also approved the County-City Building Commission's request to build a heating plant in the parking lot west of the building, for $225.000

Group Spots Risk Of Cancer To Child

WASHINGTON (AP) — Warning of a possible risk of cancer, especially to children, an environmental group urged the government Wednesday to reduce human exposure to Tris phosphate, a widely used flame retardant for synthetic fibers.

According to a petition filed with the Consumer Product Safety Commission, Tris is used predominantly in sleepwear manufactured for children through the age of 12

The petition, sponsored by the Environmental Defense Fund (EDF), cites recent governmental and independent studies which show that Tris is a mutagen— a finding which leads some scientists to suspect it as a carcinogen, or cancer agent, as well.

The EDF asked the commission to require immediately that fabrics treated with Tris carry a label advising consumers to wash the material three times before wearing

Election Commission Bill OKd By Senators

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate passed a bill Wednesday to restructure the Federal Election Commission and make other changes in the 1974 campaign finance law

Passage of the measure a compromise fashioned by leaders of both parties, ended the stalemate that had threatened to keep the Senate snarled in controversy

The legislation approved 55 to 28, now goes to the House where no action is in prospect before next week

One last-minute addition to the Senate bill was a sweeping financial disclosure provision adopted 76 to 13 applying to Congress members and all other top federal officials

Congress already has missed a March 22 deadline set by the Supreme Court for restructuring the FEC created to enforce and administer the 1974 law As a result the commission lost its key powers including authority to disburse funds to help presidential candidates finance their primary campaigns

The court ruled Jan 30 that the FEC was unconstitutionally established because a majority of its members were appointed by Congress.

It said they all would have to be appointed by the President, subject to Senate confirmation since the FEC performs executive functions

The court first set a March 1 deadline for Congress to pass corrective legislation and then extended this to March 22

The controversy over the legislation centered on other proposed changes in the 1974 law not on complying with the court's ruling for president appointment of the FEC members

The financial disclosure amendment would require Congress members federal judges and top level government officials to submit reports by each Feb 15 disclosing their and their spouses assets and liabilities

The reports to be filed with the Comptroller General and open for public inspection also would have to list all income and its source in the proceeding calendar year or as an alternative the previous year's federal income tax could be submitted

Allen accepted a proposal by Sen Howard W Cannon D-Nev that the amendment also apply to all candidates for federal office.

Election Commission Bill OKd By Senators

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate passed a bill Wednesday to restructure the Federal Election Commission and make other changes in the 1974 campaign finance law.

Passage of the measure, a compromise fashioned by leaders of both parties, ended the stalemate that had threatened to keep the Senate snarled in controversy.

The legislation, approved 55 to 28, now goes to the House, where no action is in prospect before next week.

One last-minute addition to the Senate bill was a sweeping financial disclosure provision adopted 76 to 13, applying to Congress members and all other top federal officials.

Congress already has missed a March 22 deadline set by the Supreme Court for restructuring the FEC, created to enforce and administer the 1974 law. As a result the commission lost its key powers, including authority to disburse funds to help presidential candidates finance their primary campaigns.

The court ruled Jan. 30 that the FEC was unconstitutionally established because a majority of its members were appointed by Congress.

It said they all would have to be appointed by the President, subject to Senate confirmation, since the FEC performs executive functions.

The court first set a March 1 deadline for Congress to pass correctivelegislation and then extended this to March 22.

The controversy over the legislation centered on other proposed changes in the 1974 law, not on complying with the court's ruling for president appointment of the FEC members.

The financial disclosure amendment would require Congress members, federal judges, and top level government officials to submit reports by each Feb. 15 disclosing their and their spouses assets and liabilities.

The reports, to be filed with the Comptroller General and open for public inspection, also would have to list all income and its source in the proceeding calendar year or, as an alternative, the previous year's federal income tax could be submitted.

Allen accepted a proposal by Sen. Howard W. Cannon, D-Nev., that the amendment also apply to all candidates for federal office.

Argentine Junta Has Work Cut Out For It

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina (AP) — The military junta that ousted President Isabel Peron in a bloodless coup began on Wednesday the gargantuan task of imposing order on this chaotic nation. Troops moved swiftly — with occasional gunfire — against traces of Peronism and left-wing political groups.

Mrs. Peron was believed flown to a resort-like air force compound in the interior. Reliable sources in Madrid said the Spanish government had been informed unofficially that she might travel to Spain this weekend.

Commanders of the three armed forces set up an austere military government, ordered an end to political and labor activity and said they would attack Argentina's political violence and economic woes.

In its first decree law Wednesday night, the junta created "special war councils" with the power to impose the death penalty to try cases of subversion. Capital crimes under the decree include killing security personnel and attacking public transportation, communication and other services.

The junta decreed the suspension of political parties and the activities of labor unions "while the process is carried out for the recuperation of the state in all its levels and functions."

The junta said the unions "have been affected by the process of disorder, corruption and subversion that has characterized national activities in recent years."

Labor unions were the foundation of the once-powerful Peronist movement, created by the late President Juan D. Peron. As vice president, Mrs. Peron inherited the movement's leadership and the national presidency when he died in office on July 1, 1974.

Military officers moved within hours after the coup to take over municipal and provincial governments.

Almost no resistance was reported, but official censorship blacked out all news not approved by authorities.

The junta led by Gen. Jorge R. Videla, moralistic 50-year-old army chief, also said it would reorganize the country for an eventual return to "republican democracy" and would align Argentina within "the Western and Christian world."

Brezhnev Not Expected

Washington — Washington reporters are being told that even if a new agreement with the Soviet Union limiting strategic arms is reached this year, it is more and more possible that Leonid I. Brezhnev would not come to the United States to sign it. The Ford administration has reportedly reached that conclusion because of the strains in Soviet-American relations over Angola.

Israel Complains Of Criticism

Washington — Israel complained to the United States in Washington over criticism of Israeli policy in occupied territories. In the United Nations Security Council William W. Scranton, the chief American delegate, called Israeli settlements in Arab territory an obstacle to peace. The State Department said his remarks on that and the annexation of East Jerusalem were similar to those made by three previous chief delegates.

Fires Rage Out Of Control In Beirut Neighborhoods

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Fires raged out of control in a half-dozen Beirut neighborhoods Wednesday under continued shelling by Christian and Moslem forces. Economy Minister Adel Osseiran appealed to Syria to send fire brigades from Damascus to help put out the fires.

The minister said flour and food grains worth $400 million had been destroyed in port warehouses and more silos were threatened.

Osseiran appealed to the gunmen in a broadcast to stop shelling the port area to avoid food shortages, but the mortar and artillery exchanges continued into the night.

Police said incomplete casualty reports indicated more than 75 persons were killed Wednesday in the battle areas of Beirut, hill towns overlooking the capital and Northern Lebanon around President Suleiman Franjieh's home town of Zagharta.

The shelling also slammed into nearby residential neighborhoods, terrorizing Beirut families and boosting casualty tolls toward 13,000 killed since the Lebanese civil war began last April.

"I never saw anything like it before," said one Moslem man whose area rocked with explosions from 122mm mortars and recoilless rifles.

A parliament meeting scheduled for Thursday was put off until Saturday because members could not reach the parliament building, which was engulfed in mortar and machine-gun fire. The building was pocked with many bullet holes but was not structually damaged.

'Minor To Moderate' Quakes Felt In Parts Of Seven States

By The Associated Press

Two earthquakes rumbled through parts of at least seven Mississippi Basin states Wednesday, causing minor damage but no reported injuries.

A spokesman at the National Earthquake Information Service in Golden, Colo., said the two quakes measured between 4.5 and 5 on the Richter scale.

The earthquakes were "minor to moderate," and could be felt in parts of Tennessee, Alabama, Mississippi, Arkansas, Missouri, Kentucky and Illinois, the spokesman said.

Both quakes, the first recorded at 7:41 p.m. EST and the second about 20 minutes later, were centered in Northeastern Arkansas.

Officials at Spring Hill College in Mobile, Ala., said the first reading on its seismograph registered between 4.75 and 5 on the Richter scale. The second registered 4 on the scale.

"We wouldn't expect too much damage. Damage would be of a minor sort," said the spokesman at the Earthquake Information Service.

There were reports of some property damage to ceilings and roofs in the Decatur, Ala., area. There were no immediate reports of injuries.

Seismographic equipment at Memphis State University registered a quake at 6:45 p.m. in the Memphis area at between 3.5 and 4 on the scale.

Police officials said there was no major damage in Memphis. However, telephone lines were down and power was cut off in Jonesboro.

Power lines were also reported down and telephone service interrupted in New Albany, Miss. Power lines were also reported down at Batesville, Horn Lake, and Hernando.

In West Tennessee, a dispatcher at the Union City Police Department said he felt a fairly heavy tremor that lasted about 10 seconds. But he said there was no reported damage except the telephone circuits weren't working right. He said reports on the statewide Civil Defense network indicated there was very little, if any, damage except to telephone circuits.

According to the seismograph at Memphis State, the quake lasted about eight seconds.

The Richter scale is a measure of ground motion as recorded on seismographs. Every increase of one number, say from magnitude 5.5 to magnitude 6.5, means the ground motion is 10 times greater. Some experts say the actual amount of energy released may be 30 times greater.

In populated areas, an earthquake of 3.5 on the Richter scale can cause slight damage in the local area, 4 can cause moderate damage and 5 considerable damage.

That's Some Bull!

ELBURN, Ill. (AP) — Paclamar Astronaut, a 12-year-old Holstein bull, has become the biggest daddy of them all by siring a world record 39,760 offspring.

The record, certified by the Holstein Breeders Association at Brattleboro, Vt., was celebrated by some 100 of the country's cattle breeders at a champagne party Tuesday.

Astronaut, a 2,400-pounder, calmly munched hay as the champagne flowed at the Curtiss Breeding Service in Elburn which leases the bull for its stud production center.

The offspring were produced by artificial insemination. His owners charge $40 for half a cubic centimeter of semen, enough to breed one cow.

"His record was certified last Friday and since then he probably has sired 40 or 50 more calves," said Miles McCarry, director of agricultural relations for Curtiss. "Among his offspring are 23,101 milking daughters, another world record, and 5,000 registered sons. His grandsons are now starting to produce. It would be a conservative estimate to say Astronaut has a million descendants and we think he is good for another four or five years."

Subcommittee Approves Grain Inspection Reform

Washington (UPI) — A joint meeting of two Senate agriculture subcommittees Wednesday approved a sweeping reform bill calling for direct federal inspection of grain moving through all ports and 25 major inland terminal markets.

The bill was drafted in the wake of inspection scandals which included more than 60 indictments on charges ranging from bribery to misgrading and shortweighing of grain at gulf ports.

A close vote on one key portion of the measure, however, indicated that attempts may be made to rewrite parts of it later in the full Senate Agriculture Committee.

The subcommittees agreed without great dispute to provisions setting up all-federal inspection at ports in place of the current system in which grain is graded by private and state agencies working under Agriculture Department supervision.

On a second major point, however, the five senators present at the drafting session split 3-2 in favor of requiring all-federal inspection at 25 major inland grain markets.

As drafted by the subcommittees, the bill would provide federal inspection for about 85% of the nation's grain subject to inspection. The rest, moving through minor inland terminals and country elevators, would continue to be graded by private or state agencies working under close federal controls.

More Than One Reagan?

A Nebraska supporter of Ronald Reagan said this week that the former California governor will sweep the state's rural areas in the May 11 Republican presidential primary because of reaction against Gerald Ford's record in agriculture and because Reagan promises farmers something different.

"Reagan will not use farm commodities as a foreign policy weapon," said Dwight Dam of Valentine, Reagan's Third District campaign manager. Dam continued: "He is committed to free market economics without government control."

Dam must be talking about a different Ronald Reagan than the one who, in a speech to a group of governors in Texas only a few months ago, said the U.S. should use American farm commodities as a hammer to bludgeon respect and restraint into the Soviets. The message was clear and simple food should be a foreign policy tool

Dam might have been talking about the Ronald Reagan who was campaigning in Illinois — a grain farming state — sometime later. That Reagan said farmers shouldn't be hostage to the whims of diplomats in Washington.

We all know, of course, that the earlier Reagan and the later Reagan are both the same fellow and that he is as shifty a snake oil salesman as any other politician in the business.

Dam could be right about one thing — that Reagan will do well among Republican farmers in Nebraska. He is in a good position simply because Ford has a bad record in the eyes of farmers. It's there, it's a fact, while Reagan can promise them anything, and probably will.

But those who condemn Ford for interfering in the export market last fall owe it to themselves to at least take the trouble to try to find out what Reagan really thinks about the marketing of American farm products overseas. We emphasize "try" because it is obvious that Reagan has more than one position on the issue.

Mail Service Worries

A contributor to the Today's Mail column on this page Wednesday predicted further decline in postal service, even beyond what is now contemplated.

That letter is only one example in a mass of evidence that Americans are deeply apprehensive of the directions which might be taken by those in charge of delivering the mail.

The shutting down of smaller post offices, the elimination or cutting back of weekend window and delivery services and other predicted service cutbacks (such as a move to twice-a-week deliveries) for the avowed purpose of balancing the Postal Service books are opposed, we think, by a great majority of people in this nation.

The cry in Congress for years was to get the post office out of politics and on a business footing. The vain hope was to run it as a good businessman would run his business. That was at the time and continues to be hogwash.

One of the functions of government Americans have traditionally expected and relied upon is the speedy delivery of the mails. In that regard, Americans are more interested in good service than black ink on the Postal Service's ledger sheet.

We recognize that the Postal Service has been hit by the inflation which affects all of us, that there are tremendous problems associated with the increase in the volumes of mail, that something must be done about junk mail in that regard, that there is resistance to continued increases in postal rates.

But given a choice between severely curtailed service and increased mailing costs, we believe most people would reluctantly choose the latter.

At any rate, the Postal Service, while it should be run as efficiently as possible without limiting desired service, can't be run as a paying business. It needs to be subsidized. The Postal Service is a government enterprise that should reflect the public will.

To heck with the business ethic. The Postal Service should be put back into politics, where it belongs.

Someone Lost At Last

The North Carolina primary blew life-sustaining air back into the lungs of the Reagan campaign and has kept the chase for the Republican presidential nomination interesting for a while longer.

The Reagan effort may have been gasping its last breath just before the North Carolina votes came rolling in — and if that was the case (which we may never know as a certainty), the results were dramatic indeed.

Speculation now centers on why Reagan has cancelled campaign appearances for a week to prepare for a nationwide television address. Had the telecast originally been intended as a means of declaring his withdrawal? Will it still be used for that now highly unlikely purpose? An appeal for funds, perhaps? Or some campaign bombshell? This development has added a measure of drama to the campaign.

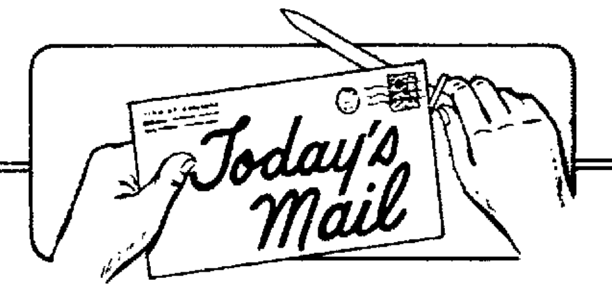
We suspect, however, that in the long run, the North Carolina primary will not have shifted momentum from Ford to Reagan.

History will probably not record it as the beginning of the end for Ford, but as the first primary in which the candidate who got 46% of the vote to his opponent's 52% did not declare himself the winner.

"We lost — it's as plain and simple as that," said Ford spokesman Ron Nessen. And Ford, to his credit, did not say he was happy with 46% of the vote. He said he was very disappointed.

George Wallace likewise acknowledged that he lost the Democratic primary because he got less votes and said he didn't know the reason why.

Three cheers for candor!



Clarifying Implication

Omaha, Neb

The implication in the letter The Star recently printed that the Coalition for Open Government gets its resources from Washington needs correction

The Coalition for Open Government represents some 4,000 Nebraskans in 16 member groups. Common Cause Nebraska, one member of the Coalition has arranged for printing and processing of various materials to be done by Common Cause in Washington because this is the most efficient and least expensive means at our disposal All Coalition activities, including such printing, are paid for either directly with Coalition funds (raised in Nebraska) or by contributions by Nebraskans to member organizations

Kissinger Issues Vague Warnings

WASHINGTON — Secretary of State Kissinger's warnings to the Soviet Union and Cuba against further military intervention in Africa make good political headlines, but it would be helpful if he would tell the country how he proposes to carry them out.

In his speech before the World Affairs Council of Dallas, he said "the United States will not accept further Cuban military interventions abroad." The issue in Angola, he added, "was and remains the unacceptable precedent of massive Soviet and Cuban intervention in a conflict thousands of miles from their shores ... The danger was and is that our inaction ... will lead to further Soviet and Cuban pressures on the mistaken assumption that America has lost the will to counter adventurism or even to help others do so."

It is easy to understand his reaction especially since he is being attacked in the presidential campaign for being soft on the communists, but what do these stern public statements mean?

If the United States will "not accept" further Cuban military interventions abroad, how does he propose to stop them or punish them? Would he go back to a policy of economic or naval blockade of Cuba, or put military pressure on that island to force the Cuban expeditionary army back home?

His general principle seems sensible enough. "We are not the world's policeman," he says, "but we cannot permit the Soviet Union or its surrogates to become the world's policeman either, if we care anything about our security and the fate and freedom of the world. It does no good to preach strategic superiority while practicing regional retreat."

But it does no good either to issue warnings unless you are ready, willing, and able to carry them out, as Kissinger himself discovered in Vietnam and again in Angola He stated another principle in his Dallas speech.

"The issue," he said, "is not an open-ended commitment or a policy of indiscriminate American intervention. Decisions on whether and how to take action must always result from careful analysis and open discussion. It cannot be rammed down the throats of an unwilling Congress or public."

This is precisely the problem now. For the secretary of state has issued his warnings and indicated the United States would act in some unspecified way if Moscow and Havana don't stop their "unacceptable" military adventures, but there has been no "careful analysis" in the Congress or any serious "open discussion" of these highly complicated and dangerous situations, and nothing to indicate that his warnings wouldn't stick in Congress's throat.

In Africa, as in Southeast Asia, the Soviet government has openly insisted on its right to support what it calls "wars of national liberation." The United States has protested repeatedly about this policy and has warned that Moscow cannot violate the principle of co-existence "selectively" without endangering the U.S.-Soviet cooperation elsewhere.

There is no evidence here, however, that Secretary Kissinger is recommending a policy of economic retaliation against the USSR. Both nations agreed in the Helsinki declaration that they would "refrain in their mutual relations, as well as in their international relations in general, from the threat of use of force against the territorial integrity or political independence of any state, or in any other manner inconsistent with the purposes of the United Nations and with the present declaration."

This declaration also forbade not only the threat of direct force but of the "indirect use of force." Nevertheless, the communist policy of intervening in these "wars of liberation" continues, along with the assertion by both Moscow and Havana that it is not inconsistent with the policy of detente.

"We are certain," Secretary Kissinger said, without indicating who "we" are, "that the American people understand and support these two equal principles of our policy — our support for majority rule in Africa and our firm opposition to military intervention."

This may be so, though the issues have scarcely been debated here, but if the government of Rhodesia insists on minority rule and the U.S. rules out military intervention, it is hard to see how Kissinger's warnings and principles can avoid more guerrilla war in that part of the world.

Either they mean nothing more than a bold stand that would please the Reagan supporters in the presidential campaign, or they mean that the United States has finally decided to draw the line against Soviet and Cuban military intervention.

And if the latter is true, then the American people, who would have to carry out the warnings, have a right to know what the secretary has in mind. He is obviously frustrated by the hard task of defending his Soviet policy when it is violated openly by the USSR, and also when his efforts to stop the slide in Africa are opposed by a majority of the Congress.

But speeches are not likely to restore the balance and threats that are not understood or supported at home could make the situation both in Africa and in this hemisphere even worse than they now are.

Blueberries'' Special for today only. How lucky can I be, I thought as I stopped by a supermarket. Plastic bags filled with deep blue beads of perfection tantalized me enough to make a purchase of three bags.

I have ideas of blueberry pies and cobblers. The cobblers will not have a string of pearls baked into them as shown on a TV commercial. Blueberries will be the only gems in my cobbler.

After last week's spasm of snow that March managed to shower upon us, there is an impatience now to end the housebound life of the past winter months.

Although the snow in our area did very little to add moisture to our dry soil, the air is brisk and alive with fragrance of greening meadows and grassy slopes.

I went outside today expecting to find little more than the tag-ends of winter, the untidy litter of fallen leaves and a blown newspaper in the corner, snared by the corner fence, but I found more.

The pussy willow with many new green shoots from the base of the bush, since the wind broke the top out of it last summer, was swarming with honey bees. Half a dozen catkins were almost ready to open, or at least the bees thought so and wanted to be the first to spread the word.

In the shallow little bogs that dot the marshland where the big pond usually makes up the area of drainage water, a small number of ducks and geese are flying in, beating their tired pinions in rhythmic flight.

The pond is not a pond at all this spring and so most of the water fowl have bypassed our farm and the pond that adjoins our land.

The red-winged blackbirds have arrived to claim their nesting territory. They sit on the swaying reeds and call "O-ka-leeeeee," from early morning until darkness hides them from sight.

By the time the females arrive, all the dueling for territory will have been settled and another season of family rearing will take place in the bird world.

In the warm radiance of the sunshine that overwhelmed the sky and land this morning, the big yellow cat snoozed on the window ledge of the barn. It was stretched out full length to catch every golden gleam of sunshine that shown through the window.

It was my first bout with spring fever and I felt very much like saying, "Move over, Tabby, and make room for two of us."

The Farmer stood looking out with a certain new joy across his acres I know a song of the fields is beginning to stir a new glow of fulfillment and contentment for him. I hear it too, for a strange potency abides within the soil. Confidence is springing up with every new spear of green that breaks through the earth.

Although The Farmer has not decided what the wheat will do — at best, not much — yet there is always that decision of whether to turn it under and begin anew this spring. There will be some patches that may make a crop. Hopefully the spring will bring much rain and good growing weather so an entire field of wheat can be left to grow with some feeling of confidence that it will yield some return.

At the present it is too early to decide. Just how vibrant that secret, elusive, invisible life in the wheat plant is today is difficult to know.

We must wait ... wait and see. Those are the words that seem to determine what a farmer does as he strives to work with nature. Though a farmer may become impatient, nature never seems to . . . there is always time.

And so another day under a pinnacle of white clouds. The Farmer will look out across his fields and decide what he will do. The land will wait . . . the slow-gathered wisdom of the country will wait.

Pressler, The Agricultural Expert

WASHINGTON — In just one year on Capitol Hill, Rep. Larry Pressler, the dapper young Republican from South Dakota, has mastered the art of being everything to everyone

Indeed, we have discovered, he has even plagiarized published articles to enhance his image as an agricultural expert.

It is hardly surprising that the polished Pressler would lack expertise in agricultural affairs He is a Rhodes Scholar and a Harvard Law School graduate He spent almost three years as a legal advisor to the secretary of state

Smitten with Potomac Fever, he shucked his striped pants, rolled up his shirt sleeves and ran for Congress as a South Dakota farm boy.

In his largely rural district, he emphasizes the fact that he grew up on a family farm near Humboldt " Even his State Department experience has been neatly tailored to his new image He worked on international agricultural trade he says Pressler has further refined his "farm boy" facade by writing an occasional piece on agricultural problems for the local press One such article recently appeared in the South Dakota High Liner, a tabloid published by the state Rural Electric Association.

Pressler lifted whole paragraphs, sometimes word-for-word, from a series which appeared in the Washington Post in January

The Post story, for example, contained this paragraph

"When the senior executives of some of the most powerful firms fly off on grain-selling missions, their whereabouts often are kept secret even from their own senior employes so that an untimely leak won't tip off a competitor to some impending grain sale coup "

In his "exclusive" story, Pressler wrote

"When the senior executives of some of the most powerful firms fly off on grain-selling missions, their whereabouts are often kept secret — even from their own senior employes — so that an untimely leak won't tip off a competitor to some impending grain sale coup "

Reported the Washington Post "The grain firms are a handful of companies engaged in moving an essential commodity from the few countries that have more than enough to the many that have far too little."

Wrote Pressler: The grain firms "are a handful of companies engaged in moving an essential commodity from the few countries that have enough to the many that have too little."

Footnote Pressler told us our inquiry was "the first I've heard" of the plagiarism His article was "written by an intern," he said, but "it's under my name so I'm responsible for it " The lawmaker staunchly defended his voting record but admitted there was "an inconsistency" in his common situs vote

The natural gas industry has quietly blocked use of a simple device that would save $200 million in heating bills during each winter month, according to confidential Senate memos

The mechanism costing only a few dollars, would decrease use of natural gas in furnaces by up to 30% and save the equivalent of a half million barrels of oil a day

The device has been used in Germany for 43 years In hearings this week by the Senate Anti-Trust subcommittee, the natural gas industry will be asked why it's not being used in the U S. The fuel-saver is called a "vent damper" and prevents heat from going up the flue. In 1972 we revealed how the industry-run American Gas Association (AGA) had successfully thwarted its widespread use to keep sales of natural gas from dropping

More Than One Reagan?

A Nebraska supporter of Ronald Reagan said this week that the former California governor will sweep the state's rural areas in the May 11 Republican presidential primary because of reaction against Gerald Ford's record in agriculture and because Reagan promises farmers something different.

"Reagan will not use farm commodities as a foreign policy weapon," said Dwight Dam of Valentine, Reagan's Third District campaign manager. Dam continued: "He is committed to free market economics without government control."

Dam must be talking about a different Ronald Reagan than the one who, in a speech to a group of governors in Texas only a few months ago, said the U.S. should use American farm commodities as a hammer to bludgeon respect and restraint into the Soviets. The message was clear and simple: food should be a foreign policy tool.

Dam might have been talking about the Ronald Reagan who was campaigning in Illinois — a grain farming state — sometime later. That Reagan said farmers shouldn't be hostage to the whims of diplomats in Washington.

We all know, of course, that the earlier Reagan and the later Reagan are both the same fellow and that he is as shifty a snake oil salesman as any other politician in the business.

Dam could be right about one thing — that Reagan will do well among Republican farmers in Nebraska. He is in a good position simply because Ford has a bad record in the eyes of farmers. It's there, it's a fact, while Reagan can promise them anything, and probably will.

But those who condemn Ford for interfering in the export market last fall owe it to themselves to at least take the trouble to try to find out what Reagan really thinks about the marketing of American farm products overseas. We emphasize "try" because it is obvious that Reagan has more than one position on the issue.

Mail Service Worries

A contributor to the Today's Mail column on this page Wednesday predicted further decline in postal service, even beyond what is now contemplated.

That letter is only one example in a mass of evidence that Americans are deeply apprehensive of the directions which might be taken by those in charge of delivering the mail.

The shutting down of smaller post offices, the elimination or cutting back of weekend window and delivery services and other predicted service cutbacks (such as a move to twice-a-week deliveries) for the avowed purpose of balancing the Postal Service books are opposed, we think, by a great majority of people in this nation.

The cry in Congress for years was to get the post office out of politics and on a business footing. The vain hope was to run it as a good businessman would run his business. That was at the time and continues to be hogwash.

One of the functions of government Americans have traditionally expected and relied upon is the speedy delivery of the mails. In that regard, Americans are more interested in good service than black ink on the Postal Service's ledger sheet.

We recognize that the Postal Service has been hit by the inflation which affects all of us, that there are tremendous problems associated with the increase in the volumes of mail, that something must be done about junk mail in that regard, that there is resistance to continued increases in postal rates.

But given a choice between severely curtailed service and increased mailing costs, we believe most people would reluctantly choose the latter.

At any rate, the Postal Service, while it should be run as efficiently as possible without limiting desired service, can't be run as a paying business. It needs to be subsidized. The Postal Service is a government enterprise that should reflect the public will.

To heck with the business ethic. The Postal Service should be put back into politics, where it belongs.

Someone Lost At Last

The North Carolina primary blew life-sustaining air back into the lungs of the Reagan campaign and has kept the chase for the Republican presidential nomination interesting for a while longer.

The Reagan effort may have been gasping its last breath just before the North Carolina votes came rolling in — and if that was the case (which we may never know as a certainty), the results were dramatic indeed.

Speculation now centers on why Reagan has cancelled campaign appearances for a week to prepare for a nationwide television address. Had the telecast originally been intended as a means of declaring his withdrawal? Will it still be used for that now highly unlikely purpose? An appeal for funds, perhaps? Or some campaign bombshell? This development has added a measure of drama to the campaign.

We suspect, however, that in the long run, the North Carolina primary will not have shifted momentum from Ford to Reagan.

History will probably not record it as the beginning of the end for Ford, but as the first primary in which the candidate who got 46% of the vote to his opponent's 52% did not declare himself the winner.

"We lost — it's as plain and simple as that," said Ford spokesman Ron Nessen. And Ford, to his credit, did not say he was happy with 46% of the vote. He said he was very disappointed.

George Wallace likewise acknowledged that he lost the Democratic primary because he got less votes and said he didn't know the reason why.

Three cheers for candor!

Omaha, Neb.

The implication in the letter The Star recently printed that the Coalition for Open Government gets its resources from Washington needs correction.

The Coalition for Open Government represents some 4,000 Nebraskans in 16 member groups. Common Cause/Nebraska, one member of the Coalition, has arranged for printing and processing of various materials to be done by Common Cause in Washington because this is the most efficient and least expensive means at our disposal. All Coalition activities, including such printing, are paid for either directly with Coalition funds (raised in Nebraska) or by contributions by Nebraskans to member organizations.

Reunion Time

Nanticoke, Pa.

The 14th Armored (Liberators) Division will hold its annual reunion July 21-25, at the Downtown Holiday Inn, in Denver, Colorado.

The division has a record unparalleled in the history of warfare. During its combat tour in France and Germany, it liberated more than 200,000 Allied servicemen from German POW camps. It participated in the military campaigns in the Rhineland, Ardennes-Alsace, and Central Europe fighting through the Vosges Mts., Alsace, the Maginot and Siegfried Lines, then through Bavaria.

The 14th was part of General Alexander Patch's Seventh Army and General George S. Patton's Third Army during World War II. It landed in Marseilles in southern France after training at Fort Chaffee, Arkansas, and Fort Campbell, Kentucky.

For further information, former members are requested to write Arnold H. Breitlow, La Moille, Minnesota, 55948.

Kissinger Issues Vague Warnings

WASHINGTON — Secretary of State Kissinger's warnings to the Soviet Union and Cuba against further military intervention in Africa make good political headlines, but it would be helpful if he would tell the country how he proposes to carry them out.

In his speech before the World Affairs Council of Dallas, he said "the United States will not accept further Cuban military interventions abroad." The issue in Angola, he added, "was and remains the unacceptable precedent of massive Soviet and Cuban intervention in a conflict thousands of miles from their shores . . . The danger was and is that our inaction . . . will lead to further Soviet and Cuban pressures on the mistaken assumption that America has lost the will to counter adventurism or even to help others do so."

It is easy to understand his reaction especially since he is being attacked in the presidential campaign for being soft on the communists, but what do these stern public statements mean?

If the United States will "not accept" further Cuban military interventions abroad, how does he propose to stop them or punish them? Would he go back to a policy of economic or naval blockade of Cuba, or put military pressure on that island to force the Cuban expeditionary army back home?

His general principle seems sensible enough. "We are not the world's policeman," he says, "but we cannot permit the Soviet Union or its surrogates to become the world's policeman either, if we care anything about our security and the fate and freedom of the world. It does no good to preach strategic superiority while practicing regional retreat."

But it does no good either to issue warnings unless you are ready, willing, and able to carry them out, as Kissinger himself discovered in Vietnam and again in Angola. He stated another principle in his Dallas speech.

"The issue," he said, "is not an open-ended commitment or a policy of indiscriminate American intervention. Decisions on whether and how to take action must always result from careful analysis and open discussion. It cannot be rammed down the throats of an unwilling Congress or public."

This is precisely the problem now. For the secretary of state has issued his warnings and indicated the United States would act in some unspecified way if Moscow and Havana don't stop their "unacceptable" military adventures, but there has been no "careful analysis" in the Congress or any serious "open discussion" of these highly complicated and dangerous situations, and nothing to indicate that his warnings wouldn't stick in Congress's throat.

In Africa, as in Southeast Asia, the Soviet government has openly insisted on its right to support what it calls "wars of national liberation." The United States has protested repeatedly about this policy and has warned that Moscow cannot violate the principle of co-existence "selectively" without endangering the U.S.-Soviet cooperation elsewhere.

There is no evidence here, however, that Secretary Kissinger is recommending a policy of economic retaliation against the USSR. Both nations agreed in the Helsinki declaration that they would "refrain in their mutual relations, as well as in their international relations in general, from the threat of use of force against the territorial integrity or political independence of any state, or in any other manner inconsistent with the purposes of the United Nations and with the present declaration."

This declaration also forbade not only the threat of direct force but of the "indirect use of force." Nevertheless, the communist policy of intervening in these "wars of liberation" continues, along with the assertion by both Moscow and Havana that it is not inconsistent with the policy of detente.

"We are certain," Secretary Kissinger said, without indicating who "we" are, "that the American people understand and support these two equal principles of our policy — our support for majority rule in Africa and our firm opposition to military intervention."

This may be so, though the issues have scarcely been debated here, but if the government of Rhodesia insists on minority rule and the U.S. rules out military intervention, it is hard to see how Kissinger's warnings and principles can avoid more guerrilla war in that part of the world.

Either they mean nothing more than a bold stand that would please the Reagan supporters in the presidential campaign, or they mean that the United States has finally decided to draw the line against Soviet and Cuban military intervention.

And if the latter is true, then the American people, who would have to carry out the warnings, have a right to know what the secretary has in mind. He is obviously frustrated by the hard task of defending his Soviet policy when it is violated openly by the USSR, and also when his efforts to stop the slide in Africa are opposed by a majority of the Congress.

But speeches are not likely to restore the balance and threats that are not understood or supported at home could make the situation both in Africa and in this hemisphere even worse than they now are.

After last week's spasm of snow that March managed to shower upon us, there is an impatience now to end the housebound life of the past winter months.

Although the snow in our area did very little to add moisture to our dry soil, the air is brisk and alive with fragrance of greening meadows and grassy slopes.

I went outside today expecting to find little more than the tag-ends of winter, the untidy litter of fallen leaves and a blown newspaper in the corner, snared by the corner fence, but I found more.

The pussy willow with many new green shoots from the base of the bush, since the wind broke the top out of it last summer, was swarming with honey bees. Half a dozen catkins were almost ready to open, or at least the bees thought so and wanted to be the first to spread the word.

In the shallow little bogs that dot the marshland where the big pond usually makes up the area of drainage water, a small number of ducks and geese are flying in, beating their tired pinions in rhythmic flight.

The pond is not a pond at all this spring and so most of the water fowl have bypassed our farm and the pond that adjoins our land.

The red-winged blackbirds have arrived to claim their nesting territory. They sit on the swaying reeds and call "O-ka-leeeeee," from early morning until darkness hides them from sight.

By the time the females arrive, all the dueling for territory will have been settled and another season of family rearing will take place in the bird world.

In the warm radiance of the sunshine that overwhelmed the sky and land this morning, the big yellow cat snoozed on the window ledge of the barn. It was stretched out full length to catch every golden gleam of sunshine that shown through the window.

It was my first bout with spring fever and I felt very much like saying, "Move over, Tabby, and make room for two of us."

The Farmer stood looking out with a certain new joy across his acres. I know a song of the fields is beginning to stir a new glow of fulfillment and contentment for him. I hear it too, for a strange potency abides within the soil. Confidence is springing up with every new spear of green that breaks through the earth.

Although The Farmer has not decided what the wheat will do — at best, not much — yet there is always that decision of whether to turn it under and begin anew this spring. There will be some patches that may make a crop. Hopefully the spring will bring much rain and good growing weather so an entire field of wheat can be left to grow with some feeling of confidence that it will yield some return.

At the present it is too early to decide. Just how vibrant that secret, elusive, invisible life in the wheat plant is today is difficult to know.

We must wait . . . wait and see. Those are the words that seem to determine what a farmer does as he strives to work with nature. Though a farmer may become impatient, nature never seems to . . . there is always time.

And so another day under a pinnacle of white clouds. The Farmer will look out across his fields and decide what he will do. The land will wait . . . the slow-gathered wisdom of the country will wait.

Pressler, The Agricultural Expert

WASHINGTON — In just one year on Capitol Hill, Rep. Larry Pressler, the dapper young Republican from South Dakota, has mastered the art of being everything to everyone.

Indeed, we have discovered, he has even plagiarized published articles to enhance his image as an agricultural expert.

It is hardly surprising that the polished Pressler would lack expertise in agricultural affairs. He is a Rhodes Scholar and a Harvard Law School graduate. He spent almost three years as a legal advisor to the secretary of state.

Smitten with Potomac Fever, he shucked his striped pants, rolled up his shirt sleeves and ran for Congress as a South Dakota farm boy.

In his largely rural district, he emphasizes the fact that he grew up on a "family farm near Humboldt." Even his State Department experience has been neatly tailored to his new image. He worked on "international agricultural trade," he says. Pressler has further refined his "farm boy" facade by writing an occasional piece on agricultural problems for the local press. One such article recently appeared in the South Dakota High Liner, a tabloid published by the state Rural Electric Association.

Pressler lifted whole paragraphs, sometimes word-for-word, from a series which appeared in the Washington Post in January.

The Post story, for example, contained this paragraph:

"When the senior executives of some of the most powerful firms fly off on grain-selling missions, their whereabouts often are kept secret even from their own senior employes so that an untimely leak won't tip off a competitor to some impending grain sale coup."

In his "exclusive" story, Pressler wrote:

"When the senior executives of some of the most powerful firms fly off on grain-selling missions, their whereabouts are often kept secret — even from their own senior employes — so that an untimely leak won't tip off a competitor to some impending grain sale coup."

Reported the Washington Post: "The grain firms are a handful of companies engaged in moving an essential commodity from the few countries that have more than enough to the many that have far too little."

Wrote Pressler: The grain firms "are a handful of companies engaged in moving an essential commodity from the few countries that have enough to the many that have too little."

Footnote: Pressler told us our inquiry was "the first I've heard" of the plagiarism. His article was "written by an intern," he said, but "it's under my name so I'm responsible for it." The lawmaker staunchly defended his voting record but admitted there was "an inconsistency" in his common situs vote.

The natural gas industry has quietly blocked use of a simple device that would save $200 million in heating bills during each winter month, according to confidential Senate memos.

The mechanism, costing only a few dollars, would decrease use of natural gas in furnaces by up to 30% and save the equivalent of a half million barrels of oil a day.

The device has been used in Germany for 43 years. In hearings this week by the Senate Anti-Trust subcommittee, the natural gas industry will be asked why it's not being used in the U.S. The fuel-saver is called a "vent damper" and prevents heat from going up the flue. In 1972 we revealed how the industry-run American Gas Association (AGA) had successfully thwarted its widespread use to keep sales of natural gas from dropping.

But Memphis, Tenn., among other cities, tried to give the vent damper a fair trial. The subcommittee has now obtained correspondence which shows that the AGA's industrious president, F. D. Hart, "called (Memphis officials) three or four times and was applying pressure" to prevent the vent damper test.

A subcommittee staff report explains AGA's success: "For approximately ten years, a small company attempted to have the AGA promulgate standards" which are necessary for the device to be widely installed. "The AGA refused . . ."

As a result, only about 5,000 of the vent dampers are in use, although there are 30 million gas furnaces.

City-County Group Okays Personnel Dept. Concept

The group charged with merging the county and city governments has endorsed the concept of a joint personnel department

The City-County Implementation Committee (CCIC) unanimously approved the concept and asked the city and county attorneys' offices to work out the details of the arrangement

The city and county have had separate personnel departments But the county government, with a very small personnel staff, has paid the city to do some county work

In an effort to increase personnel services for county employes, the County Board suggested the city personnel office could do all county work through a contract arrangement

County employes and department heads balked at the idea of the county personnel system being run by a completely city-controlled department

The suggestion of a joint department was endorsed by employes, elected officials, department heads and the County Board

"This is just one more area where the county would go out and hire a party and pay a figure and not have any more input,' explained County Atty Ron Lahners, a member of the group

'County officials want some input through the County Board,' he said

A specific proposal for a joint department, drafted by the county attorney s office, would violate city charter and code requirements said Bill Austin, city deputy attorney

Both Lahners and Austin were sure the details for a joint department could be worked out to meet both the city and county legal requirements

Mass Gathering Regulation Will Be Discussed April 6

Lancaster County commissioners took a brief look at the proposed mass gathering ordinance Thursday morning, but put off any decision for two weeks

The board will discuss and vote on county regulations for mass gathering events during the April 6, 1 30 p m meeting

Commissioner Bruce Hamilton, who contends that the city s proposed ordinance is too restrictive, has proposed a series of amendments loosening up sanitary, noise level and crowd size limitations

"I wouldn t go along with these recommendations (city ordinance), but I m not saying I'll go along with yours (Hamilton's amendments) either, said Commissioner Bob Colin

The county attorney will redraft the city rules for use by the county at the April 6 meeting Then Hamilton will propose his specific amendments for vote by the commissioners

That horse trading "may take two weeks but we need to get it done," Hamilton said

Already several music festival promoters have inquired about getting amusement licenses

The county regulations would cover all events outside the city limits

City Council has delayed any decision on the regulations until the County Board acts

Man To Be Extradited To Iowa

North Platte (AP) — An associate Lincoln County Court judge has ordered a former Des Moines man extradited back to Iowa to face charges of perjury stemming from his operation of massage parlors in Iowa s capital city

Judge Shelia Barton issued the order Wednesday in the case of Larry Edwards following a 90-minute extradition hearing

Judge Barton overruled a defense motion for a continuance in the case, saying she would rule later in the day on a defense application for a writ of habeas corpus, which would allow Edwards to be released on bond

Edwards remained in custody in lieu of $5 000 bond

Oilman Claims Break-Up Will Cost $14 Million

Omaha (AP) — If the government succeeds in breaking up big oil companies, it will cost the American consumer $14 4 billion a year and will eliminate one million jobs, the president of the Carter Oil Co said in Omaha Wednesday

Harry Pistole, head of Carter Oil a subsidiary of the Exxon Corp said he doesn't know who would benefit from forcing oil companies to divest themselves of most of their functions, as has been proposed by Congress

Pistole s company is engaged only in the coal and oil shale development business As such, Carter Oil would be most directly affected by another proposal that would require oil companies to dispose of their interest in coal and synthetic fuels

Pistole said Carter has coal operations in the East and two surface mines in Wyoming

Carter Oil has a contract to supply the Omaha Public Power District with 31 6 million tons of coal over the next 20 years

Nuclear Enemies Cite Technicality

By BOB GUENTHER
Star Staff Writer

Opponents of a second nuclear power station at Ft Calhoun have turned to a legal technicality to get the Nebraska Supreme Court to overturn approval of the project by the Nebraska Power Review Board

In a brief filed with the court nuclear power opponents cited the fact that the Power Review Board did not hold a hearing on the 1 150-megawatt plant within 30 days from the time Omaha Public Power District filed its application for the plant

OPPD s application was filed June 5, and the hearing was held July 23 State law requires "The hearing shall be had within 30 days unless for good cause shown, the applicant shall request in writing that such hearing not be scheduled until a later time"

The opponents known as the Nebraska Public Power Project, stated that no good cause for the hearing delay was shown in writing

As a result Dennis Keefe attorney for the group, said, 'The Nebraska Power Review Board was without justification to conduct the hearing on July 23 1975 and to enter an order approving the application

The proceedings of administrative agencies such as the Power Review Board, must be in accordance with valid statutory requirements and administrative procedure if any, prescribed by statute'

Keefe also repeated the group s concerns about the potential hazard posed by nuclear wastes from a second plant at Ft Calhoun

The absence of long range storage or reprocessing threatens the public health and safety of this state Keefe said

Yet OPPD, instead of presenting substantial evidence to show that this nuclear facility will serve the public convenience admits to the lack of any permanent solution and asks the citizens of this state to believe in the fond hope that some ingenius person may be able to think of something to do with these highly toxic materials

The group also questioned the desirability of the plant from an economic standpoint

Keefe said there is a basic contradiction between the two major power district s stated goal that 50' of its power generation capacity should be geared to its base load and actual construction plans which show a base load capability of 60

The result of over building in large coal and nuclear plants will be higher rates due to the inefficiencies of running such plants at low output for most of the year Keefe argued

The final argument offered was that limited availability of nuclear fuel in the future will allow coal-fired power plants to operate more cheaply than nuclear plants

OPPD has not yet filed its reply brief

Group To Give Hospital Tapes

The Cornhusker Chapter of American Women in Radio and Television will present 40 children's program video cassettes to St. Elizabeth Health Center that will be shown to hospitalized children.

The cassettes were bought through a grant from the Sears Foundation.

St. Elizabeth is one of 14 new sites selected for the AWRT "Soaring Spirits" project. The videotapes will give 20 hours of entertainment programming for children.

Indian Councils Approve Four Tribal Designs

New York (UPI) — Authentic American Indian designs for bed and bath linens have been approved by four tribal councils (governing bodies), the Pueblo De Cochiti in New Mexico, the Eastern band of Cherokee in North Carolina, the Tonto Apache and Montana's Blackfeet.

The designs and colors were adopted from cultural artifacts, and each is identified with the appropriate tribal name and official seal.

Royalties will be paid to each tribe. Products include bedspreads, draperies, blankets, sheets, towels and pillow cases. The manufacturer is the consumer products division of the Bibb Co., in New York.

Nuclear Enemies Cite Technicality

By BOB GUENTHER
Star Staff Writer

Opponents of a second nuclear power station at Ft. Calhoun have turned to a legal technicality to get the Nebraska Supreme Court to overturn approval of the project by the Nebraska Power Review Board.

In a brief filed with the court, nuclear power opponents cited the fact that the Power Review Board did not hold a hearing on the 1,150-megawatt plant within 30 days from the time Omaha Public Power District filed its application for the plant.

OPPD's application was filed June 5, and the hearing was held July 23. State law requires: "The hearing shall be had within 30 days unless for good cause shown, the applicant shall request in writing that such hearing not be scheduled until a later time."

The opponents, known as the Nebraska Public Power Project, stated that no good cause for the hearing delay was shown in writing.

As a result, Dennis Keefe, attorney for the group, said, "The Nebraska Power Review Board was without justification to conduct the hearing on July 23, 1975, and to enter an order approving the application.

"The proceedings of administrative agencies, such as the Power Review Board, must be in accordance with valid statutory requirements and administrative procedure, if any, prescribed by statute."

Keefe also repeated the group's concerns about the potential hazard posed by nuclear wastes from a second plant at Ft. Calhoun.

The absence of long-range storage or reprocessing "threatens the public health and safety of this state," Keefe said. "Yet, OPPD, instead of presenting substantial evidence to show that this nuclear facility will serve the public convenience, admits to the lack of any permanent solution and asks the citizens of this state to believe in the fond hope that some ingenius person may be able to think of something to do with these highly toxic materials."

The group also questioned the desirability of the plant from an economic standpoint.

Keefe said there is "a basic contradiction" between the two major power district's stated goal that 50% of its power generation capacity should be geared to its base load and actual construction plans which show a base load capability of 60%.

"The result of over-building in large coal and nuclear plants will be higher rates due to the inefficiencies of running such plants at low output for most of the year," Keefe argued.

The final argument offered was that limited availability of nuclear fuel in the future will allow coal-fired power plants to operate more cheaply than nuclear plants.

OPPD has not yet filed its reply brief.

Med Grads, Hospitals Matched

Omaha — Thirty-four native Nebraskans of the class of 1976 of the University of Nebraska College of Medicine will begin residencies at Nebraska hospitals in July.

Rehab Director Quits, Cites DAS 'Nightmare'

By TOM COOK
Outstate Nebraska Bureau

Grand Island — The State Board of Education Wednesday accepted with "deep regret" the resignation of State Director of Vocational Rehabilitation Garry Cartwright, who labeled his relationship with state officials as a "nightmare of political intrigue and hassles."

Calling his resignation voluntary, but not "submitted willingly," Cartwright said his action culminates two years of bitter disagreement with the Department of Administrative Services (DAS).

He described his relationship with the DAS as a "nightmare of political intrigue and hassles with the DAS, relentlessly and unreasonably directed at the Department of Education, the Division of Rehabilitation Services and more specifically myself."

Claiming the DAS attempted to illegally earmark rehabilitation funds in fiscal year 1975, Cartwright described meeting with DAS Director Stanley Matzke in June 1974.

'Brutal Attack'

"We were subjected to the most unprofessional and brutal attack by a group of state officials it has ever been my misfortune to attend," he said.

Matzke was unsuccessful in forcing "this agency into compliance with an unofficial set of inappropriate funding priorities," Cartwright said.

Recent criticism of his agency by community-based mental retardation programs like Omaha's hardhit ENCORE project were also attacked by Cartwright.

"I find the charges of blaming Vocational Rehabilitation for their funding problems to be quite misplaced," he said.

The final act leading to his resignation, Cartwright said, came with this year's LB597 that would have transferred his agency to the Department of Public Welfare.

Although the bill was killed in committee, Cartwright said, "only the bill is dead, not the issues."

The bill was brought to the floor of the Unicameral without a public hearing before it was sent back to committee and subsequently killed, he said.

Senators were attempting "to put the rehabilitation agency on notice," Cartwright said, in misdirected efforts to trim the state budget.

The 15-year veteran of the Education Department said he has proposed consolidation of many rehabilitation services, but the issue has become a "blind vendetta" with some people in the Statehouse.

Method Questioned

"God knows some form of consolidation of human service programs is necessary, but it should occur by study, planning and cooperation, not by sentence," he said.

In other action, the state board took public testimony on Rule 14, which lays down minimum rules and regulations for school systems.

Most of the disagreement with the rule centered on hourly requirements for accreditation of high school students.

Wurtz Challenges Inmate Transfers

By GORDON WINTERS
Star Staff Writer

State laws authorizing the administrative transfer of inmates in the Nebraska Penal Complex to the Lincoln Regional Center were challenged Wednesday in U.S. District Court.

A judicial hearing before the transfer, like that held for other citizens, is being sought in the suit filed by Charles Miller, an 18-year-old inmate.

Attorney Tom Wurtz of Lincoln Legal Aid contended before a panel of three federal judges Wednesday the present transfer with no hearing violates the inmate's constitutional right to due process of law.

Wurtz was questioned by U.S. Judge Donald Law of the 8th Circuit Court of Appeals, who noted that prisoners transfered to the Regional Center have already been deprived of their freedom, and asked why a hearing is needed.

Wurtz responded that inmates confined in the Regional Center carry a stigma from being treated for mental illness.

"I think the stigma is important and I think the courts have recognized that," Wurtz said.

Mel Kammelohr of the state attorney general's office, however, contended that before a due process hearing should be held, it should somehow be proved that confinement in the Regional Center is "somehow a bad deal" in coparison with confinement in the Penal Complex.

Kammerlohr said Miller was the first inmate he had ever heard of who would not rather be sent to the Regional Center.

This prompted in observation from U.S. District Judge Robert Denney that in "One Flew Over the Cuckoo's Nest", both a movie and a novel, the protagonist had taken special pains to be transferred from ordinary imprisonment for criminals to the more leisurely life at the insane asylum.

Wurtz said that confinement in the Regional Center meant that a prisoner was placed in the hands of psychiatrists and psychologists "who can do anything they want," including force a prisoner to take drugs.

Confinement in the Regional Center also means that efforts are made to convince prisoners that they are mentally ill, Wurtz argued.

Wurtz was unable to answer questions from the judges on how transfer to the Regional Center affected inmates' chances of participating in vocational training or work programs, and admitted that he had not intended to present facts on the alleged detrimental effects of incarceration at the center.

But he contended the state laws authorizing the transfer were unconstitutional on their face and so should be struck down.

Rhino Boot Study Still On Docket

Ever seen a rhino wearing boots?

No? And you haven't even seen a rhino boot on a car, despite months of police study?

Rest assured the use of the steel devices to immobilize cars with unpaid parking tickets is still being considered, according to Police Chief George Hansen.

Hansen said, however, that purchase of the boots, which offer an alternative to towing cars, will be delayed at least until the beginning of the next fiscal year.

Inspector Dean Leitner would like to buy five of the boots, which cost at least $250 apiece.

Church Hopes For Focus On 'Active Campaigners'

By DON WALTON
Star Staff Writer

Sen. Frank Church said Wednesday he thinks Nebraska voters will choose among "the active candidates" in their presidential primary without regard for the ballot listing of Edward Kennedy and Hubert Humphrey.

And, in a sidewalk interview with newsmen in Lincoln, the Democratic presidential hopeful said Arizona Congressman Morris Udall is the man he must beat in Nebraska.

Udall is currently the leading liberal (he prefers to be called progressive) candidate for the nomination, and Church is expected to compete for roughly the same constituency.

"I think the people of this state will be focusing on the active candidates," the Idaho senator said.

"It will be a choice between those who have campaigned here. I hope the focus is on those who come and ask for their support."

Disclaimers Filed

Neither Kennedy nor Humphrey are active candidates for the Democratic nod, and both filed disclaimers in order to be removed from the Nebraska ballot.

But Secretary of State Allen Beermann attached their names to the Democratic ballot anyway — after Oregon, a state which does not allow for disclaimer of candidacy, listed them.

Jimmy Carter, the winner of five of six presidential primaries thus far, is "clearly the front runner" for the nomination, Church told newsmen while walking from a brief luncheon address to his campaign headquarters at 1332 O.

"He won most of the earlier primaries, and I give him full credit."

Not His Yet

But Carter's momentum has "not yet reached the point" where he can claim the nomination, Church said.

As the front-runner, Carter is also in "a vulnerable position," the senator noted.

"He has some high hurdles ahead as he himself knows."

The Democratic presidential campaign thus far has been "empty of content," Church said. "The issues thus far have been ignored."

Nebraska will be Church's first presidential primary bid. Eleven Democrats are listed on the May 11 ballot, but a lawsuit is pending to remove the names of Humphrey and Kennedy.

Second Visit

Church made his second trip to Nebraska Wednesday, campaigning in both Lincoln and Omaha.

In Lincoln, he spoke at a Lancaster County Democratic luncheon and formally opened his state headquarters.

"No one has achieved the kind of avalanche" needed to assure a first ballot nomination, Church told the luncheon audience.

"It will not all be settled in the East.

"I think the West can build some backfires. The candidate who carries the late primaries will have the momentum going into the convention."

'Late, Late Strategy'

Church is entering most of the late western primaries, beginning with Nebraska and concluding with California. He calls it "the late, late strategy."

Nebraska, he said, is very much like the state he represents in the Senate.

"They tell me Nebraska is a conservative state," he noted. "So is Idaho."

There is, he said, "much that's alike between our two states. I think I know something about the agricultural heartland outlook."

Labor Leaders Set Sights On New York

Omaha (AP) — Political party leaders and others say organized labor in Nebraska and Iowa has set its sights on the Democratic National Convention in New York, and its members are looking at a number of different presidential candidates.

Nebraska Democratic National Committeeman Tom Kelley of Omaha said, "Labor got a powerful lesson in 1972. When Al Barkan got to Miami in 1972, he found he didn't have votes." Barkan was the AFL-CIO's political and campaign fund raiser.

"This year I think they will get what they can from whatever camp they can," Kelley said.

Labor representatives in Nebraska are found in the camps of several presidential hopefuls.

State AFL-CIO President Bill Brennan of Omaha is running as a candidate for delegate pledged to Washington Sen. Henry Jackson. So is Richard Nisley of Roca, a representative of the Association of Operating Plasterers and Cement Masons.

Terry Moore, president of the Omaha Central Labor Union, is a delegate candidate pledged to Jimmy Carter.

Victor G. Meyers, Nebraska's political action director for the AFL-CIO, is a delegate candidate pledged to Idaho Sen. Frank Church. David Marrero, who has worked for the union in Omaha, is pledged to former Oklahoma Sen. Fred Harris.

Among those running for delegate uncommitted to any candidate are State AFL-CIO Treasurer Nels Petersen, machinists union business representative Dean Kocina, laborers union business agent Leonard Schaefer and Martin Jensen of the railway and airline clerks.

Iowa Democratic Chairman Tom Whitney of Des Moines said that about 600 of the 3,500 delegates to the party's district and state conventions have labor affiliations.

"They appear to have differing interests in terms of candidates," Whitney said. "There are some Carter people. Some were pledged to (Indiana Sen. Birch) Bayh before he dropped out. There are others for (Arizona Rep. Morris) Udall, Jackson and then others who are uncommitted."

Whitney said there are no hard lines drawn between labor and certain candidates, a condition that existed in 1972 against South Dakota Sen. George McGovern and in 1968 against other candidates.

Northwest Unit Elects Pelowski

Vernon Pelowski was elected president of the Northwest Lincoln Community Association at its annual meeting Wednesday night.

Other officers are Richard Schonberger, vice president; and Donna Sears, secretary-treasurer.

New board members were Gary Martin, Roy Beckman, Robert Marhenke, Gayle Carter, Richard Schonberger, Eugene Steele, William Smith and Darryll Brennan.

Terry Moore, president of the Omaha Central Labor Union, is a delegate candidate pledged to Jimmy Carter.

Victor G. Meyers, Nebraska's political action director for the AFL-CIO, is a delegate candidate pledged to Idaho Sen. Frank Church. David Marrero, who has worked for the union in Omaha, is pledged to former Oklahoma Sen. Fred Harris.

Among those running for delegate uncommitted to any candidate are State AFL-CIO Treasurer Nels Petersen, machinists union business representative Dean Kocina, laborers union business agent Leonard Schaefer and Martin Jensen of the railway and airline clerks.

Iowa Democratic Chairman Tom Whitney of Des Moines said that about 600 of the 3,500 delegates to the party's district and state conventions have labor affiliations.

"They appear to have differing interests in terms of candidates," Whitney said. "There are some Carter people. Some were pledged to (Indiana Sen. Birch) Bayh before he dropped out. There are others for (Arizona Rep. Morris) Udall, Jackson and then others who are uncommitted."

Whitney said there are no hard lines drawn between labor and certain candidates, a condition that existed in 1972 against South Dakota Sen. George McGovern and in 1968 against other candidates.

Plastic Natural Gas Pipes Termed Safe

Outstate Nebraska Bureau

There is no reason for public concern about the safety of plastic pipe used to distribute natural gas, the acting director of the U S Transportation Dept 's pipeline safety division said Tuesday

Such fears are part of the aftershock of the natural gas explosion last January that left 18 dead at the Pathfinder Hotel in Fremont

Caesar DeLeon, head of the pipeline division, said 7% of the pipes used in commercial distribution of natural gas in the U S are plastic, as are more than 50% of all new natural gas lines installed

"There are no grounds for immediate fears" regarding use of plastic pipe, he said Use of the pipe is "pretty well spread throughout the country," DeLeon said Industry spokesman say Omaha, Lincoln and many other Nebraska communities use the pipe

Noting that separate records on steel and plastic pipe have been kept only since 1970, DeLeon said further studies on the effect of length of time in the ground and temperature variance on plastic pipe are underway

"Based on the data we have received on significant failure of pipe lines, it appears the leak rate of plastic pipe is more than double that of steel pipe," he said

However, DeLeon said, that statistic has its good and bad sides

About 50% of natural gas explosions involving death or injury occur when a machine or tool strike a buried gas line, he said

A plus for plastic pipe is that it will break at the point of contact, leaving less chance that the leak will go undetected

Although steel pipe can withstand a much greater blow, there have been instances where the force of the blow causes a leak that shows up later farther down the line, he explained

Another plus for plastic is that it will not corrode as steel does

"There was one instance in Washington, where three people were killed and two seriously injured, involving steel pipe that was hit and didn't appear damaged," he said

Many gas utilities have switched to plastic because they believe it is easier to maintain and more economic in the long run

Statistics in the Pipeline and Gas Journal show a jump from 21 2% in 1970 to 55 8% in 1975 in use of plastic pipe for new installation

During that period, deaths due to natural gas explosions decreased from 59 in 1973 to 24 in 1974 and 14 last year

DeLeon said other factors affect those statistics, but it is evident that severe accidents have not increased immediately with the advent of plastic pipe

One critical installation problem with plastic pipe is joining in to conventional steel pipe, which is necessary because conventional metering systems have not been adapted to plastic

The National Transportation Safety Board's (NTSB) report on the Fremont disaster said such a coupling pulling apart caused the gas leak that fueled the explosion

There are two types of fittings used to join the pipe

—Transition fittings made at the factory which claims the pipe will break before the coupling pulls apart

—Compression fittings done at the site

In its report on the tragedy the NTSB said a compression fitting was used on the 348-foot segment connecting the hotel to the gas main

E I Du Pont De Nemours & Co produces more than half of all polyethelene plastic pipe in the United States and supplied that used in Fremont The report quoted Du Pont s hand book regarding the coupling of its pipe

"Since inserted pipe is not restricted in linear movement as in direct burial, the effect of expansion and contraction must be considered when using compression-type fittings

"In relatively short service runs (100 feet), properly tightened fittings wil hold over a normal temperature range, however, in longer runs positive transition fittings may be required to prevent pull-out '

The coupling failure is the heart of litigation following the disaster Nebraska Natural Gas Co , officials testified that they followed the manufacturer s installation instructions in Fremont

Tobacco Equated With Bread For Children

Washington (UPI) — Tobacco state congressmen arguing tobacco means bread for children and questioning any connection between smoking and lung cancer Wednesday defended cigarettes against a proposed $9 3 billion health tax

The tax proposed by Sens Edward Kennedy D-Mass and Gary Hart D-Colo would be phased in over four years and by 1980 would increase the average price of a pack of cigarettes from 45 cents to 75 cents

Rep Walter B Jones D-N C , chairman of the House subcommittee on tobacco told Kennedy s health subcommittee "I beg you not to cripple or endanger the livelihood of several million people including the farmer manufacturers, trucking industry and the retail shops by threatening their existence through excessive taxation

Rep Dawson Mathis D-Ga , a member of the tobacco subcommittee, added tobacco puts bread on the table and buys books for the children" of rural Georgia

Rep Don Fuqua, D-Fla one of several lawmakers disputing the health case against cigarettes said, ' To my knowledge no scientists or group of scientists has reported a study finding any substance as found in cigarette smoke that causes lung cancer or other disease "

He drew vigorous opposition from Hart, who cited past surgeons general reports indicting smoking as a major cause of lung cancer

Opposition witnesses argued the bill would destroy the tobacco industry but Sen Frank E Moss, D-Utah, called such arguments 'diversionary "

We must redouble our efforts to bring home to the American public and especially our young people the addictive misery of cigarette smoking, ' he told the subcommittee

' But we also can and must utilize every responsible avenue for stimulating and accelerating the movement toward progressively less hazardous cigarettes "

Kennedy and Hart say their proposed tax on the tar and nicotine content of cigarettes would encourage further reductions of these substances by the industry and the funds generated by the tax could be used for increased research on cancer and heart and lung diseases

Kennedy elicited from each of a half dozen tobacco state witnesses that they knew of no adverse impact on the industry because of its continuing reductions of tar and nicotine content in cigarettes

Social Security Tax Hike, Tax Cut Nixed

Washington (UPI) — The House Budget Committee voted tentatively Wednesday to reject President Ford s proposal to cut individual and corporate taxes another $11 5 billion next year

It also rejected Ford s proposed increase in Social Security payroll taxes

The next effect of these and other changes the committee adopted by voice vote would be to put federal revenues for 1977 at $363 billion, $11 7 billion higher than the $351 3 billion Ford recommended

It was the first major decision by the committe, which is reviewing the federal budget However, it could be changed after the panel decides on spending figures

The tentative committee action extends 1975 tax cuts which are still in effect

Ford wants to increase Social Security payroll taxes — paid partly by employers and partly by employes — by 0 6% to help insure the Social Security Trust Fund doesn t run out of money

Democrats argue the payroll tax would hit low-income groups the hardest and fairer ways of raising the money could be made

House OKs Exempting Custom Wheat Cutters

Washington (UPI) — The House Wednesday passed on a voice vote and sent to the White House a bill designed to exempt custom wheat harvesters from regulations which some harvest crews said would keep them out of the Great Plains fields this spring

Under the pending regulations, the custom harvest operators would have been classified as migrant farm worker crew leaders

They would have been required to register with the Labor Department through state employment services and to certify compliance with a list of 25 transportation, insurance, housing safety and other regulations

The Senate Tuesday approved an amendment exempting custom combine operators, hay harvesters and sheep shearers from the proposed regulations

3 Nebraskans Vote To Reject D.C. Amendment

Washington (AP) — Nebraska s representatives voted on the winning side Tuesday as the House failed to approve a constitutional amendment for voting representation for the District of Columbia in Congress

Reps John McCollister, Virginia Smith and Charles Thone, all Republicans, voted no The 229-181 vote was 45 short of the required two-thirds for approval

Pension Boost Repeal Asked

Washington (AP) — President Ford asked Congress Wednesday for a prompt repeal of provisions in pension laws that boost federal retirement pay beyond the amounts needed to keep pace with rising living costs

In a special message, Ford noted that present pensions under both civilian and military retirement systems are boosted by an extra 1% automatically each time they are recalculated to reflect changes in the cost of living

Reporting that the extra percentage point has added $1 6 billion to retirement payments since 1969, Ford said, "It is neither appropriate nor fiscally responsible for the federal government to continue to provide such an added benefit '

Two Bishops Favor Ban On Abortion

WASHINGTON (AP) — Two prominent Catholic bishops urged a House subcommittee Wednesday to pass a constitutional amendment that would ban abortions from the moment of conception

Terence Cardinal Cooke of New York, chairman of the Catholic Bishops' Comittee for Prolife Activities, said the Supreme Court's decision liberalizing abortion is a terrible violation of human rights for the unborn

' Today abortion is advocated by some as a solution to such problems as poverty, the denial of women s rights and child abuse " said Cardinal Cooke

Abortion does not remove the cause of these or other problems

"If we wish to eradicate poverty, let us destroy the causes of poverty — not destroy the life of the poor and defenseless unborn child, he said ' If we wish to correct violations of women s rights let us do so — not violate the right of the unborn child to continue living "

Archbishop L Bernardin of Cincinnati president of the National Conference of Catholic Bishops and the U S Catholic Conference, said abortion is not bad simply because the Catholic or any other church says it is wrong

"Abortion is wrong in and of itself, he said "But with the approval of law, and the sanction of the nation s highest court, one million human lives are destroyed each year by abortion' in this nation

The House Judiciary subcommittee has been holding hearings on whether to amend the Constitution on abortion

Gun Control Salvaged

Washington (UPI) — The House crime subcommittee Wednesday salvaged a gun control bill that would ban the manufacture, sale and importation of small, cheap handguns and impose mandatory sentences on criminals who use guns

The panel voted 5 to 2 to report the measure to the Judiciary Committee which killed a similar bill earlier this month by one vote

Other features of the bill include tougher federal licensing regulations for gun dealers, longer waiting periods for handgun purchasers, and the creation of a National Handgun Tracing Center to monitor handgun transactions

Blacks, Women Win Seniority Victory In High Court

Washington (UPI) — The Supreme Court handed blacks and women a major victory Wednesday holding that persons denied employment solely because of their race or sex are entitled to special seniority treatment

The 5-3 ruling means that people otherwise qualified for employment who were not hired because of illegal discrimination can skip past fellow workers on the seniority ladder to the level they would have achieved had they been hired originally

Employes denied transfers to better paying positions who also can prove illegal discrimination presumably can jump over fellow workers when they are transferred if different seniority lists are used

The decision helps remedy the complaint that women and minorities are always the first laid off because they are the last hired and are low on the seniority scale

But the majority opinion by Justice William J Brennan Jr involves only those persons who can show they were personally discriminated against The justices did not discuss whether minorities and women hired to meet affirmative action quotas are also entitled to a seniority jump

In two other major rulings the court upheld the Pentagon's authority to ban political activity on military bases and said servicemen are not constitutionally entitled to a lawyer during summary court martial

The majority said military bases are not public forums for political activity In the court martial ruling Justice William H Rehnquist said the procedures are not criminal and therefore no lawyer is required

In the discrimination case Brennan held that the 1964 civil rights act permits courts to award retroactive seniority All eight participating justices agreed but Brennan drew dissents from three when he added that the normal course is to make the award unless the employer can show it would be inappropriate

Brennan suggested that courts can protect the rights of other workers who would be placed lower in seniority by requiring extra payment if they are laid off or through other action against the employer

In any event he said "We find untenable the conclusion that this form of relief may be denied merely because the interests of other employes may thereby be affected"

The majority held that the 1964 civil rights act seeks to make whole any victims of employment discrimination and gives courts wide leeway to reach that goal

In other opinions the court

Ruled 6 to 2 that nonprofit hospitals may take advantage of an antitrust exemption in their drug purchases if the preparations are dispensed only to patients employes or doctors for personal use

Ruled unanimously that federal courts may rule on water claims by the United States even though state agencies are considering the same claims

IRS Says It's Auditing Sen. Montoya's 1040

Washington (UPI) — Internal Revenue Service sources said Wednesday the service is auditing the income tax returns of Sen Joseph Montoya D N M head of a subcommittee that reviews the IRS budget

Montoya however said the IRS has not notified him of any such audit as it is supposed to do and his spokesman said the senator therefore assumes no audit is underway even though he does not fear one

The IRS sources said the audit was ordered this month after a four month Treasury Department investigation into allegations that IRS Commissioner Donald Alexander blocked audits of Montoya's tax returns for two years

Montoya a millionaire has had no income tax audit since 1950 Audits are considered normal procedure for taxpayers of Montoya's wealth

Last fall it was reported that Alexander acted at least five times over two years to delay or curtail a review of the senator's tax returns allegedly because of his power over the IRS budget

The Justice Department investigation is reportedly reviewing the Treasury Department investigation of these allegations to see whether Alexander should be charged with obstructing proceedings before a federal agency Charges are considered unlikely however

Ex-IRS Agents Accused Of Not Filing Tax Returns

(c) Chicago Daily News

Chicago — Two former Internal Revenue Service agents are among seven men indicted for failure to file federal income tax returns in unrelated cases

Those indicted also include a Chicago court reporter three Chicago area businessmen and a former deputy Kankakee County (Ill) coroner

The indictments were part of a federal crackdown designed to serve as a warning to other Chicago area taxpayers in advance of next month's deadline for filing federal tax returns

The former IRS agents indicted were Martin A Jennings of Chicago and Ronald T Garrity of Ottawa Ill

Jennings now a self-employed accountant was charged with failure to file in 1969 1970 and 1971 Garrity manager of the Indian Acres Supper Club in Ottawa was accused of failing to file in 1971 1972 and 1973 on total income of $179 000

Blacks, Women Win Seniority Victory In High Court

Washington (UPI) — The Supreme Court handed blacks and women a major victory Wednesday, holding that persons denied employment solely because of their race or sex are entitled to special seniority treatment.

The 5-3 ruling means that people otherwise qualified for employment who were not hired because of illegal discrimination can skip past fellow workers on the seniority ladder to the level they would have achieved had they been hired originally.

Employes denied transfers to better paying positions who also can prove illegal discrimination presumably can jump over fellow workers when they are transferred if different seniority lists are used.

The decision helps remedy the complaint that women and minorities are always the first laid off because they are the last hired and are low on the seniority scale.

But the majority opinion by Justice William J. Brennan Jr. involves only those persons who can show they were personally discriminated against. The justices did not discuss whether minorities and women hired to meet "affirmative action" quotas are also entitled to a seniority jump.

In two other major rulings, the court upheld the Pentagon's authority to ban political activity on military bases, and said servicemen are not constitutionally entitled to a lawyer during summary courts-martial.

The majority said military bases are not "public forums" for political activity. In the court-martial ruling, Justice William H. Rehnquist said the procedures are not criminal, and therefore no lawyer is required.

In the discrimination case, Brennan held that the 1964 civil rights act permits courts to award retroactive seniority. All eight participating justices agreed, but Brennan drew dissents from three when he added that the normal course is to make the award unless the employer can show it would be inappropriate.

Brennan suggested that courts can protect the rights of other workers who would be placed lower in seniority by requiring extra payment if they are laid off or through other action against the employer.

In any event, he said, "We find untenable the conclusion that this form of relief may be denied merely because the interests of other employes may thereby be affected."

The majority held that the 1964 civil rights act seeks to "make whole" any victims of employment discrimination, and gives courts wide leeway to reach that goal.

In other opinions the court:

—Ruled 6 to 2 that nonprofit hospitals may take advantage of an antitrust exemption in their drug purchases if the preparations are dispensed only to patients, employes or doctors for personal use.

—Ruled unanimously that federal courts may rule on water claims by the United States even though state agencies are considering the same claims.

IRS Says It's Auditing Sen. Montoya's 1040

Washington (UPI) — Internal Revenue Service sources said Wednesday the service is auditing the income tax returns of Sen. Joseph Montoya, D-N.M., head of a subcommittee that reviews the IRS budget.

Montoya, however, said the IRS has not notified him of any such audit, as it is supposed to do, and his spokesman said the senator therefore assumes no audit is underway even though "he does not fear one."

The IRS sources said the audit was ordered this month after a four-month Treasury Department investigation into allegations that IRS Commissioner Donald Alexander blocked audits of Montoya's tax returns for two years.

Montoya, a millionaire, has had no income tax audit since 1950. Audits are considered normal procedure for taxpayers of Montoya's wealth.

Last fall, it was reported that Alexander acted at least five times over two years to delay or curtail a review of the senator's tax returns, allegedly because of his power over the IRS budget.

The Justice Deparmtnet investigation is reportedly reviewing the Treasury Department investigation of these allegations to see whether Alexander should be charged with obstructing proceedings before a federal agency. Charges are considered unlikely, however.

Ex-IRS Agents Accused Of Not Filing Tax Returns

(c) Chicago Daily News

Chicago — Two former Internal Revenue Service agents are among seven men indicted for failure to file federal income tax returns in unrelated cases.

Those indicted also include a Chicago court reporter, three Chicago area businessmen and a former deputy Kankakee County (Ill.) coroner.

The indictments were part of a federal crackdown designed to serve as a warning to other Chicago area taxpayers in advance of next month's deadline for filing federal tax returns.

The former IRS agents indicted were Martin A. Jennings of Chicago, and Ronald T. Garrity of Ottawa, Ill.

Jennings, now a self-employed accountant, was charged with failure to file in 1969, 1970 and 1971. Garrity, manager of the Indian Acres Supper Club in Ottawa, was accused of failing to file in 1971, 1972 and 1973 on total income of $179,000.

Italian Opera Must Cancel Tour Of U.S.

ROME (AP) — A planned United States tour by Milan's La Scala opera company has been canceled because of Italy's financial problems, the Ministry of Tourism and Entertainment announced.

Adolfo Sari, minister of tourism and entertainment, told officials of La Scala in a letter the original budget for the planned tour "has substantially increased" since it was first made.

"In view of this and of the the country's delicate financial and economic situation, we are compelled to cancel the tour. The Italian Foreign Ministry will inform American authorities about this decision."

Marines Want More Firepower

Washington (AP) — A Marine board recommended Wednesday that the Corps be armed with more firepower and be tailored to fight in Europe, the Middle East or anywhere else.

The board's proposals are designed to shift the focus of the Marine Corps from Vietnam-style "low-intensity" conflict in the Asian-Pacific area to readiness for battle with Soviet or other forces heavily equipped with tanks and airpower.

In effect, the Marine Corps would be shaped into a strategic reserve.

1975 Balance Of Payments In Black

Washington UPI — For the first time since the government began keeping its current balance of payment records the United States spent less money abroad in 1975 than other countries spent here the Commerce Department said Wednesday

The nation's basic balance of payments — a broad measure of the flow of money and goods between the United States and other countries — was $1.4 billion in the black last year the first annual surplus since current record keeping began in 1960

That balance formally known as the balance on current account and long term capital was a near record $10.7 billion in deficit in 1974

Commerce said the basic balance was in surplus for the year largely as a result of favorable showings in the second and third quarters when there were surpluses of almost $1 billion and $1.4 billion

The balance was nearly $1 billion in deficit in the first quarter and recorded only a minimal deficit in the fourth

For the average American the balance of payments is little more than an indicator of inflationary trends

Ideally the outflow of money and goods should match the inflow A deficit usually indicates the country is spending or buying too much outside its own borders This often leads to inflation

A surplus helps to ease domestic inflation but frequently transfers it to other countries

This equality in balance almost occurred in the last three months of 1975 Commerce said the basic balance was $4 million in deficit

The Commerce Department has three other ways to determine the balance of payments One other measure the balance on current account was $11.9 billion in surplus This balance was $3.4 billion in deficit in 1974

The other two measures which were released last month used to be considered important when the country was under a fixed monetary rate but the Commerce Department has started to phase them out

Two Acts To 'Help' Consumer

Washington AP — Two more statutes attacking credit discrimination and misleading leasing plans will help give all consumers a far fairer shake President Ford says

Ford signed the legislation — the Consumer Leasing Act and an amendment to the Equal Credit Opportunity Act — in a ceremony in the White House Rose Garden

The first law will prevent agencies that lease cars and other products from tacking unexpectedly heavy charges on to the end of a customer's lease

It requires leasing agencies to give customers more details on the leasing arrangements including the number and size of lease payments insurance fees and any other charges not included in the periodic payments

The equal credit amendment expands the original act by banning credit discrimination based on race color religion national origin and age The act already outlawed credit discrimination based on sex or marital status

Speed-Up Of Inflation Is Predicted

WASHINGTON (AP) — A top government economist Wednesday warned that inflation will accelerate later this year as the economy continues its recovery from recession

Julius Shiskin commissioner of labor statistics predicted that if the recovery continues with employment and production picking up the pace of inflation will accelerate He said this has been the pattern in past recoveries and I think it will happen again

Shiskin also said during a breakfast meeting with reporters that while he believes unemployment will continue to decline he would not be surprised if the jobless rate edged up slightly this month

Shiskin's inflation outlook follows a prediction last week by Treasury Secretary William E Simon that the inflation rate could fall off to about 2 within two or three years

The nation's inflation rate has not been below 2 since 1965 when price increases averaged 1.9 Prices rose 6.9 last year and the administration is forecasting a 5.9 increase in 1976

Marianas Become U.S. Commonwealth

WASHINGTON AP — President Ford signed a measure Wednesday giving self governing commonwealth status to 21 northern Marianas islands in the western Pacific the scene of bitter fighting during World War II.

It was the first time in 51 years that the United States has acquired new territory

The Marianas part of an island group known as Micronesia have been administered by the United States since World War II under United Nations trusteeship They include Saipan scene of bloody fighting in that war and Tinian the takeoff point for the U S plane that dropped the first atomic bomb on Japan

The covenant was signed by Ford in White House ceremonies attended by island representatives and members of Congress It makes the Marianas a self governing commonwealth under the sovereignty of the United States with their status resembling that of Puerto Rico

U S citizenship will be available to the 14,500 inhabitants who will formulate their own constitution and government but cannot vote in U S presidential elections The United States will retain authority over foreign affairs and defense matters for the islands

The people of the Marianas in a plebiscite last June voted 78.8 in favor of commonwealth status and it was approved by both the U S House and Senate

Ford currently engaged in primary election battles said he admired the margin by which the Marianas voted and laughingly said It wouldn't be bad to have in 76

He extended his personal greetings and best wishes to the people of the islands as you move closer to the goal of self-government within the political framework of the American family

Carter Heads North To Take On Udall, Jackson; Reagan Rests

CARTER SMILES . . . and talks to retired worker in Milwaukee about Social Security. UPI

By United Press International

Ronald Reagan rested in California Wednesday with his first primary win, but the form of his future campaign was a mystery. Jimmy Carter put his second Southern victory behind him and headed north to face Morris Udall in Wisconsin and Henry Jackson in New York.

Udall promised Carter the "fight of his life" in the Wisconsin primary. A badly battered George Wallace scrapped his campaign strategy in an effort to stay in the Democratic race.

Reagan, who scored his first victory over President Ford in North Carolina's primary Tuesday, injected a note of mystery into the political picture by cancelling his campaign schedule for next week to prepare for a nationally televised speech.

Reagan, after scoring a decisive 52 to 46% win, said he was delighted and added he would "continue to campaign."

But there were indications of a severe money shortage which led to speculation Reagan will make a plea for money in his national address or announce that he will limit himself to selected primaries.

Milan Bish, Reagan's Nebraska campaign chairman, said he was informed that the former California governor was reorganizing his national strategy to give state organizations more control over planning and fund raising.

"The Reagan campaign is finding it extremely expensive to do what we had to do in North Carolina to win, for example," Bish said. "I think you are going to see the governor bouncing all around the country rather than concentrating on one specific area for a prolonged period of time."

Ford Surprised

Ford, who had won five straight and expected to annex North Carolina, conceded he was surprised at Reagan's victory.

But he told some 95 Texas Republican workers in the Rose Garden of the White House that the defeat in North Carolina will not stop his drive for the nomination.

"It is my judgment that in the final conclusion, it will not," Ford said answering a question he posed to himself.

Faced with his first loss since starting in politics in 1948 and the first campaigning president to lose a primary since Harry Truman in 1952, Ford said "there have been Wednesday mornings that have been better."

Carter, the former governor of Georgia who crushed Wallace in North Carolina 54 to 35% and picked up his fifth primary win in six outings, went north for the twin primaries in Wisconsin and New York April 6.

Carter Sees 'Broad Base'

Tuesday, he said North Carolina established that he had "a broad base of support . . . that can take me all the way to the nomination and give me a good chance to win next November."

He said it was "another indication that the people are going to make the choice this year and won't let the political bigshots get involved in horse trading."

Udall, the leading liberal still in contention, admitted he did not know if he could stop Carter in Wisconsin but added "Gov. Carter is in for the fight of his life here.

"He'd like me to go off to the sidelines for a quiet funeral, but I'm not going to do it," Udall said. "I'm not going to fall over and play dead."

In Montgomery, Ala., Wallace announced a dramatic shift in the campaign strategy which served him well in previous campaigns for the White House but has proved disastrous so far. He fired 31 campaign workers and announced that would no longer hold rallies — the staple of his campaign

Alton Dauphin, the campaign finance director, said "it's expensive to put on a rally and you talk to 1,500 people . . . you take the same amount of money and put it into radio and television and you reach 160,000."

Wallace said he would campaign actively in Wisconsin and "as it stands now" he would carry on all the way to July's national convention.

Reagan Camp Turns Tables

Washington (UPI) — Turnabout is fair play.

And supporters of Ronald Reagan's bid for the presidency did just that Wednesday.

The American Conservative Union has turned the tables and asked for the withdrawal of President Ford from the race "in the interests of Republican Party unity."

The message was exactly the same as that sent last week to the Reagan camp after Reagan's defeat in Illinois.

Humphrey Calls Candidates' Washington Attacks 'New Racism'

©The New York Times

Washington — Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey charged Wednesday that presidential candidates who run against Washington in the primaries are practicing "a disguised new form of racism" but denied that his remarks were directed at Jimmy Carter.

"Candidates who make an attack on Washington," Humphrey told a reporters' breakfast, "are making an attack on government programs, on the poor, on blacks, on minorities, on the cities. It's a disguised new form of racism, a disguised new form of conservatism."

Pressed later to say whether he included Carter's frequent attacks on Washington in this category, the Minnesota Democrat replied: "I was primarily talking about Reagan and Ford. I was not charging anybody with being a racist."

Still later in response to further questions, Humphrey said: "Jimmy Carter is no racist, there is nothing in his record to support that." He added that he would have "no difficulty" in supporting either Carter or Sen. Henry M. Jackson if one of them won the Democratic nomination.

As for his own possible candidacy, the party's 1968 nominee said that "if the primaries do not produce a genuine winner or someone who looks like he's going to lock it up in a hurry, I would surely accept the call of my party."

This appeared to be a withdrawal of sorts from recent Humphrey statements that he would actively seek the nomination if, after the last round of primaries in early June, convention strength remained divided among several candidates and he remained high in the polls.

Humphrey said Wednesday morning that it was "probable, possible" that the primaries would not produce a candidate.

"My feeling is that this is still not a certainty," he added. No one has that kind of strength."

Either Jackson or Carter would have to win both the New York and Pennsylvania primaries in April to assume a commanding lead, Humphrey said. He predicted that California Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr. would win his state's primary handily and gain more credibility if he ran in Ohio.

"Do you see a winner among the present Democratic candidates?" Humphrey was asked.

"I think President Ford's going to be hard to beat," he replied.

"Would you like to say anything more about that?" another questioner asked.

"That's enough," he replied.

As for the reluctance of some liberal Democrats to accept Carter, the current front-runner, Humphrey observed that liberals are very demanding: they want to see you suffer to prove your purity.

Judge Binds Man Over In Parking Lot Shooting

Booker Leon Robinson Wednesday was bound over to Lancaster District Court for trial for first degree murder in the Feb. 2 shooting death of Omahan Archie Robinson.

Lancaster County Judge Jeffre Cheuvront ordered that Robinson be arraigned on April 9 and ordered that Robinson continue to be held without bond.

Cheuvront took the action after a preliminary hearing of more than two hours Wednesday afternoon in which two witnesses to the shooting testified.

Marlene Perkins, who said she was a close friend of the dead man, began crying on the witness stand, but told Cheuvront she did not want to take a recess, saying, "I want to get this over with."

Booker Leon Robinson is charged with shooting Archie Robinson in a parking lot behind an apartment building at 1635 F with a pistol.

The shooting took place after the men argued occasionally through the afternoon and evening, according to Lancaster County Attorney Ron Lahners.

Legislature Advances Pesticide Use Bill

By United Press International

A bill which was described as a "reasonable" attempt to comply with Environmental Protection Agency regulations for applying chemical pesticides received 27-0 first round approval in the Legislature Wednesday.

The measure, LB332, mandates educating and training commercial applicators in the safe use of restricted pesticides.

Private applicators, however, would not have to attend any training session or take examinations to establish competency. At the time they bought the pesticides, they would only have to complete a certificate stating they are knowledgeable in the use and application of the restricted chemicals.

Training sessions for commercial applicators would be handled under the direction of the Cooperative Extension Service of the University of Nebraska. The state agriculture director would issue the certificates to them after the training and successful completion of a written examination.

Also approved was the bill's companion funding measure calling for an appropriation of $225,000 for next year.

Sen. Loran Schmit of Bellwood, chairman of the Agriculture Committee which prepared LB332, admitted it would not meet all EPA demands "but we feel this bill is a reasonable alternative."

The EPA approach, he said, would entail spending millions of dollars, although the state has an excellent record in use of the pesticides.

The lawmakers turned down two proposed amendments from Big Springs Sen. Jack Mills. One would have required anyone handling restricted chemicals to be trained, and the second would have forced private applicators to attend a training session.

Sen. John DeCamp of Neligh said the EPA has threatened to take away certain pesticides if the state does not come into compliance with EPA regulations but has never specified which chemicals would be involved.

Mills said the bill is another example of the state being "coerced" by the federal government into putting something into law it doesn't need or want. Colorado recently killed a similar bill, he said.

Sen. Ernest Chambers

Chambers Seeks Study Of Abortions

State Sen. Ernest Chambers is sponsoring an interim study to look into abortions in Nebraska since the 1973 U.S. Supreme Court ruling allowing abortions on demand within the first six months of pregnancy.

Chambers said his proposed study, which would be conducted by the Judiciary Committee, will not deal with the moral issue of abortion but instead with the conditions under which abortions are performed.

"The study will not deal with being for or against abortion," Chambers said in an interview.

"I don't think there has been developed any concrete, medical information on abortions in this state," he added.

"The inquiry will be based on where abortions are being performed, by whom and under what circumstances. We will be looking to see if there has been any change in the mortality rate among prospective mothers since the ruling."

The resolution directs itself at whether illegal abortions are being performed by people who are not doctors.

The resolution states, "There is a deep concern that abortions may be performed by individuals who are unlicensed medical practitioners."

The committee would attempt to produce "any evidence which would tend to determine the number and location of any institutions or individuals in this state performing illegal abortions."

According to State Health Department figures, roughly 3,400 abortions were performed in Nebraska last year by licensed physicians.

Bill Would Give Safe Water Clout To State

Lincoln (AP) — The Legislature voted 26-13 preliminary approval Wednesday to a bill which would give the Department of Health authority to set maximum levels for harmful substances allowed in water supplies.

If the state passes the law, state officials would administer the Safe Drinking Water Act instead of federal authorities.

There was no mention of specific pollutants during the debate, but some senators said nitrogen was the chief problem with water supplies in Nebraska. The nitrogen enters the underground water supply after being used in agricultural fertilizers.

Big Springs Sen. Jack Mills lost 16-24 in an attempt to kill the bill.

"I don't think I like it any better than anybody else," said Aurora Sen. Maurice Kremer, who served as floor leader for the bill. But he said he feared the federal authorities would be more strict than state officials if they administered the act.

Adams Sen. George Burrows said he objected to the penalty section of the bill which would allow for a fine of up to $5,000 for violations.

Exon: Senators' Spending Could Mean Tax Increases

Gov. J. James Exon predicted Wednesday that legislative spending trends could dictate an increase in the state sales tax from 2½ to 3 cents and the state income tax from 15 to 18% next.

Legislative spending proposals given preliminary approval thus far total $465 million for expenditure in 1976-77. That is $24 million above the revenue the legislative fiscal analyst has projected, and $14 million above the more optimistic revenue projections offered by State Tax Commissioner William E. Peters.

Exon urged taxpayers to write, phone or telegram their senators if they want to avoid a tax increase next year.

First OK Given To Legal Help, Audit Proposal

The Legislature Wednesday voted 25-13 preliminary approval of a bill designed to reorganize legislative staff and provide lawmakers with legal counsel and performance auditors.

Under the proposal, LB799, the state auditor would continue to keep track of agencies' books, but Unicameral staff members would assess the performance of the agencies.

Utica Sen. Douglas Bereuter was successful in adding the amendment that would provide the Legislature with a staff attorney.

Bereuter said the lawyer was needed because opinions issued by the attorney general's office are sometimes incorrect.

The bill also would allow the Unicameral to hire an executive director to manage the staff.

Bill Will Allow State To Get In On Projects

The Unicameral gave first round approval Wednesday to legislation which would allow the state to get directly involved in the Bureau of Reclamation's Norden Dam and North Loup projects.

Sent over its first floor hurdle on a 27-0 vote was Neligh Sen. John DeCamp's LB779.

Under it, the State Game and Parks Commission could enter into contracts with the Reclamation Bureau for the recreational aspects of the two central Nebraska irrigation projects.

The legislation would appropriate no state money.

Change Planned In Liability Fund

Bellwood Sen. Loran Schmit said Wednesday he would offer a major amendment to his medical malpractice insurance bill, to make sure a liability fund contains enough money to pay malpractice awards.

The Excess Liability Fund required in LB434 has been a key target of critics, including Columbus Sen. Donald Dworak. As written, the bill would have allowed those with malpractice claims to receive only prorated payments if the fund were short of money.

Legislature Advances Pesticide Use Bill

By United Press International

A bill which was described as a "reasonable" attempt to comply with Environmental Protection Agency regulations for applying chemical pesticides received 27-0 first round approval in the Legislature Wednesday.

The measure, LB332, mandates educating and training commercial applicators in the safe use of restricted pesticides.

Private applicators, however, would not have to attend any training session or take examinations to establish competency. At the time they bought the pesticides, they would only have to complete a certificate stating they are knowledgeable in the use and application of the restricted chemicals.

Training sessions for commercial applicators would be handled under the direction of the Cooperative Extension Service of the University of Nebraska. The state agriculture director would issue the certificates to them after the training and successful completion of a written examination.

Also approved was the bill's companion funding measure calling for an appropriation of $225,000 for next year.

Sen. Loran Schmit of Bellwood, chairman of the Agriculture Committee which prepared LB332, admitted it would not meet all EPA demands "but we feel this bill is a reasonable alternative."

The EPA approach, he said, would entail spending millions of dollars, although the state has an excellent record in use of the pesticides.

The lawmakers turned down two proposed amendments from Big Springs Sen. Jack Mills. One would have required anyone handling restricted chemicals to be trained, and the second would have forced private applicators to attend a training session.

Sen. John DeCamp of Neligh said the EPA has threatened to take away certain pesticides if the state does not come into compliance with EPA regulations but has never specified which chemicals would be involved.

Mills said the bill is another example of the state being "coerced" by the federal government into putting something into law it doesn't need or want. Colorado recently killed a similar bill, he said.

Mid-Calf Skating Skirt Once Daring

ADELLE BOUCHER . . . skates solo number in Ice Capades.

Quite a contrast from the dazzling brief costumes of today! But the mid-calf length ice skating costume was considered daring in 1916.

According to available information, the famed skater, Charlotte, led the "daring move" toward shorter hemlines.

When Charlotte brought her troupe to New York in 1916 to present the first great ice spectacular, she wrote:

"One should as soon think of swimming in a long skirt as skating in one. The skirt which reaches to the middle of the calf will be found both comfortable and graceful."

Although for some time women had rebelled against the cumbersome toe-length skirts for ice skating, Charlotte led the move upward — inch by inch.

Today she probably would have been a leader in the feminist movement, for in the forward of her 1916 book, "The Hippodrome Skating Book," she stressed that women are capable of skating as well as men.

"There are no physical reasons why women should not skate quite as well as men. Skating is a matter of balance and grace, not strength. Up to a few years ago, the figure skating championships of Europe were open to both men and women on equal terms. Perhaps the fact that women excelled in grace was partially responsible for the separation of the sexes in these championships."

Ice skating dates back to ancient times in the Scandinavian countries when blades of animal bones were used for skating.

Metal runners have been traced to the Netherlands where sturdy folk used them as their only method of traversing frozen canals. The skate was up until the middle of the 19th century a wooden footboard with a metal runner which reached only to the middle of the heel.

With the skates, skating backward was an impossibility.

When the first American skating club was formed in Philadelphia in 1849, a group of surgical instrument manufacturers pondered a new outlet for steel and created all-steel skates.

The first all-steel skates cost about $50 a pair and were fastened to the boot with screw clamps. It wasn't until 1863 that the skate as part of a boot was developed by an American skater, Jackson Haines.

This invention led him to dabble in the first figure skating as it is known today, and his basic pattern for figure skates is still used.

In 1911, Sweden developed the saw-teeth on the toe point.

CHARLOTTE . . . daring for 1916.

Learning 48 State Capitals Not Fair

By CARROLL DUNSTON

During the Second World War, our countries were allies. Of course, I didn't know about such things then, but I inherited the benefits just the same.

In sixth grade, I had my first unpleasant feeling toward the United States. This was due to the simple fact that we were required to memorize the then 48 states and their capital cities, and my friends and I grumbled about the gross unfairness of our having to fill in such a map when our southern neighbors had to learn only 10 provinces!

About this time, I went through a stage of feeling very competitive over Canada and the U.S.—cheering loudly for the Toronto Maple Leafs and rejoicing when our dollar was worth more (even though it meant that my Christmas money from American relatives suffered slightly from crossing the border). To me, the Queen of England was a far more romantic and awesome figure than the president of the United States!

Speaking of crossing the border, that was generally interesting and inconsequential. The biggest excitement for my brother and me was to try to figure out the exact point at which we left one country and entered the next. We marvelled that the underwater tunnel between Windsor and Detroit split the river in half and loved to see the two flags at the center. From Sault Ste. Marie to "The Peace Arch" it was all fun!

Only once do I remember a look of consternation on my father's face. I was about eight years old at the time, and I'll never forget stuffing ourselves with plums and peaches. Reluctantly we threw the remainder away with the sad knowledge that it is illegal to take fresh fruit across the border!

The second shock came when we spent the summer in New York state and then returned to Canada. My brother and I could not keep our newly acquired three-speed bicycles because the duty tax was so great. Aside from these disillusioning experiences, I grew up with no hard feelings toward or fear of our more powerful neighbor while managing to remain intensely patriotic to the country of my birth.

Not until my brother obtained a permanent visa to the United States so that he could work off campus at the college he was attending did the first major obstacle arise. He had to register for the draft, and one semester when he was taking slightly less that the required minimum number of class hours he was called up. A combination of factors prevented his being shipped to Vietnam, but he was reluctant, to say the least, to fight for a "foreign" country on foreign soil.

For 10 years now, I have enjoyed the benefits of living in two of the now 50 states, and it no longer bothers me that there are five times as many American states as Canadian provinces. A few months ago, my parents were sworn in as U.S. citizens in Michigan, and I have begun the process of changing allegiance myself. I figure that if my father could change countries and citizenship three times and each time enthusiastically, I could brave the transition once.

I must confess it is not as painful as I had formerly thought. The "Star-Spangled Banner" sounds more familiar to me now than "God Save the Queen." And the sight of the Stars and Stripes waving inspires me with as much patriotism as once the Union Jack had. (I never did get used to the maple leaf!)

Why didn't I change sooner? Well, as a permanent resident, I had all the rights of a citizen, including Social Security, except the privilege of voting. And, then, there was a strong sense of loyalty to the country of my birth, to which I thought we might return some day. Aside from these matters, there is one benefit in having weaited 10 years to declare my new allegiance — it will be a distinct honor to join this great nation in the year of its bicentennial celebration!

Opening lead — nine of hearts.

"What can defeat me?" is a question every declarer should ask himself, even when there seems to be only a remote chance of defeat. If the answer is that some distributions, however unlikely, would put the contract in jeopardy, declarer should start looking for methods of play that can overcome these distributions.

Consider this deal where — without seeing the East-West cards — it seems highly probable that South will make 12 or 13 tricks. That would be the outcome in most deals — since the missing diamonds and clubs would be divided 2-2 or 3-1 more than 80 per cent of the time.

But South has no right to assume that either suit is divided favorably, and from the start he should cater to the possibility of a 4-0 division in one suit or the other.

Accordingly, he wins the heart lead with the ace and discards another heart on the ace of spades. He must obviously play trumps next, and, as there is no way of avoiding a trump loser if either opponent has all four of them, he starts to draw trumps by cashing first the ace and then the queen.

When the diamonds prove to be divided 2-2, South's only remaining concern is a 4-0 club division. He cannot protect against West having all four of them, so he proceeds on the assumption that East has them.

He plays the four of clubs from dummy and, when East produces the three, he plays the deuce from his hand! As a result he makes the slam, losing only a club trick. Note that declarer goes down if he fails to make the safety play.

If East plays the ten on the first club lead, South wins the king and easily makes the slam by returning to dummy with a trump and leading another club through East.

Learning 48 State Capitals Not Fair

By CARROLL DUNSTON

During the Second World War, our countries were allies. Of course, I didn't know about such things then, but I inherited the benefits just the same.

In sixth grade, I had my first unpleasant feeling toward the United States. This was due to the simple fact that we were required to memorize the then 48 states and their capital cities, and my friends and I grumbled about the gross unfairness of our having to fill in such a map when our southern neighbors had to learn only 10 provinces!

About this time, I went through a stage of feeling very competitive over Canada and the U.S.—cheering loudly for the Toronto Maple Leafs and rejoicing when our dollar was worth more (even though it meant that my Christmas money from American relatives suffered slightly from crossing the border). To me, the Queen of England was a far more romantic and awesome figure than the president of the United States!

Speaking of crossing the border, that was generally interesting and inconsequential. The biggest excitement for my brother and me was to try to figure out the exact point at which we left one country and entered the next. We marvelled that the underwater tunnel between Windsor and Detroit split the river in half and loved to see the two flags at the center. From Sault Ste. Marie to "The Peace Arch" it was all fun!

Only once do I remember a look of consternation on my father's face. I was about eight years old at the time, and I'll never forget stuffing ourselves with plums and peaches. Reluctantly we threw the remainder away with the sad knowledge that it is illegal to take fresh fruit across the border!

The second shock came when we spent the summer in New York state and then returned to Canada. My brother and I could not keep our newly acquired three-speed bicycles because the duty tax was so great. Aside from these disillusioning experiences, I grew up with no hard feelings toward or fear of our more powerful neighbor while managing to remain intensely patriotic to the country of my birth.

Not until my brother obtained a permanent visa to the United States so that he could work off campus at the college he was attending did the first major obstacle arise. He had to register for the draft, and one semester when he was taking slightly less that the required minimum number of class hours he was called up. A combination of factors prevented his being shipped to Vietnam, but he was reluctant, to say the least, to fight for a "foreign" country on foreign soil.

For 10 years now, I have enjoyed the benefits of living in two of the now 50 states, and it no longer bothers me that there are five times as many American states as Canadian provinces. A few months ago, my parents were sworn in as U.S. citizens in Michigan, and I have begun the process of changing allegiance myself. I figure that if my father could change countries and citizenship three times and each time enthusiastically, I could brave the transition once.

I must confess it is not as painful as I had formerly thought. The "Star-Spangled Banner" sounds more familiar to me now than "God Save the Queen." And the sight of the Stars and Stripes waving inspires me with as much patriotism as once the Union Jack had. (I never did get used to the maple leaf!)

Why didn't I change sooner? Well, as a permanent resident, I had all the rights of a citizen, including Social Security, except the privilege of voting. And, then, there was a strong sense of loyalty to the country of my birth, to which I thought we might return some day. Aside from these matters, there is one benefit in having weaited 10 years to declare my new allegiance — it will be a distinct honor to join this great nation in the year of its bicentennial celebration!

Opening lead — nine of hearts.

"What can defeat me?" is a question every declarer should ask himself, even when there seems to be only a remote chance of defeat. If the answer is that some distributions, however unlikely, would put the contract in jeopardy, declarer should start looking for methods of play that can overcome these distributions.

Consider this deal where — without seeing the East-West cards — it seems highly probable that South will make 12 or 13 tricks. That would be the outcome in most deals — since the missing diamonds and clubs would be divided 2-2 or 3-1 more than 80 per cent of the time.

But South has no right to assume that either suit is divided favorably, and from the start he should cater to the possibility of a 4-0 division in one suit or the other.

Accordingly, he wins the heart lead with the ace and discards another heart on the ace of spades. He must obviously play trumps next, and, as there is no way of avoiding a trump loser if either opponent has all four of them, he starts to draw trumps by cashing first the ace and then the queen.

When the diamonds prove to be divided 2-2, South's only remaining concern is a 4-0 club division. He cannot protect against West having all four of them, so he proceeds on the assumption that East has them.

He plays the four of clubs from dummy and, when East produces the three, he plays the deuce from his hand! As a result he makes the slam, losing only a club trick. Note that declarer goes down if he fails to make the safety play.

If East plays the ten on the first club lead, South wins the king and easily makes the slam by returning to dummy with a trump and leading another club through East.

How Far Brother's Keeper?

"You're my brother. I want you to promise to kill me. I want you to swear to God."

And so, the covenant between two brothers was sealed.

A short time later, the shotgun blast that was its fulfillment reverberated across the country and into the nation's conscience.

Was it an act of brutality, of temporary insanity, or compassion? Was a man who carried out his paralyzed brother's request for death guilty of murder, or was he guilty of love?

No Easy Answers

The questions relating to the June, 1973 killing of George Zygmanik admit no easy answers. Paige Mitchell says as much in her new book "Act Of Love" (Knopf), which chronicles the Zygmanik case.

After spending five months interviewing the principal characters in the case, Ms. Paige writes, "Neither life nor death will permit itself to be boxed into theories or systems of thinking; truth is always contradictory."

But her always-compelling narrative stands as a monumental attempt to seek out the questions and at least to define the limitations of the answers.

The Zygmanik case itself is astounding in its simplicity.

On June 17, 1973, 26-year-old George Zygmanik — married, the father of one child — was seriously injured in a motorcycle accident in his New Jersey hometown. Paralyzed from the head down, he pleaded with his brother Lester, in the hours following the mishap, to kill him if there was no chance for recovery.

No Chance

Emergency surgery did no good. Three days after the mishap, Lester received word that his brother would never recover; that he would spend the rest of his life in a hospital bed, wasting away, in need of constant attention.

That night, Lester entered the emergency room where his brother lay — awake but immobile — and shot him in the head, at close range with a sawed-off shotgun.

From that moment on, Lester's life was in the hands of others — defense attorney, Robert Ansell, the judge, the jury, the prosecuting attorney — all of the characters who entered the drama after the brief first act.

Story Of Trial

As Ms. Paige has told it, the story unfolds primarily from the standpoint of the murder trial.

It is a supremely effective means of reconstructing not only the legal battle that ensued, but the killing itself.

As Ansell labors his way through the details of the case to what he sees as the most viable defense, virtually all of the significant philosophical questions are asked.

His choices for defense were limited in number, yet broad in scope: Was there an absence of malice? Was Lester simply an accomplice to a suicide? Could the act be defined within the framework of euthanasia? Or was Lester to be portrayed as temporarily insane?

Ansell's ultimate decision was based more on expedience than personal conviction. His job was to get Lester off. He defended him in the best way he knew — on the grounds of temporary insanity. And that defense was successful.

Act Of Love

But to Ansell, the killing of George Zygmanik was above all, an act of love, precipitated by a combination of factors — pressure, a code of family loyalty, George's request, the tacit approval of other family members.

"You did an honorable thing," Ansell tells Lester.

Ms. Paige's account of the Zygmanik killing is commendable for its compassion and attention to detail, both moral and legal.

It cannot be read detachedly. Ansell speaks for all of us when he asks, "Would I ever have the kind of courage Lester had? Do I love anybody as much as Lester loved his brother?"

Donation Of Kidneys Foiled By Patrolman

dear abby

DEAR ABBY: Our son, David was recently killed in a car accident. He was taken by ambulance to a hospital where he died five hours later.

A state trooper removed David's wallet at the scene of the accident, and we recovered it at the local state police post two days later.

David's wallet contained a UNIFORM DONOR CARD issued by the Kidney Foundation and signed by him. In our grief we had forgotten about our son's desire to donate his kidneys at death. How we wish that his wallet could have been examined at the scene of the accident so that his wishes could have been carried out!

It's too late for David, but my purpose in writing is to ask you to please remind all police and hospital personnel to examine the victim's wallet or purse for such documents. Had this been done, perhaps a life could have been saved through our David's death.

MRS. R. D. WATT
BLOOMINGTON, IND.

DEAR MRS. WATT: I am informed that in your state, the officer who arrives first at the scene of an accident must collect the victim's personal property and immediately turn it in to headquarters — WITHOUT even opening the wallet!

However, the hospital personnel should have advised you that if you knew that your son had signed a donor card, a form was available at the hospital for the next of kin to sign, granting permission for a transplant.

DEAR ABBY: What do you do with a man who refuses to bathe or brush his teeth?

HAD IT

DEAR HAD IT: Nothing.

DEAR ABBY: My problem concerns my husband and our sex life. He won't have sex with me since I had our baby five months ago. He was with me when the baby was born, and he said watching the birth made him sick and he can't get it out of his mind. We have had sex only twice since and he acted like he was doing me a favor.

If I am aggressive toward him he just pushes me away. Whenever I bring up the subject, he tells me to shut up.

We've been married for two years and always got along great. I am willing to try anything. I truly love him and I know he loves me. He's a good father and provider, but our sex life is zilch.

I don't want to get a divorce over this, but I sure feel cheated.

FRUSTRATED IN FLORIDA

DEAR FRUSTRATED: If your husband really loves you, he will want to get over this hang-up. Ask your doctor to talk with him. He needs some sessions with a professional to straighten him out. He's being unfair to you as well as to himself.

Consul General Says Situation In India Misunderstood

By PATTY BEUTLER
Star Staff Writer

It is an "unfair criticism" to say that democracy is dying in India, a consul general of that country maintains.

R. C. Arora, in an interview before meeting with members of the India Association of the University of Nebraska-Lincoln, defended his country's present political state.

The "emergency measures" which Prime Minister Indira Gandhi initiated last June do not violate the constitution of India in any way, Arora said.

The consul general, headquartered in San Francisco, said some restrictions on civil rights were made necessary by opposition political parties who behaved irresponsibly and tried to seize power unconstitutionally.

The rights will be restored in due time, Arora believes.

Extremists Banned

Parliament is fully operative, Arora said, and only four opposition parties have been banned. These are extremist parties, he explained, "committed to violence and overthrow of the government."

Aware of criticism from democratic corners of the world, Arora countered by saying that "India and Indians have to fashion their government, institutions and democracy after their own needs. We can't be a carbon copy of developed countries of the west."

Arora acknowledged that "a certain amount of direction has been given" by the government regarding reporting on the situation.

Press Biased

The press "guidelines" apply to Indian newspapers as well as foreign correspondents. The Indian papers, owned by monopolies, have a "built-in" bias against whatever the government does, Arora said. "This situation had to be corrected."

R. C. Arora

The emergency measures, however, have had a great beneficial effect on the economy of the country, he said.

There's a new "sense of dedication and responsibility in the people" which has pushed industrial output up to 80% of capacity, compared to below 50% level last year.

Similarly, inflation, running at 30% last year, has been totally wiped out. Industrial growth rose from 2-3% last year to an expected 6-8% this year.

Arora credits some of the economic gains to some traditional fiscal measures by the government and to a crackdown on antisocial elements in society — smugglers, hoarders and black marketeers.

No Support

Arora reports that there has been no violent opposition to the emergency measures taken. "The political opposition parties who had created anarchy and chaos had no support among the people (who) by and large welcomed the measures."

While food production has risen in the past 25 years from 48 million tons to 114 million tons the population has almost doubled to 600 million in that same time span.

Population control is of "great urgency" for India, Arora said. "A firm direction from the government is needed," he added.

Although $688 million has been allotted for family planning through 1979, the government efforts are "not having the impact we're looking for," Arora said.

'Disincentives'

In some Indian states, government employees with two children are expected to undergo sterilization. They are prompted to action by "disincentives," Arora said, like no free housing and denial of other privileges.

Arora feels that Mrs. Gandhi is as popular now and perhaps even more so than she was before the state of emergency. "I think this fact is not understood outside," he said.

GAMBLING IS FUN . . . for officials when only play money is on the line.

Dice Roll For State, City Officials

By LYNN ZERSCHLING
and NANCY HICKS
Star Staff Writers

The roulette wheels were spinning, dice rolled on the crap tables and cards were dealt for blackjack.

The only gambling ingredients missing were the slot machines, glittering marque lights and "real" money.

Las Vegas? Nope. Just Lincoln on the Wednesday night as state senators and assorted state and city officials rolled away the evening with games of chance. Almost.

It was just the League of Nebraska Municipalities' "Senator Appreciation Night" at the Radisson Cornhusker Hotel. The annual event, more popularly known as "Monte Carlo Night" was just for fun and frolic, league officials insisted, and not a violation of gambling laws.

With the Shrine Polka Band blaring in the background, League Director Dave Chambers said the rules were changed this year to make sure the would-be "gamblers" were on the right side of the law.

To make sure, he sought the advice of Lincoln Police Chief George Hansen. Chambers said last week's trial in U.S. District Court centering on the enforcement of gambling laws prompted the league's action.

People attending the program were given $500 in play money, which they were free to squander as they wished on assorted games of chance.

Two years ago, participants could buy more play money with the real green stuff. Not this year. Once a highroller lost his $500 fake bankroll, it was all over. At the end of the evening, gamblers bid on 25 prizes with their play money.

The gifts ranged from a digital clock and pocket calculator to a lawn rake, bicentennial chocolate bunny and house plants — all bought by the league.

Chambers said the league wanted to make sure the officials actually weren't buying anything. And for the $12-a-plate dinner, he said, "Believe me, the money they paid tonight will only pay for the dinner and polka band."

That $12-a-person fee cost Lincoln taxpayers a few dollars since the City Council agreed to pick up the tab for its own members and wives who attended. The city also paid for Lincoln's state senators who rushed over to the Cornhusker after a late night adjournment of the Legislature.

One city lawmaker was absent on purpose.

City Councilwoman Sue Bailey boycotted the event because she thinks the gambling "is questionable entertainment."

Chambers said the league reinstituted the Monte Carlo program this year after a dinner-dance bombed out last year. The real purpose of the program is to provide a social evening for senators and league members, he explained.

Nevertheless, Mrs. Bailey said she didn't think government officials should condone the program "if laws don't allow others to do it."

Senators Rush To Pass Bingo Bill

By The Associated Press

State senators Wednesday night left lottery legislation in the lurch, abandoning the bill to bingo enthusiasts in a bizarre frolic through parliamentary procedure.

After putting in their longest day of the Unicameral session to get major bills through a time crunch in the rush toward session's end, legislators were champing at the bit for a League of Municipalities banquet when they voted to kill LB464.

Just before the kill vote they had attached an amendment to the measure that Neligh Sen. John DeCamp said was designed to insure that church-backed bingo could continue in Nebraska.

Omaha Sen. George Syas, perturbed that bingo might be in jeopardy, moved minutes later to reconsider the kill action and won 26-12 endorsement of his stand.

The second tally on the kill motion advanced originally by Omaha Sen. Ernest Chambers failed on a 12-24 vote.

Chambers opposes all gambling and especially Omaha's Big Green lottery, which he says was designed to promote a "super block" of downtown improvements at the expense of low income lottery ticket purchasers.

Omaha Sen. Glenn Goodrich tried to advance the bill after it was revived with both the lottery language and the bingo amendment in it, but that attempt was spurned.

Syas said he was only interested in saving bingo and the lottery language was stripped from the bill on a 28-4 tally. After such a circuitous parliamentary route, the converted bill to save bingo finally won first round approval on a 26-8 vote.

Omaha's Big Green was set up to raise funds for community betterment and charity but ran into court problems because the Community Betterment Association had no record of such activity in administering lotteries.

DeCamp, who originally offered the lottery language to regulate such games of chance and fought Chambers over it all session, warned his colleagues Wednesday night that abandoning his plan could lead to a statewide lottery run from one community with little regulation.

Retired Teacher Raise Advances

The Legislature gave 27-0 preliminary approval Wednesday to a bill increasing the pay of reserve teachers from $840 to $1,560 a year.

Reserve teachers are those who retired before the pension program for teachers began.

The bill, LB673, was introduced by Lincoln Sen. Steve Fowler, who said there are fewer than 300 such retirees and they haven't received a boost in their retirement pay in 13 years.

License Photo Bill Moved Up

Unicameral members Wednesday gave preliminary approval to a bill allowing counties, at their own option, to require photographs of drivers' licenses.

The bill advanced on a 28-14 vote. The measure would require an extra $1 fee for the license to fund the cost of the photos. The bill was introduced by Omaha Sen. Glenn Goodrich.

Mutual Funds Investors Cash Shares Faster

WASHINGTON (AP) — Investors in mutual funds other than the money market variety cashed in their shares $309.6 million faster than they bought new ones in February, the Investment Company Institute reported Wednesday.

The institute said purchases for the month were $261.5 million and redemptions were $571.1 million.

Crime Prevention Van Is Stripped

Toledo, Ohio (AP) — A 27-foot van used to educate the public about crime prevention was broken into and stripped of a stereo, radio, tape deck and other equipment, police said.

An auto burglar alarm system also was taken, authorities said.

GAMBLING IS FUN . . . for officials when only play money is on the line.

Dice Roll For State, City Officials

By LYNN ZERSCHLING
and NANCY HICKS
Star Staff Writers

The roulette wheels were spinning, dice rolled on the crap tables and cards were dealt for blackjack.

The only gambling ingredients missing were the slot machines, glittering marque lights and "real" money.

Las Vegas? Nope. Just Lincoln on the Wednesday night as state senators and assorted state and city officials rolled away the evening with games of chance. Almost.

It was just the League of Nebraska Municipalities' "Senator Appreciation Night" at the Radisson Cornhusker Hotel. The annual event, more popularly known as "Monte Carlo Night" was just for fun and frolic, league officials insisted, and not a violation of gambling laws.

With the Shrine Polka Band blaring in the background, League Director Dave Chambers said the rules were changed this year to make sure the would-be "gamblers" were on the right side of the law.

To make sure, he sought the advice of Lincoln Police Chief George Hansen. Chambers said last week's trial in U.S. District Court centering on the enforcement of gambling laws prompted the league's action.

People attending the program were given $500 in play money, which they were free to squander as they wished on assorted games of chance.

Two years ago, participants could buy more play money with the real green stuff. Not this year. Once a highroller lost his $500 fake bankroll, it was all over. At the end of the evening, gamblers bid on 25 prizes with their play money.

The gifts ranged from a digital clock and pocket calculator to a lawn rake, bicentennial chocolate bunny and house plants — all bought by the league.

Chambers said the league wanted to make sure the officials actually weren't buying anything. And for the $12-a-plate dinner, he said, "Believe me, the money they paid tonight will only pay for the dinner and polka band."

That $12-a-person fee cost Lincoln taxpayers a few dollars since the City Council agreed to pick up the tab for its own members and wives who attended. The city also paid for Lincoln's state senators who rushed over to the Cornhusker after a late night adjournment of the Legislature.

One city lawmaker was absent on purpose.

City Councilwoman Sue Bailey boycotted the event because she thinks the gambling "is questionable entertainment."

Chambers said the league reinstituted the Monte Carlo program this year after a dinner-dance bombed out last year. The real purpose of the program is to provide a social evening for senators and league members, he explained.

Nevertheless, Mrs. Bailey said she didn't think government officials should condone the program "if laws don't allow others to do it."

Senators Rush To Pass Bingo Bill

By The Associated Press

State senators Wednesday night left lottery legislation in the lurch, abandoning the bill to bingo enthusiasts in a bizarre frolic through parliamentary procedure.

After putting in their longest day of the Unicameral session to get major bills through a time crunch in the rush toward session's end, legislators were champing at the bit for a League of Municipalities banquet when they voted to kill LB464.

Just before the kill vote they had attached an amendment to the measure that Neligh Sen. John DeCamp said was designed to insure that church-backed bingo could continue in Nebraska.

Omaha Sen. George Syas, perturbed that bingo might be in jeopardy, moved minutes later to reconsider the kill action and won 26-12 endorsement of his stand.

The second tally on the kill motion advanced originally by Omaha Sen. Ernest Chambers failed on a 12-24 vote.

Chambers opposes all gambling and especially Omaha's Big Green lottery, which he says was designed to promote a "super block" of downtown improvements at the expense of low income lottery ticket purchasers.

Omaha Sen. Glenn Goodrich tried to advance the bill after it was revived with both the lottery language and the bingo amendment in it, but that attempt was spurned.

Syas said he was only interested in saving bingo and the lottery language was stripped from the bill on a 28-4 tally. After such a circuitous parliamentary route, the converted bill to save bingo finally won first round approval on a 26-0 vote.

Omaha's Big Green was set up to raise funds for community betterment and charity, but ran into court problems because the Community Betterment Association had no record of such activity in administering lotteries.

DeCamp, who originally offered the lottery language to regulate such games of chance and fought Chambers over it all session, warned his colleagues Wednesday night that abandoning his plan could lead to a statewide lottery run from one community with little regulation.

Retired Teacher Raise Advances

The Legislature gave 27-0 preliminary approval Wednesday to a bill increasing the pay of reserve teachers from $840 to $1,560 a year.

Reserve teachers are those who retired before the pension program for teachers began.

The bill, LB673, was introduced by Lincoln Sen. Steve Fowler, who said there are fewer than 300 such retirees and they haven't received a boost in their retirement pay in 13 years.

License Photo Bill Moved Up

Unicameral members Wednesday gave preliminary approval to a bill allowing counties, at their own option, to require photographs of drivers' licenses.

The bill advanced on a 28-14 vote. The measure would require an extra $1 fee for the license to fund the cost of the photos. The bill was introduced by Omaha Sen. Glenn Goodrich.

Mutual Funds Investors Cash Shares Faster

WASHINGTON (AP) — Investors in mutual funds other than the money market variety cashed in their shares $309.6 million faster than they bought new ones in February, the Investment Company Institute reported Wednesday.

The institute said purchases for the month were $261.5 million and redemptions were $571.1 million.

Toledo, Ohio (AP) — A 27-foot van used to educate the public about crime prevention was broken into and stripped of a stereo, radio, tape deck and other equipment, police said.

An auto burglar alarm system also was taken, authorities said.

Catholic Leaders Rap Credibility Loss

(c) Washington Star

Washington — U.S. Catholic leaders are sharply critical of a recent survey that suggested the Catholic Church will continue to lose credibility among its member until the Vatican repeals its encyclical on birth control.

"Catholic truth is not determined by sociological data and analyses," said Archbishop Joseph L. Bernardin, president of the National Conference of Catholic Bishops, responding to the survey by the Rev. Andrew M. Greeley of the National Opinion Research Center at the University of Chicago.

And Archbiship William W. Baum of the Archdiocese of Washington said in an interview that no matter how unpopular a teaching of the church is, it must not accommodate itself to what people think it should be.

The Greeley report, which primarily explored the decline of enrollment in parochial schools but also bore down heavily on the controversial "Humanae Vitae" ("Of Human Life") promulgated by Pope Paul VI in 1968, was stirring up controversy among Catholics even before it was made public earlier this week.

Bernardin, head of the country's 48.7 million Catholics, said that while the report contains valuable and important data, "it also contains interpretations of these data which are problematical and open to question."

He said the report deserves "serious and careful study" before its conclusions are accepted.

Baum acknowledged that for many Catholics there is a problem over acceptance of the church's teaching on birth control — namely, that no artificially induced controls are to be used.

"At every age, at every moment in the church's life, many of its members have had problems with the teachings of the church. The church, though, must be faithful to its understanding of the Gospel, of its vision of God's plan. It cannot, in the interest of accommodation, change its doctrine.

"In other words, the acculaturation of Catholics in the United States to American mores is something which is not an unmixed blessing, and the church, as the community of faith, should not be expected to accommodate to the mores of any nation or of any culture."

Baum said the church "must always stand outside as something of a prophet. The church must always say no to certain inclinations in man and evil tendencies in society, and in so doing, the church invariably makes it self unpopular."

Baum acknowledged tha some have dissented from the teachings of Pope Paul, "and I regret that deeply. It is my duty at the same time to uphold the teachings of the Pope and of the church."

Prostitution Means Sixty Days In Jail

Fairbanks, Alaska (AP) — The Fairbanks City Council has approved a measure requiring a mandatory jail sentence of 60 days for persons convicted of prostitution in this pipeline boom town.

The new ordinance ruled out a suspended sentence, probation or parole until the two months are served. City Attorney Frank Kernan said prostitution will be the only crime on the city lawbooks which carries a mandatory sentence.

The ordinance takes affect Friday.

'John-Boy's' Wife Plans To Be Full-Time Mother

New York (AP) — Richard Thomas, who plays John-Boy on "The Waltons," says his wife, Alma, is expecting a child in July — and he is expecting her to stay home to take care of it.

"The idea of women working, and leaving their children in day care centers, doesn't depress me personally because my children will not have to face this danger," Thomas said in an interview with the Hearst newspapers.

"My wife will be a full-time mother because neither of us can understand the concept of consigning children to the care of a third party."

Watch Costs $10,000

New York (UPI) — A diamond-studded gold watch in a futuristic design that sells for $10,000 is said to be the most expensive digital watch for women in the world. It was introduced by Telestar Time, Inc., at the Retail Jewelers of America mid-year trade show here. The watch is decorated with a total of about four carats in full-cut Pave diamonds.

Prosecutor Asks Judge To Shut Down Pussycat

Omaha (AP) — Douglas County District Court Judge Patrick Lynch Wednesday heard arguments on whether the Pussycat Theater should be closed permanently.

City Prosecutor Gary Bucchino asked Lynch to issue a permanent order forbidding the theater's owners, the American Theater Corp. of Nebraska, from continuing to distribute obscene materials.

Last month, Lynch granted a temporary order against the corporation, and the theater has been shut down since.

Following Wednesday's court session, Lynch gave both sides two weeks to file briefs supporting their arguments. The judge will make his final ruling after receiving the briefs, but his temporary order remains in effect in the interim.

Bucchino argued that the theater and its operators have been convicted on obscenity charges in about 30 cases, which he said indicates the manner in which the corporation intends to operate.

Gordon Hauptman, American Theater's attorney, argued that closing the theater would violate constitutional guarantees of freedom of expression and due process of law. He said past convictions cannot determine that materials to be sold in the future would be obscene, adding that such a determination must be made by a jury.

College Board To Hear Pay, Enrollment Reports

The Nebraska State Colleges Board of Trustees will hear progress reports Friday from its "Council of Presidents" on long-range salary policy, enrollment and class size, and financial management audit recommendations.

The board will also examine a budget calendar, newly expanded to show justification of programs, in the 9 a.m. session at the Lincoln Hilton Hotel, at 9th and P.

Approval will be sought for a Kent Hall dormitory remodeling project at Chadron State College; revenue bond building repairs and minor renovation at Kearney State; bookstore and food service contracts, and setting room rates at Peru State. Peru officials will also report on a computer services project.

Board executives will seek approval for procedures to select architects, and report on student board representatives, insurance services and trustees scholarships policies.

Board subcommittee reports are also scheduled.

Omaha Concrete Company Fire Takes Nearly Hour To Control

Omaha (AP) — It took Omaha firemen nearly one hour Wednesday to control a fire which broke out at the American Concrete Products Co. plant near the city's southern limits.

The first alarm was turned in about 2:10 p.m. Two more alarms and almost one hour later, the smoky blaze was officially declared under control.

The fire is believed to have started in the plant's paint section, but its cause was not immediately known.

One plant employe was taken to a local hospital, where he was treated for minor burns and smoke inhalation.

Firemen had a problem with water availability for a time, and called in pumper trucks from Ralston and Millard to help get the water to the flames.

A damage estimate was not available.

Bath Has Tigers

Bath, England (UPI) — Bengal tigers join the wide range of wild animals at Longleat House, Wiltshire, this year. Lord Bath opened Europe's first safari park 10 years ago on the grounds of his historic 16th century home, and the introduction of the tigers in April will mark the anniversary. Longleat is 100 miles west of London.

"Catholic truth is not determined by sociological data and analyses," said Archbishop Joseph L. Bernardin, president of the National Conference of Catholic Bishops, responding to the survey by the Rev. Andrew M. Greeley of the National Opinion Research Center at the University of Chicago.

And Archbiship William W. Baum of the Archdiocese of Washington said in an interview that no matter how unpopular a teaching of the church is, it must not accommodate itself to what people think it should be.

The Greeley report, which primarily explored the decline of enrollment in parochial schools but also bore down heavily on the controversial "Humanae Vitae" ("Of Human Life") promulgated by Pope Paul VI in 1968, was stirring up controversy among Catholics even before it was made public earlier this week.

Bernardin, head of the country's 48.7 million Catholics, said that while the report contains valuable and important data, "it also contains interpretations of these data which are problematical and open to question."

He said the report deserves "serious and careful study" before its conclusions are accepted.

Baum acknowledged that for many Catholics there is a problem over acceptance of the church's teaching on birth control — namely, that no artificially induced controls are to be used.

"At every age, at every moment in the church's life, many of its members have had problems with the teachings of the church. The church, though, must be faithful to its understanding of the Gospel, of its vision of God's plan. It cannot, in the interest of accommodation, change its doctrine.

"In other words, the acculaturation of Catholics in the United States to American mores is something which is not an unmixed blessing, and the church, as the community of faith, should not be expected to accommodate to the mores of any nation or of any culture."

Baum said the church "must always stand outside as something of a prophet. The church must always say no to certain inclinations in man and evil tendencies in society, and in so doing, the church invariably makes it self unpopular."

Baum acknowledged tha some have dissented from the teachings of Pope Paul, "and I regret that deeply. It is my duty at the same time to uphold the teachings of the Pope and of the church."

Prostitution Means Sixty Days In Jail

Fairbanks, Alaska (AP) — The Fairbanks City Council has approved a measure requiring a mandatory jail sentence of 60 days for persons convicted of prostitution in this pipeline boom town.

The new ordinance ruled out a suspended sentence, probation or parole until the two months are served. City Attorney Frank Kernan said prostitution will be the only crime on the city lawbooks which carries a mandatory sentence.

The ordinance takes affect Friday.

'John-Boy's' Wife Plans To Be Full-Time Mother

New York (AP) — Richard Thomas, who plays John-Boy on "The Waltons," says his wife, Alma, is expecting a child in July — and he is expecting her to stay home to take care of it.

"The idea of women working, and leaving their children in day care centers, doesn't depress me personally because my children will not have to face this danger," Thomas said in an interview with the Hearst newspapers.

"My wife will be a full-time mother because neither of us can understand the concept of consigning children to the care of a third party."

The 24-year-old actor, who stars in the television drama of a closely knit family, says, "To me a family consists of parents and children and doesn't include paid employes taking the responsibility."

Watch Costs $10,000

New York (UPI) — A diamond-studded gold watch in a futuristic design that sells for $10,000 is said to be the most expensive digital watch for women in the world. It was introduced by Telestar Time, Inc., at the Retail Jewelers of America mid-year trade show here. The watch is decorated with a total of about four carats in full-cut Pave diamonds.

Prosecutor Asks Judge To Shut Down Pussycat

Omaha (AP) — Douglas County District Court Judge Patrick Lynch Wednesday heard arguments on whether the Pussycat Theater should be closed permanently.

City Prosecutor Gary Bucchino asked Lynch to issue a permanent order forbidding the theater's owners, the American Theater Corp. of Nebraska, from continuing to distribute obscene materials.

Last month, Lynch granted a temporary order against the corporation, and the theater has been shut down since.

Following Wednesday's court session, Lynch gave both sides two weeks to file briefs supporting their arguments. The judge will make his final ruling after receiving the briefs, but his temporary order remains in effect in the interim.

Bucchino argued that the theater and its operators have been convicted on obscenity charges in about 30 cases, which he said indicates the manner in which the corporation intends to operate.

Gordon Hauptman, American Theater's attorney, argued that closing the theater would violate constitutional guarantees of freedom of expression and due process of law. He said past convictions cannot determine that materials to be sold in the future would be obscene, adding that such a determination must be made by a jury.

College Board To Hear Pay, Enrollment Reports

The Nebraska State Colleges Board of Trustees will hear progress reports Friday from its "Council of Presidents" on long-range salary policy, enrollment and class size, and financial management audit recommendations.

The board will also examine a budget calendar, newly expanded to show justification of programs, in the 9 a.m. session at the Lincoln Hilton Hotel, at 9th and P.

Approval will be sought for a Kent Hall dormitory remodeling project at Chadron State College; revenue bond building repairs and minor renovation at Kearney State; bookstore and food service contracts, and setting room rates at Peru State. Peru officials will also report on a computer services project.

Board executives will seek approval for procedures to select architects, and report on student board representatives, insurance services and trustees scholarships policies.

Board subcommittee reports are also scheduled.

Omaha Concrete Company Fire Takes Nearly Hour To Control

Omaha (AP) — It took Omaha firemen nearly one hour Wednesday to control a fire which broke out at the American Concrete Products Co. plant near the city's southern limits.

The first alarm was turned in about 2:10 p.m. Two more alarms and almost one hour later, the smoky blaze was officially declared under control.

The fire is believed to have started in the plant's paint section, but its cause was not immediately known.

One plant employe was taken to a local hospital, where he was treated for minor burns and smoke inhalation.

Firemen had a problem with water availability for a time, and called in pumper trucks from Ralston and Millard to help get the water to the flames.

A damage estimate was not available.

Bath Has Tigers

Bath, England (UPI) — Bengal tigers join the wide range of wild animals at Longleat House, Wiltshire, this year. Lord Bath opened Europe's first safari park 10 years ago on the grounds of his historic 16th century home, and the introduction of the tigers in April will mark the anniversary. Longleat is 100 miles west of London.

Poll: 61% Of Public Alienated

By LOUIS HARRIS

A sense of disenchantment with public and private American institutions is now felt by an extraordinarily high 61% of the American people more than double the 29% who felt that way 10 years ago Although the economy is coming along nicely in this Bicentennial year disaffection and alienation are rampant among a majority of the public according to this latest poll among a national cross section of 1 512 adults

The impact of this state of affairs is likely to have an effect on this year s presidential voting There is clear evidence that those voters who express the most disaffection will tend to vote against President Ford As it turns out alienation runs highest among supporters of Alabama Gov George Wallace (69%) Washington Sen Henry Jackson (68%) Arizona Rep Morris Udall (68%) Mass Sen Edward Kennedy (67%) former Georgia Gov Jimmy Carter (67%) and Sen Hubert Humphrey of Minnesota (65%)

By contrast only 54% of those inclined to vote for President Ford express comparable alienation

The theory that a pervading sense of alienation will keep prospective voters away from the polls is exploded in this latest Harris Survey Disenchantment among both likely voters and likely non-voters is precisely the same

Here are the trends on the key elements that make up the Harris index of public disaffection a poll that has been repeated for the last 10 years

—The number of adults who feel largely ' left out of things going on around them is now 42% more than four times the 9% who felt that way 10 years ago

—A substantial 64% feel that ' what I think doesn t count much anymore up from 54% in 1974 and sharply up from the 37% who said the same back in 1966

—A high 77% feel the rich get richer and the poor get poorer up from 58% who felt that way in 1972 and 45% in 1966

—A considerable 61% feel that ' the people running the country don t really care what happens to me up from 48% in 1974 and from the 26% who made the same complaint 10 years ago

—The number of people who believe most people with power try to take advantage of people such as myself is now a record 63% compared to 33% in 1971 when this measurement was first taken

—For the first time the Harris Survey asked if people ' tend to feel that the people in Washington D C are out of touch with the rest of the country and 68% agree with that charge

Life After 40:

Bank Box Best Place For Papers

By JOANNE FARRIS

A READER WRITES: Were we lucky! A careless guest left a cigarette burning in an ashtray next to our den couch We thought it had been extinguished and went off to bed My husband soon woke up smelling smoke, traced it to the den, and called the fire department

They came and put out a hot fire which burned up the couch and ruined everything in the den with smoke and blackness and water

We were lucky that the fire was caught while it was small, and we were also lucky that all our valuable papers had been taken from the den to the safe deposit box at the bank just the day before That was good timing, wasn't it?

ANSWER: You certainly came out of that misfortune in good shape It sounds to me as though you made your own luck by taking care that your valuable papers were in safekeeping, which we all should do

The safest place is the safe deposit box and your bank Any legal papers such as wills, property title records, stock certificates and bonds, notes, certificates of deposit, etc , should be kept there The same box is a good place to put your household inventory and appraisals of any valuables you own

If your bank box is too small to hold all your important papers, those of secondary importance or which can be replaced, such as insurance policies, can be kept in a fireproof safe or filing cabinet at home Just be sure the receptacle is completely fireproof

For short-term storage in a pinch, wrap papers in a moisture-proof plastic bag and put them in the refrigerator One good thing about putting papers there is that every time you open the door you will be reminded to do something permanent about storage of the papers

There has been an awful lot in the papers lately about the new Federal Trade Commission regulations regarding mail-order delivery, etc spelling out in detail what the mail-order companies are now required to do about the orders they receive

We all appreciate the help we, as mail-orderers, receive from these new rules, but the new regulations should not cause us to lose sight of our own responsibility when we order anything by mail Do not forget to keep the name and address of the firm from which you order

Probably the easiest way to do this is to write the information on your check stub when you make out the check to pay for your order If you order a gift, also make a note of the item and the address to which it was to be sent

There are more than 20 000 firms in the United States doing mail-order business, so it behooves each of us to keep track of his or her order until it is filled

Another point that is often overlooked is that we are not liable for any unsolicited material sent to us by mail unless the package is clearly marked GIFT Do not let yourself be dunned into paying for unwanted, unsolicited merchandise Some few firms have used this dunning as a ruse to extort money from the unwary

Several readers have taken me to task for criticizing junk mail They remind me that for some lonely person it is entertaining and puts something in their mail box for them to look forward to On the other hand, readers have written to complain that their names seem to have been given to organizations from which they do not want to receive mail

This can be due to the fact that some states sell to mail-order firms their lists of car license purchasers Some charities raise a little money for themselves by selling their solicitation lists Both practices seem an undue invasion of privacy, but perhaps the new postal rates will cause less of this in the future

Faculty Pumped For Information

By DICK HOLMAN
Star Staff Writer

Pat Kean had to think twice whether he's 16 or 17. But he was quick to think he ought to participate in Nebraska Wesleyan University's "Interaction Day" Wednesday instead of using it as an excuse for a holiday.

Kean, an NWU freshman from Dawson, said he's 17 and he knew long ago he wanted to major in business administration.

Yet, with all NWU classes called off for the day, Kean was pumping information about accounting courses from economics Prof. Loretta Fairchild. She and her colleagtues also took the day off to work a different way.

"We've had 100% cooperation from the faculty," said NWU Registrar Irene Wiegers. They ringed the Great Hall of Smith-Curtis Administration Building, filled with tables and labels, freshmen and other students with undeclared majors.

Mrs. Wiegers said NWU invented Interaction Day to help relieve any anxieties by students who haven't yet decided what to study, and to encourage them to experiment with various academic disciplines.

She said 90% of the freshmen showed up with questions from coursework to how it applies to career options. Faculty members counseled them in small groups and individually.

Kean, finally loaded up with paperwork and instructions to discuss with the faculty member assigned to monitor his plans, said he thinks Interaction Day "is a good way to advise students of possibilities" they might not otherwise be aware of throughout NWU classrooms

That spontaneous remark coincided neatly with Mrs. Wiegers' earlier hope that humanities and science students will "understand and appreciate each other more" and what they're studying.

The idea grew out of concern about colleges" attrition or dropout problem between the freshman and sophomore year, Mrs. Wiegers said. Of the 1,169 NWU students, 409 are freshmen. She decided one way to help them "find a place" would be more serious advising

The dramatics faculty made the seriousness fun, setting up a booth replete with makeup lights and comedy-tragedy masks. Some faculty initially sided with the frowning thespian, Dr. Fairchild said, but their skepticism faded rapidly after students flocked in all morning long.

A faculty committee arranged for numerous NWU alumni who are successful in their careers to participate, talking with students about their own education and what it meant to them.

"Freshmen often come here with one idea" about collegiate pursuits and "find out in a few months it's different" from what they'd expected, Mrs. Wiegers said.

The frosh were picking up tips on course options, and those already headed in the right direction had their thinking broadened by displays that department chairmen manned, she said.

Later Wednesday, NWU upperclassmen thronged in for eight more hours of activities, including departmental meetings about academics, jazz, singing and choir performances; a Yoga demonstration; more program displays; planetarium show; poetry reading; films and an evening of square dancing.

LEA Negotiator Warns Impasse May Be Near

By DICK HOLMAN
Star Staff Writer

It was more of the same chapter, but the plot thickened Wednesday and finally gave a clue to the ending, being written a week at a time.

Drama in the fourth act peaked after Lincoln Board of Education negotiators offered another 1976-77 teacher contract proposal. It held some concessions, but did not budget off the 5.67% or $1 million pay and fringe benefit increase dangled earlier (up from a 4.58% opener).

Lincoln Education Association Executive Director Robert F. Peterson took stage center slowly and revved up: he concluded the "board is nearing its final offer."

And if that's "close to 5.67%," Peterson delivered a warning, "this negotiation is going into fact-finding, and very likely will go into the (Nebraska) Court of Industrial Relations."

His reference was to an impartial team weighing each team's proposals, with a settlement possibly dictated from the wings by the state labor relations court.

Price Index Falling

Terry Workman, chief negotiator for the school board team, had explained in his opening statement Wednesday that the Consumer Price Index (CPI), a measure of inflation, is now at 6.3% and "dropping." He predicted that because it's an election year, the CPI "will continue to drop," which puts the 5.67% offer "in range of the CPI."

Peterson countered that national signals point to real economic growth, a historical increase in the Gross National Product, escalated auto production, rising meat prices. Thus, "We seriously fear (although) we're negotiating in a declining CPI index," that "after the elections, at Christmas, we're going to see a substantial increase in the Consumer Price Index."

Hence Peterson fretted aloud that a settlement committed over the next 18 months will undercut acceptable teacher compensation late in the period.

The LEA had first sought a 13.58% increase, then reduced that to 11.43%. The teachers' team Wednesday issued another concesssion, to a 10.26% overall dollar increase, or $1.9 million. About $1.4 million of that would be in salaries, raising that budget part to approximately $19.61 million.

After an intermission of heavy caucusing, the board team offered to increase the value of fringe benefits (now at $424,863) by an average of $3 monthly per teacher, up from $2 extended earlier.

That, plus a mid-level salary advancement concession, would boost the total package cost by approximately 6.5%, Workman said, easing the confrontation play. The range remaining, up to the LEA's 10.26%, provides a hint to the final compromise.

Since more than half the teachers are paid midway in the salary schedule, in the masters degree or bachelors with 36 graduate hours study, the LEA proposed placing major increases there. Simultaneously, the association lowered its request for beginning teacher pay from $9,100 to $8.840, which the board had also proposed The base is new $8,415.

Demands Dropped

The LEA also dropped its demand for two new long-service pay categories, in favor of only one for 20 years

In a major step, both teams agreed to a compromise on an expanded retirement incentive program, with more dollars. The option for teachers with at least 10 years service would begin this spring, paying $450 for each year at age 60, $400 at 61, $300 at 62, $250 at 63, and $200 at 64.

Still unresolved is whether the program will extend at those award levels for two years or one. The board conceded the LEA-sought amounts if no increase were asked for two years.

But the two teams wrangled over the LEA attempts to get paid in January any dollar amount less than the negotiated percentage, caused by hiring bachelors degree teachers to fill slots of retirees, resignations and other attrition.

The board team again rejected the demand as "completely out of the question," Workman said, adding that some teachers' pay increases exceed the percentage It would be "inappropriate" to "play plus and minuses," he said

Rejecting an LEA request that would combine into a single pay category department chairmen and team leaders, for example, Workman said any consolidation push would result in the administration reducing the number of department heads. He said the present system lends to needed diversification

Agreement Reached

The teams reached agreement on amended grievance definitions and procedures designed to improve teacher morale, and on means to advance in pay

The board rejected LEA's request for twice annual salary adjustments and compensatory time for extra teaching requirements. Agreement is near on joint study results being incorporated mid-year in the contract, and increased staff development hours allowed for pay boost eligibility.

Regarding some LEA requests, Peterson said the board has "no right to declare" them non-negotiable arbitrarily He said if the board so persists, the LEA will declare "impasse and reserve the right to have the Court of Industrial Relations determine whether they're negotiable or not "

That would threaten joint LEA-board alternate salary method studies, he warned The teams did reach "general agreenemt" on non-contract items for study, ranging from pay frequency to teacher load

Female SWAT Member Ready For The Worst

Atlanta (AP) — Mary Hall, the first woman on the Atlanta police bureau's SWAT — Special Weapons and Tactics — team, says she is ready for the danger and the jokes.

"Some of the men on the SWAT team have been honest enough to come out and say that they weren't exactly flattered about the fact that I've joined the SWAT team," she said. "But since I've been here, they've at least been able to allow me to show that I have the initiative, brains and incentive to work SWAT."

The SWAT unit tackles some of the most dangerous situations: armed robberies-in-progress, kidnapings, sniper attacks, suicide attempts

Dumpling's Owner Sues TV Network

The NBC television network has been bopped over its corporate head with another trademark violation suit from yet another Nebraskan.

Jack L. Callaway, president of Dumpling's Ltd., has taken aim at the new series, Dumplings, which he says casts his restaurant operation into disrepute.

Callaway operates two Dumpling's Restaurants in Lincoln and one in Omaha. He says another is planned in Colorado

The suit contends that he was granted exclusive use of the name in 1972, and that his restaurants have bore the title since 1970

Use of the name by the television series, the suit contends, is not only diluting the distinctiveness of the name, but is harming the reputation of the real Dumpling's Restaurants

The television restaurant is depicted as being a place where sloppy, nauseating, unsanitary and otherwise unacceptable food is prepared and sold, the suit argues

The suit asks the Lancaster District Court to block the network from using the name and to set the amount of damages the network should pay

The suit is the second of its kind this year Earlier this year the network agreed to an out-of-court settlement valued at more than $550,000, when NETV contended its abstract "N" was in use before the NBC "N".

Drama in the fourth act peaked after Lincoln Board of Education negotiators offered another 1976-77 teacher contract proposal. It held some concessions, but did not budget off the 5.67% or $1 million pay and fringe benefit increase dangled earlier (up from a 4.58% opener).

Lincoln Education Association Executive Director Robert F. Peterson took stage center slowly and revved up: he concluded the "board is nearing its final offer."

And if that's "close to 5.67%," Peterson delivered a warning, "this negotiation is going into fact-finding, and very likely will go into the (Nebraska) Court of Industrial Relations."

His reference was to an impartial team weighing each team's proposals, with a settlement possibly dictated from the wings by the state labor relations court.

Price Index Falling

Terry Workman, chief negotiator for the school board team, had explained in his opening statement Wednesday that the Consumer Price Index (CPI), a measure of inflation, is now at 6.3% and "dropping." He predicted that because it's an election year, the CPI "will continue to drop," which puts the 5.67% offer "in range of the CPI."

Peterson countered that national signals point to real economic growth, a historical increase in the Gross National Product, escalated auto production, rising meat prices. Thus, "We seriously fear (although) we're negotiating in a declining CPI index," that "after the elections, at Christmas, we're going to see a substantial increase in the Consumer Price Index."

Hence Peterson fretted aloud that a settlement committed over the next 18 months will undercut acceptable teacher compensation late in the period.

The LEA had first sought a 13.58% increase, then reduced that to 11.43%. The teachers' team Wednesday issued another concesssion, to a 10.26% overall dollar increase, or $1.9 million. About $1.4 million of that would be in salaries, raising that budget part to approximately $19.61 million.

After an intermission of heavy caucusing, the board team offered to increase the value of fringe benefits (now at $424,863) by an average of $3 monthly per teacher, up from $2 extended earlier.

That, plus a mid-level salary advancement concession, would boost the total package cost by approximately 6.5%, Workman said, easing the confrontation play. The range remaining, up to the LEA's 10.26%, provides a hint to the final compromise.

Since more than half the teachers are paid midway in the salary schedule, in the masters degree or bachelors with 36 graduate hours study, the LEA proposed placing major increases there. Simultaneously, the association lowered its request for beginning teacher pay from $9,100 to $8,840, which the board had also proposed. The base is new $8,415.

Demands Dropped

The LEA also dropped its demand for two new long-service pay categories, in favor of only one for 20 years.

In a major step, both teams agreed to a compromise on an expanded retirement incentive program, with more dollars. The option for teachers with at least 10 years service would begin this spring, paying $450 for each year at age 60, $400 at 61, $300 at 62, $250 at 63, and $200 at 64.

Still unresolved is whether the program will extend at those award levels for two years or one. The board conceded the LEA-sought amounts if no increase were asked for two years.

But the two teams wrangled over the LEA attempts to get paid in January any dollar amount less than the negotiated percentage, caused by hiring bachelors degree teachers to fill slots of retirees, resignations and other attrition.

The board team again rejected the demand as "completely out of the question," Workman said, adding that some teachers' pay increases exceed the percentage. It would be "inappropriate" to "play plus and minuses," he said.

Rejecting an LEA request that would combine into a single pay category department chairmen and team leaders, for example, Workman said any consolidation push would result in the administration reducing the number of department heads. He said the present system lends to needed diversification.

Agreement Reached

The teams reached agreement on amended grievance definitions and procedures designed to improve teacher morale, and on means to advance in pay.

The board rejected LEA's request for twice annual salary adjustments and compensatory time for extra teaching requirements. Agreement is near on joint study results being incorporated mid-year in the contract, and increased staff development hours allowed for pay boost eligibility.

Regarding some LEA requests, Peterson said the board has "no right to declare" them non-negotiable arbitrarily. He said if the board so persists, the LEA will declare "impasse and reserve the right to have the Court of Industrial Relations determine whether they're negotiable or not."

That would threaten joint LEA-board alternate salary method studies, he warned. The teams did reach "general agreenemt" on non-contract items for study, ranging from pay frequcncy to teacher load.

Female SWAT Member Ready For The Worst

Atlanta (AP) — Mary Hall, the first woman on the Atlanta police bureau's SWAT — Special Weapons and Tactics — team, says she is ready for the danger and the jokes.

"Some of the men on the SWAT team have been honest enough to come out and say that they weren't exactly flattered about the fact that I've joined the SWAT team," she said. "But since I've been here, they've at least been able to allow me to show that I have the initiative, brains and incentive to work SWAT."

The SWAT unit tackles some of the most dangerous situations: armed robberies-in-progress, kidnapings, sniper attacks, suicide attempts.

Dumpling's Owner Sues TV Network

The NBC television network has been bopped over its corporate head with another trademark violation suit from yet another Nebraskan.

Jack L. Callaway, president of Dumpling's Ltd., has taken aim at the new series, Dumplings, which he says casts his restaurant operation into disrepute.

Callaway operates two Dumpling's Restaurants in Lincoln and one in Omaha. He says another is planned in Colorado.

The suit contends that he was granted exclusive use of the name in 1972, and that his restaurants have bore the title since 1970.

Use of the name by the television series, the suit contends, is not only diluting the distinctiveness of the name, but is harming the reputation of the real Dumpling's Restaurants.

The television restaurant is depicted as being a place where sloppy, nauseating, unsanitary and otherwise unacceptable food is prepared and sold, the suit argues.

The suit asks the Lancaster District Court to block the network from using the name and to set the amount of damages the network should pay.

The suit is the second of its kind this year. Earlier this year the network agreed to an out-of-court settlement valued at more than $550,000, when NETV contended its abstract "N" was in use before the NBC "N".

Sports Center Could Be $hot In Arm For Prep Funds

By RANDY YORK
Prep Sports Editor

The final returns aren't all in, but Nebraska School Activities Association (NSAA) executive secretary Les Chamberlin expects his office to realize an approximate $155,000 profit from district and state basketball tournaments.

Record-breaking attendance at the state tournament helped offset a $10,500 slide from last year's district tournament gross receipts.

Although the NSAA's expenses were considerably higher using Nebraska's new $13.8 million Sports Center, Chamberlin expects the facility to be the financial boon of the future.

It could help wrestling, which lost $8,000 this year, turn into a moneymaker, according to Chamberlin.

"We've already made arrangements to host next year's state wrestling tournament in the Sports Center," he said, adding state gymnastics and swimming meets for both boys and girls will be held in the Sports Center next school year.

Chamberlin's office sold 39,651 adult tickets to the state basketball tournament at $2 apiece and 51,301 student tickets at $1 apiece.

All-Time Record

Official paid attendance for the state tournament was 90,952, an all-time record.

Gross receipts for the state tourney totaled $130,456.45. Chamberlin said expenses will run somewhere between $50,000 and $52,000, giving the state tournament an approximate $80,000 profit.

The NSAA also realized $75,575.80 from district tournament competition across the state. District receipts totaled $229,017.60. The NSAA receives 33% of that financial pie.

The Class A-1 district tournament at Lincoln's Pershing Auditorium again ranked as the biggest moneymaker among the state's 48 districts.

It even outgrossed all four Class A Omaha districts combined. Gross receipts from the Capital City district for three games were $14,365.25.

Omaha's four districts combined amounted to $13,214.50 with its biggest district producing $4,998. The Class A district at Beatrice grossed $2,313.80 and the Class A district at South Sioux City grossed $2,037.50.

The Class A district at Alliance grossed the least of all 48 districts in the state — a paltry $1,635. Class A district receipts were $33,556.05 — down $3,300 from last year.

Class B districts also were down $1,300 with a total of $51,217. The Class B-6 district at Kearney State College grossed the most — $13,530.50, second highest in the state behind Lincoln.

Class C district receipts were down $6,800 from last year with a $70,134.05 total. Class C-10 at Doane College led the way with $6,397.

Only Increase

Class D was the only class to increase district receipts. Its $51,871 total was up $1,200. The D-10 district at Holdrege had the largest receipts, $4,423.

Class C regional playoff receipts totaled $13,206 and Class D regionals produced $9,387.85, according to Chamberlin. Both totals were comparable with last year.

The Walthill-Laurel regional at West Point led Class C with $2,640.50 while the Fairmont-Nelson regional at Hastings College led Class D with $1,706.60.

"Gross district receipts were about $229,000 this year, compared to about $240,000 last year," Chamberlin noted, citing weather as a possible reason for the decrease.

Chamberlin said the Sports Center cost the NSAA $2,000 a day to rent. Additional security cost the NSAA $4,500 more than last year.

The NSAA chief said state wrestling receipts were $27,300 for its three-day state tourney. "That's $200 less than a year ago," he said. "District receipts also were down and it cost us $10,000 more in reimbursements to the schools for the extra day's competition, so we lost over $8,000 on wrestling."

Chamberlin said Nebraska already has altered its basketball schedule to accommodate the state wrestling tournament in the Sports Center next February.

"We're hoping it'll be the difference to put the sport in the black," he said.

NWU Rebounds For Split Of Home Opener

By KEN HAMBLETON
State College Writer

The Northwest Missousri State baseball team had made Nebraska Wesleyan coach Ron Bachman begin to wonder about his veteran Plainsmen squad.

The Beatcats, 33-9 last year, won both ends of a twinbill against NWU last Saturday by the 10-run rule and won the first game of the Plainsmen's home opener 9-4 Wednesday afternoon at Sherman Field.

But Wesleyan's hitting finally caught up with its pitching and fielding in the second game to help the Plainsmen gain an 8-4 win over the Bearcats.

Northwest Missouri State jumped on NWU for seven runs in the second inning of the first game and kept NWU to four runs and four hits to boost its record to 6-4.

Mike Ginn, who relieved starter John Svehla in the second inning, held the Bearcats to two runs on seven hits and struck out six in six innings of relief, but a strong combined effort by starter David Hanson and Bob Downs preserved the win for NWMS.

The same early-inning woes struck the Plainsmen in the second game when the Bearcats scored three runs on one hit, an error and a wild pitch.

Wesleyan shortstop Scott Votava closed the gap in the second inning with a 370-foot homer over the left-center wall, scoring his brother Doug, who had walked.

Plainsman catcher Gene Lessman, who broke out of a slump by hitting three for three in the second game, led off the second inning with a double and then scored on a 350-foot blast over the left field wall by centerfielder Mike Reta, which put NWU into a 4-3 lead.

The Bearcats tied the game in the third when Joe Pascuzzi singled and then scored on a wild pitch, after going to third on a single by Tim Thompson.

But NWSM didn't threaten to score again as Ted Hall held the Bearcats to just two more hits, before being relieved by senior lefthander Larry Abel in the sixth inning.

Meanwhile, the Plainsmen scored the winning run in the fifth when Lessman singled, went to second on a passed ball, to third on a single by Reta and scored on an error by the catcher.

Wesleyan added three insurance runs in the fifth when Lessman tripled with the bases loaded to up the score to 8-4. In that inning, Votava gained first base on a dropped third strike and then stole second. Reed followed with an intentional walk and both runners advanced on a balk by losing pitcher Steve Mapel. Bearcat coach Jim Wasem argued the call and finished the game watching from the bleachers. Mapel then filled the bases by hitting Bob Blake.

Sophomore Hall picked up the win, going five innings in relief, allowing four hits and one run, while striking out six.

"When you beat a good team like Northwest Missouri State, it really means something," said NWU coach Bachman. "We finally made the turn and started getting the big hits with men on."

Five early NWU errors in the second game bothered Bachman, but he said he was proud of the team's effort. "We made a lot of errors because we hesitated a lot," Bachman said. "But our pitching came through for us and we got the hits to overcome our mistakes.

"Ginn did a good job in relief in the opener and Hall settled down and found his control in the second game," Bachman said. "We've played a lot of rough teams, but I think we're pretty good for being 4-8."

The Plainsmen open their NIAC conference season at 2 p.m. next Wednesday with a doubleheader against Doane at Tuxedo Park in Crete.

Rich Purse In NCAA

Philadelphia — Each of the four teams in this year's NCAA basketball finals will take home almost as much money as the event netted back in 1953, thanks to a lucrative television contract.

In fact, last week's 12 losing schools in regional competition combined to earn more than nine times the receipts of the event 23 years ago. Inflation undoubtedly has something to do with the increase, but the biggest reason is the $2.5 million NBC is throwing into the pot.

And this isn't the end of the rainbow for NCAA basketball teams because next year NBC will pay $4 million for television rights, add another half million in 1978 and reach the $5 million figure in 1979.

Television receives a lot of criticism for dictating times of games, when timeouts are called and for other reasons, but in these days the economic crunch of college athletics it makes good sense to give in on some of the demands of the video people.

The reason television is willing to put up so much money is that the ratings of the past three or four NCAA finals have zoomed out of sight. It's an event people want to watch and an event advertisers feel is a profitable investment.

When NBC negotiated its first contract a few years ago it suggested playing the semifinal games on Saturday afternoon and moving the championship game to prime time on Monday night. The latest contract calls for playing some first round matches on Sunday afternoons. Thus the increased bonus NCAA member schools will share in the future.

UCLA Close To $1 Million

Football people like to say their sport pays the way for all the other sports and this is true at a big majority of the so-called super powers, such as Nebraska and Oklahoma and others.

Schools with successful basketball programs, however, more than pay the cost of the sport. Take UCLA as an example. The Bruins in the last 13 years have taken home close to $1 million just for their play in the tournament — not to mention full houses for every home game in Pauley Pavillion.

An indication of what could happen at Nebraska if the new sports center helps Coach Joe Cipriano get some super talented athletes was shown at the recent state high school basketball tournament.

Six sessions, including three in the afternoon, attracted an announced figure of 65,600 fans. Of course, they weren't paying $8.25 like they do to watch the Cornhuskers play football, but it was an indication that Nebraska will come out to see good basketball.

Nebraska's share of Fiesta Bowl money came to $210,419.91, a figure which had to be shared with other Big Eight Conference schools. This year's NCAA finals will provide the Big Ten Conference with $288,000, of which Michigan and Indiana will each be rewarded with $77,777. The other eight teams will receive $15,554.

Since Pacific-8 teams don't share in NCAA receipts, UCLA's take-home-pay will be a little more than $150,000. Rutgers will get a like share.

Indiana Schedule Toughest

Fans like to discuss schedules and how tough they were. Some think Notre Dame, for example, played the toughest card, but if you consider how many teams that ended up rated in the top 20 in the nation, that honor goes to undefeated Indiana.

The Hoosiers, who are 30-0, played nine such teams and won them all. Notre Dame met just five from the top 20 and came away with a 3-2 record. Michigan went 2-4 against the top eschelon while Rutgers compiled its 31-0 record by not playing any ranked teams. UCLA went 3-2 in the games against the toughies.

Only one team came close to playing as many top 20 teams as Indiana. That was Oregon State, which came out 4-3 in such matches. Among Big Eight teams, Kansas State was 2-2 while Missouri was 1-2. Nebraska's ventures against top 20 teams resulted in an 0-3 mark — a loss to Washington and a pair of setbacks to Missouri.

Indiana's nine wins over top 20 teams included No. 2 Marquette 65-56, No. 6 UCLA 84-64, No. 7 Alabama 74-69, No. 9 Michigan twice 80-74 and 72-67, No. 10 Notre Dame 63-60, No. 12 Florida State 83-59, and No. 16 St. John's of New York twice 76-69 and 90-70.

Just comparing the records, Rutgers is the only team that doesn't seem to fit the mold of a title contender despite a 31-0 mark. Yet, all the Scarlet Knights need to do is win two more games and write their name alongside the list of previous champions.

Comparative scores are meaningless, granted, but Rutgers had to go overtime to beat a Manhattan team that Indiana massacred 97-61. All that information, however, is just something that will go in the record books for posterity. What happens here Saturday and Monday is all that's important now.

Citation To York

Salisbury, N.C. — Lincoln Journal and Star prep editor Randy York was named Nebraska's Sportswriter of the Year.

The award was announced by the National Sportswriters and Sportscasters Association headquartered here. York and Don Gill, named Nebraska's Sportscaster of the Year, will be honored at the group's annual convention here in June. The award is York's second straight.

Kent Pavelka, sports director for KFAB in Omaha, was named Nebraska's delegate to the national convention.

Bartow Aware Of UCLA History

Los Angeles (AP) — Many have said Gene Bartow is unlucky to have followed the eminently successful John Wooden as coach of the UCLA Bruins, but perhaps Bartow is lucky on one count. He knows exactly what's expected of him.

"We're where we're supposed to be," Bartow said. "At least that's what they told me when I came here."

Where the Bruins are is in Philadelphia, in the NCAA basketball finals ... but there's more.

By Saturday night, the Bruins are supposed to be one of the final two teams vying for the collegiate basketball title. By late Monday night, the Bruins are supposed to have proven they're the best, period!

There are, of course, a couple of stumbling blocks in the way of Bartow's Bruins. First, Saturday in Philadelphia, there is Indiana, a team that was 20 points better than UCLA when the two met in the first game of the season.

And should UCLA, a sixpoint underdog, upset the unbeaten and top-ranked Hoosiers, then the Bruins would have to beat the winner of the Michigan-Rutgers game in Monday's NCAA finale.

Only then would UCLA be where "it's supposed to be."

Bartow, whose team has apparently progressed a great deal since the opening 84-64 loss to Indiana, said he's looking forward to Saturday's rematch.

"Losing the game was awful," Bartow recalled. "But things are never as bad as they seem. I'm looking forward to playing them again, and so is the whole team. I know they're a super team and Bobby Knight is a super coach, but we've got a good team, too."

The Bruins' coach had said going into the first game that he wished it had come later, because Indiana was a seasoned, veteran club while his Bruins were not yet adjusted to his coaching techniques.

This time around, though, Bartow thinks the conditions are just right. "We're healthy, excited and it shapes up as a super game," he said. "I've never gone into a game that I didn't think I could win, and that goes for the first game with Indiana."

Bartow said the Bruins intend to play the game their way, trying not to get caught up in what Indiana does.

"We're going to emphasize what UCLA can do," Bartow remarked, "not what Indiana can do. And if we play the way we're capable of playing the way we played against Washington, Washington State and some other teams, I think we're going to win."

Rutgers: Surprises Can Happen

NEW BRUNSWICK, N.J. (AP) — "Anytime you get this far," says Rutgers Coach Tom Young, "all you need is two outstanding ball games. Who knows what can happen?"

What could happen is that Rutgers could finish its season 33-0. And if the Scarlet Knights do that, they'll be the NCAA basketball champions for their first time ever. And it'll be one of the year's biggest surprises.

Young acknowledges that similarly unbeaten but top-ranked Indiana is the favorite to win the title, but says he feels "anyone of the final four has a chance to win."

Young takes his fourth-ranked Knights to Philadelphia to face Michigan in the NCAA's semifinal round Saturday. The championship game is scheduled for Monday night.

"It takes your best effort of the year to make it out of the final four alive," he said. "Right now we're playing as well as we've been playing all year, but we can't afford a letdown ... No one's going to win this thing unless they play well."

Young planned 1½-hour practice sessions for the Scarlet Knights for Wednesday and Thursday, before departing for Philadelphia's Spectrum on Friday.

As for the brevity of the sessions, Young said, "If they don't know it by now, they never will."

Saturday's Michigan-Rutgers game figures to be a wide-open, high-scoring affair, pitting two squads that like to run on offense and press on defense, he says. After that, Young doesn't care if his team meets Indiana or UCLA.

"If we get there I don't care who we play. It makes no difference because neither one would be easy."

Rutgers and Michigan have met once previously, way back in 1933. The Wolverines won that game 33-22.

Wightman Receives Probation

Omaha (UPI) — Nebraska defensive linebacker James Wightman was placed on six months probation Wednesday on a misdemeanor charge of assault and battery filed after an incident with Omaha police.

Wightman, of Omaha, pleaded no contest to the charge Jan. 16. The count was reduced from a felony to a misdemeanor by the Douglas County attorney's office.

Wednesday, Douglas County District Judge Samuel Caniglia ordered Wightman's attorney, Arthur J. O'Leary of Omaha, to supervise the six month probation rather than the adult probation office.

Wightman was charged following a scuffle with three Omaha police officers last Sept. 27 in north Omaha. The incident occurred following an alleged traffic violation.

Wightman, a sophomore, was red shirted as a freshman but saw considerable action with the Huskers last year.

4 NCAA Coaches Eye Each Other

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — The four coaches in the NCAA basketball championship playoffs to be held here this weekend Wednesday talked about muscle, speed, height, strength and "mystique."

Unbeaten Rutgers, 31-0, meets Michigan, 24-6, in the first game of the semifinals Saturday afternoon at the Spectrum. In the second game, top-ranked Indiana, also unbeaten with a 30-0, takes on defending champion UCLA, 26-4, winners of 10 of last 12 titles under John Wooden.

Tom Young, coach of the Rutgers team that surprised the experts with its undefeated season, said his squad has not "played anyone with a lot of muscle all season long, and playing a physical Michigan team may hurt us a little bit, but our own quickness will be a big advantage to us."

But Michigan's Johnny Orr saw his team differently.

"We are a very small, skinny team," Orr said. "We're quick and have good jumping ability. If the big guys underneath don't get the ball, it comes out and our guys get it and go."

Bobby Knight of Indiana, whose team lost to Kentucky in the regionals last year when star forward Scott May was injured, said the availability of the 6-foot-7 All-American senior "makes us a stronger club at this point than last year."

Six sessions, including three in the afternoon, attracted an announced figure of 65,600 fans. Of course, they weren't paying $8.25 like they do to watch the Cornhuskers play football, but it was an indication that Nebraska will come out to see good basketball.

Nebraska's share of Fiesta Bowl money came to $210,419.91, a figure which had to be shared with other Big Eight Conference schools. This year's NCAA finals will provide the Big Ten Conference with $288,000, of which Michigan and Indiana will each be rewarded with $77,777. The other eight teams will receive $15,554.

Since Pacific-8 teams don't share in NCAA receipts, UCLA's take-home-pay will be a little more than $150,000. Rutgers will get a like share.

Indiana Schedule Toughest

Fans like to discuss schedules and how tough they were. Some think Notre Dame, for example, played the toughest card, but if you consider how many teams that ended up rated in the top 20 in the nation, that honor goes to undefeated Indiana.

The Hoosiers, who are 30-0, played nine such teams and won them all. Notre Dame met just five from the top 20 and came away with a 3-2 record. Michigan went 2-4 against the top eschelon while Rutgers compiled its 31-0 record by not playing any ranked teams. UCLA went 3-2 in the games against the toughies.

Only one team came close to playing as many top 20 teams as Indiana. That was Oregon State, which came out 4-3 in such matches. Among Big Eight teams, Kansas State was 2-2 while Missouri was 1-2. Nebraska's ventures against top 20 teams resulted in an 0-3 mark — a loss to Washington and a pair of setbacks to Missouri.

Indiana's nine wins over top 20 teams included No. 2 Marquette 65-56, No. 6 UCLA 84-64, No. 7 Alabama 74-69, No. 9 Michigan twice 80-74 and 72-67, No. 10 Notre Dame 63-60, No. 12 Florida State 83-59, and No. 16 St. John's of New York twice 76-69 and 90-70.

Just comparing the records, Rutgers is the only team that doesn't seem to fit the mold of a title contender despite a 31-0 mark. Yet, all the Scarlet Knights need to do is win two more games and write their name alongside the list of previous champions.

Comparative scores are meaningless, granted, but Rutgers had to go overtime to beat a Manhattan team that Indiana massacred 97-61. All that information, however, is just something that will go in the record books for posterity. What happens here Saturday and Monday is all that's important now.

NWU Rebounds For Split Of Home Opener

By KEN HAMBLETON
State College Writer

The Northwest Missousri State baseball team had made Nebraska Wesleyan coach Ron Bachman begin to wonder about his veteran Plainsmen squad.

The Beatcats, 33-9 last year, won both ends of a twinbill against NWU last Saturday by the 10-run rule and won the first game of the Plainsmen's home opener 9-4 Wednesday afternoon at Sherman Field.

But Wesleyan's hitting finally caught up with its pitching and fielding in the second game to help the Plainsmen gain an 8-4 win over the Bearcats.

Northwest Missouri State jumped on NWU for seven runs in the second inning of the first game and kept NWU to four runs and four hits to boost its record to 6-4.

Mike Ginn, who relieved starter John Svehla in the second inning, held the Bearcats to two runs on seven hits and struck out six in six innings of relief, but a strong combined effort by starter David Hanson and Bob Downs preserved the win for NWMS.

The same early-inning woes struck the Plainsmen in the second game when the Bearcats scored three runs on one hit, an error and a wild pitch.

Wesleyan shortstop Scott Votava closed the gap in the second inning with a 370-foot homer over the left-center wall, scoring his brother Doug, who had walked.

Plainsman catcher Gene Lessman, who broke out of a slump by hitting three for three in the second game, led off the second inning with a double and then scored on a 350-foot blast over the left field wall by centerfielder Mike Reta, which put NWU into a 4-3 lead.

The Bearcats tied the game in the third when Joe Pascuzzi singled and then scored on a wild pitch, after going to third on a single by Tim Thompson.

But NWSM didn't threaten to score again as Ted Hall held the Bearcats to just two more hits, before being relieved by senior lefthander Larry Abel in the sixth inning.

Meanwhile, the Plainsmen scored the winning run in the fifth when Lessman singled, went to second on a passed ball, to third on a single by Reta and scored on an error by the catcher.

Wesleyan added three insurance runs in the fifth when Lessman tripled with the bases loaded to up the score to 8-4. In that inning, Votava gained first base on a dropped third strike and then stole second. Reed followed with an intentional walk and both runners advanced on a balk by losing pitcher Steve Mapel. Bearcat coach Jim Wasem argued the call and finished the game watching from the bleachers. Mapel then filled the bases by hitting Bob Blake.

Sophomore Hall picked up the win, going five innings in relief, allowing four hits and one run, while striking out six.

"When you beat a good team like Northwest Missouri State, it really means something," said NWU coach Bachman. "We finally made the turn and started getting the big hits with men on."

Five early NWU errors in the second game bothered Bachman, but he said he was proud of the team's effort. "We made a lot of errors because we hesitated a lot," Bachman said. "But our pitching came through for us and we got the hits to overcome our mistakes.

"Ginn did a good job in relief in the opener and Hall settled down and found his control in the second game," Bachman said. "We've played a lot of rough teams, but I think we're pretty good for being 4-8."

The Plainsmen open their NIAC conference season at 2 p.m. next Wednesday with a doubleheader against Doane at Tuxedo Park in Crete.

Randy York
Award Winner

Citation To York

Salisbury, N.C. — Lincoln Journal and Star prep editor Randy York was named Nebraska's Sportswriter of the Year.

The award was announced by the National Sportswriters and Sportscasters Association headquartered here. York and Don Gill, named Nebraska's Sportscaster of the Year, will be honored at the group's annual convention here in June. The award is York's second straight.

Kent Pavelka, sports director for KFAB in Omaha, was named Nebraska's delegate to the national convention.

Bartow Aware Of UCLA History

Los Angeles (AP) — Many have said Gene Bartow is unlucky to have followed the eminently successful John Wooden as coach of the UCLA Bruins, but perhaps Bartow is lucky on one count. He knows exactly what's expected of him.

"We're where we're supposed to be," Bartow said. "At least that's what they told me when I came here."

Where the Bruins are is in Philadelphia, in the NCAA basketball finals . . . but there's more.

By Saturday night, the Bruins are supposed to be one of the final two teams vying for the collegiate basketball title. By late Monday night, the Bruins are supposed to have proven they're the best, period!

There are, of course, a couple of stumbling blocks in the way of Bartow's Bruins. First, Saturday in Philadelphia, there is Indiana, a team that was 20 points better than UCLA when the two met in the first game of the season.

And should UCLA, a sixpoint underdog, upset the unbeaten and top-ranked Hoosiers, then the Bruins would have to beat the winner of the Michigan-Rutgers game in Monday's NCAA finale.

Only then would UCLA be where "it's supposed to be."

Bartow, whose team has apparently progressed a great deal since the opening 84-64 loss to Indiana, said he's looking forward to Saturday's rematch.

"Losing the game was awful," Bartow recalled. "But things are never as bad as they seem. I'm looking forward to playing them again, and so is the whole team. I know they're a super team and Bobby Knight is a super coach, but we've got a good team, too."

The Bruins' coach had said going into the first game that he wished it had come later, because Indiana was a seasoned, veteran club while his Bruins were not yet adjusted to his coaching techniques.

This time around, though, Bartow thinks the conditions are just right. "We're healthy, excited and it shapes up as a super game," he said. "I've never gone into a game that I didn't think I could win, and that goes for the first game with Indiana."

Bartow said the Bruins intend to play the game their way, trying not to get caught up in what Indiana does.

"We're going to emphasize what UCLA can do," Bartow remarked, "not what Indiana can do. And if we play the way we're capable of playing the way we played against Washington, Washington State and some other teams, I think we're going to win."

Rutgers: Surprises Can Happen

NEW BRUNSWICK, N.J. (AP) — "Anytime you get this far," says Rutgers Coach Tom Young, "all you need is two outstanding ball games. Who knows what can happen?"

What could happen is that Rutgers could finish its season 33-0. And if the Scarlet Knights do that, they'll be the NCAA basketball champions for their first time ever. And it'll be one of the year's biggest surprises.

Young acknowledges that similarly unbeaten but top-ranked Indiana is the favorite to win the title, but says he feels "anyone of the final four has a chance to win."

Young takes his fourth-ranked Knights to Philadelphia to face Michigan in the NCAA's semifinal round Saturday. The championship game is scheduled for Monday night.

"It takes your best effort of the year to make it out of the final four alive," he said. "Right now we're playing as well as we've been playing all year, but we can't afford a letdown . . . No one's going to win this thing unless they play well."

Young planned 1½-hour practice sessions for the Scarlet Knights for Wednesday and Thursday, before departing for Philadelphia's Spectrum on Friday.

As for the brevity of the sessions, Young said, "If they don't know it by now, they never will."

Saturday's Michigan-Rutgers game figures to be a wide-open, high-scoring affair, pitting two squads that like to run on offense and press on defense, he says. After that, Young doesn't care if his team meets Indiana or UCLA.

"If we get there I don't care who we play. It makes no difference because neither one would be easy."

Rutgers and Michigan have met once previously, way back in 1933. The Wolverines won that game 32-22.

Wightman Receives Probation

Omaha (UPI) — Nebraska defensive linebacker James Wightman was placed on six months probation Wednesday on a misdemeanor charge of assault and battery filed after an incident with Omaha police.

Wightman, of Omaha, pleaded no contest to the charge Jan. 16. The count was reduced from a felony to a misdemeanor by the Douglas County attorney's office.

Wednesday, Douglas County District Judge Samuel Caniglia ordered Wightman's attorney, Arthur J. O'Leary of Omaha, to supervise the six month probation rather than the adult probation office.

Wightman was charged following a scuffle with three Omaha police officers last Sept. 27 in north Omaha. The incident occurred following an alleged traffic violation.

Wightman, a sophomore, was red shirted as a freshman but saw considerable action with the Huskers last year.

4 NCAA Coaches Eye Each Other

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — The four coaches in the NCAA basketball championship playoffs to be held here this weekend Wednesday talked about muscle, speed, height, strength and "mystique."

Unbeaten Rutgers, 31 - 0, meets Michigan, 24-6, in the first game of the semifinals Saturday afternoon at the Spectrum. In the second game, top-ranked Indiana, also unbeaten with a 30-0, takes on defending champion UCLA, 26-4, winners of 10 of last 12 titles under John Wooden.

Tom Young, coach of the Rutgers team that surprised the experts with its undefeated season, said his squad has not "played anyone with a lot of muscle all season long, and playing a physicial Michigan team may hurt us a little bit, but our own quickness will be a big advantage to us."

But Michigan's Johnny Orr saw his team differently.

"We are a very small, skinny team," Orr said. "We're quick and have good jumping ability. If the big guys underneath don't get the ball, it comes out and our guys get it and go."

Bobby Knight of Indiana, whose team lost to Kentucky in the regionals last year when star forward Scott May was injured, said the availability of the 6-foot-7 All-American senior, "makes us a stronger club at this point than last year."

Morning Briefing

Stewart Chosen Top Area Coach

Norm Stewart
Coach Of The Year

Norm Stewart completed his ninth season as Missouri Basketball coach with his selection as the District Five Coach of the Year by the National Association of Basketball Coaches.

Stewart is eligible for the NABC's national Coach of the Year award, which will be presented this weekend at the NCAA basketball finals in Philadelphia.

Stewart's Tigers finished with a 26-5 record and the first undisputed league title in 46 years. Missouri also advanced to the NCAA tournament and finished as the Midwest Regional runnerup.

Other Basketball

Don Walsh, assistant basketball coach at the University of South Carolina, said he had withdrawn his name from consideration as head coach at Fordham and is openly seeking the coaching position at the University of Colorado.

Two Big Ten teams, Indiana and Michigan, were rated favorites to win the semifinal round of the NCAA basketball championships in Philadelphia this weekend in odds released by Harrah's Reno-Tahoe racebook.

Luisa Harris scored 29 points as Delta State opened defense of its national collegiate basketball championship by routing Penn State 88-46 in the first round of the Association for Intercollegiate Athletics for Women tournament. In other first-round action, unseeded Baylor upset Southern Connecticut, 76-72; Mississippi College downed Queens, 91-80. Montclair routed Portland. 86-49. Wayland Baptist squashed Utah 85-46, and Cal State-Fullerton blasted Wisconsin-LaCrosse, 103-85.

Cedric "Cornbread" Maxwell of North Carolina at Charlotte was the only unanimous selection on the 1976 all-NIT team Maxwell scored 109 points during the tourney. Other team members named are: Lew Massey, North Carolina-Charlotte; Jack Givens, Kentucky; Mike Phillips, Kentucky, and Kenny Carr, North Carolina State.

Baseball

Pitcher Andy Messersmith turned down a new offer from the Los Angeles Dodgers, club president Peter O'Malley said. O'Malley said the offer was "slightly higher" than the $540,000 three-year package previously offered and indicated it would be the Dodgers' final offer.

Baseball Hall of Fame pitcher Carl Hubbell was in "very good" condition following a hernia operation in Arizona.

Representatives of the Major League Players Association and the owners' Players Relations Committee met for five hours in an attempt to settle their complicated problems, but no progress was reported.

A fan has filed a $1 million suit against the Boston Red Sox and owner Tom Yawkey for a broken neck suffered during the World Series when a spectator tumbled 40 feet from a wall and fell on the fan

Horse Racing

The number of race tracks may be reduced in future years but not because of interstate off-track wagering, the head of New York City's Off-Track Betting Corporation told Congress Paul Screvane said the economic basis of racing has been allowed to deteriorate and that is the cause of many race tracks.

Four suspected bookies were ejected from Narragansett Park earlier this week in an apparent effort to stop the siphoning of betting money away from the track.

Football

The Minnesota Vikings signed 235-pound running back Willie Spencer. Spencer was considered one of the premier backs in the now-defunct World Football League. He never played in college, but he spent a year in semi-pro ball before a one and a half year WFL career.

West Des Moines Dowling high school coach Jim Williams accepted an assistant coaching job with the Iowa State University football program. Williams will join head coach Earle Bruce as an offensive linemen coach.

Other Sports

An 18-year-old Bloomington, Ind., man has been charged with drunken driving in connection with an auto accident that critically injured Indiana University track standout Steve Heidenreich last week.

A four-foot section of concrete broke away from a beam being installed on the main mast of the Olympic Stadium in Montreal, and plunged 185 feet into scaffolding. No injuries were reported in the accident, the second in a month at the site of the 1976 Summer Olympics

Bookies Called Arsonists, Linked To Track Brawl

EAST PROVIDENCE, R.I. (AP) — Authorities say they were told that a fight here Wednesday night in which a horse trainer was injured stemmed from bookmakers being kicked out of Narragansett Park.

Sgt. John Hardy of the East Providence Police Department said the trainer was struck with a cane and a police officer hit with a baseball bat during a scuffle at a bar outside the race track gates.

Asked if the fight stemmed from reports that the bookies were somehow involved in the race track fire Monday night, Hardy said "statements to that effect" were made by witnesses to the fight.

"The witnesses feel that there is a connection between the beatings tonight and the bookies being kicked off the track," Hardy said. "They also said there were other unreported beatings."

Two men were arrested after the fight and charged with assault. They were identified as Walter J. Ciccia, 25, and Armando Ugarte, 29, both of Pawtucket, R.I.

Hardy said Ciccia was charged with assaulting Patrolman Walter Cook, 40, with a baseball bat. He said Cook declined treatment for his injuries.

The trainer injured in the fight was identified as Frank Dullea, 28, Chepatchet, R.I. Officials said Dullea suffered cuts to his forehead, right arm and right eye. He was taken to Pawtucket Memorial Hospital for treatment.

Meanwhile, racing sources told The Associated Press that they received tips from unidentified callers that the fire was set by the bookies. The blaze destroyed two stables and killed more than 20 thoroughbreds.

The sources said the bookies were angry because track officials had kicked them off the track grounds on Monday. The fire broke out in a stall of one of the barns about 8:40 p.m. EST Monday.

No official reports on the cause of the fire have yet been issued. However, a spokesman for the state fire marshall's office said earlier Wednesday that the findings should be ready Thursday morning.

Published reports Wednesday morning said four suspected bookmakers were ejected from Narragansett Park earlier in the week because the bookies were siphoning betting money away from the track.

A Narragansett official acknowledged that the men were asked to leave the track after the second race Monday, but he declined to elaborate.

The fire Monday night resulted in the immediate deaths of 22 horses. Since then, six others have been put to death because of burns and other injuries.

Gus DelFarno of the Horsemen's Benevolent and Protective Association said Wednesday that the number of horses that fell victim to the fire rose to 28 after two more had to be killed.

DelFarno said the animals were worth an average of $5,000, making the total about $140,000. He also said about $20,000 in racing equipment was lost in the blaze.

"But that's small compared to the horses that got injured," DelFarno added. "It could run as high as 50 horses."

He said that HBPA officials would begin Thursday morning to check each barn for injured animals so the organization could come up with an official estimate of the losses.

The HBPA carries $10,000 in insurance on each of its members' horses and $500 on their racing equipment. He said the association had already advanced about $5,000 to the horsemen so they could start running again immediately.

Dodgers Use Expos For Practice

By The Associated Press

In the eighth inning of Wednesday's exhibition baseball game against Montreal, the Los Angeles Dodgers made up for some of the batting practice they lost to the delayed start of spring training.

The Dodgers sent 14 batters to the plate against pitchers Chuck Taylor, Ed Riley and Fred Scherman, poured across nine runs on nine hits and two walks and trounced the Expos 13-4. The outburst included a two-run triple by Bill Buckner and a two-run pinch single by Manny Mota.

Catcher Carlton Fisk's tie-breaking single in the seventh inning gave the Boston Red Sox a 7-6 victory over the Houston Astros. A two-run ninth-inning homer by non-roster player Jason Thompson powered the Detroit Tigers past the St. Louis Cardinals 8-6.

The Chicago White Sox split their squad and a pair of games. The 'A' team used home runs by Cleon Jones and Bob Oliver to beat the Pittsburgh Pirates 6-1 while the 'B' squad lost to the Minnesota Twins 6-2 on a five-run third inning that featured Larry Hisle's two-run double.

Five Atlanta errors and Tommy Hutton's two-run single helped the Philadelphia Phillies beat the Braves 6-1 while Lee Stanton homered in the California Angels' 4-1 triumph over the Cleveland Indians.

The San Francisco Giants used Von Joshua's three-run homer in the fifth inning to turn back the Milwaukee Brewers 3-1 and the Chicago Cubs scored three times in the 10th inning, two coming when San Diego outfielder Bobby Valentine dropped a fly ball, and beat the Padres 9-6.

Newly acquired Dave Nelson singled twice, drove in a run and stole home to lead the Kansas City Royals over his old club, the Texas Rangers, 8-3.

In night action, the Cincinnati Reds played the Baltimore Orioles, the New York Yankees faced the New York Mets and the Oakland A's met the University of Arizona.

Morning Briefing

Stewart Chosen Top Area Coach

Norm Stewart
Coach Of The Year

Norm Stewart completed his ninth season as Missouri Basketball coach with his selection as the District Five Coach of the Year by the National Association of Basketball Coaches.

Stewart is eligible for the NABC's national Coach of the Year award, which will be presented this weekend at the NCAA basketball finals in Philadelphia.

Stewart's Tigers finished with a 26-5 record and the first undisputed league title in 46 years. Missouri also advanced to the NCAA tournament and finished as the Midwest Regional runnerup.

Other Basketball

Don Walsh, assistant basketball coach at the University of South Carolina, said he had withdrawn his name from consideration as head coach at Fordham and is openly seeking the coaching position at the University of Colorado.

Two Big Ten teams, Indiana and Michigan, were rated favorites to win the semifinal round of the NCAA basketball championships in Philadelphia this weekend in odds released by Harrah's Reno-Tahoe racebook.

Luisa Harris scored 29 points as Delta State opened defense of its national collegiate basketball championship by routing Penn State 88-46 in the first round of the Association for Intercollegiate Athletics for Women tournament. In other first-round action, unseeded Baylor upset Southern Connecticut, 76-72; Mississippi College downed Queens, 91-80; Montclair routed Portland, 86-49; Wayland Baptist squashed Utah 85-46; and Cal State-Fullerton blasted Wisconsin-LaCrosse, 103-85.

Cedric "Cornbread" Maxwell of North Carolina at Charlotte was the only unanimous selection on the 1976 all-NIT team. Maxwell scored 109 points during the tourney. Other team members named are: Lew Massey, North Carolina-Charlotte; Jack Givens, Kentucky; Mike Phillips, Kentucky; and Kenny Carr, North Carolina State.

Baseball

Pitcher Andy Messersmith turned down a new offer from the Los Angeles Dodgers, club president Peter O'Malley said. O'Malley said the offer was "slightly higher" than the $540,000 three-year package previously offered and indicated it would be the Dodgers' final offer.

Baseball Hall of Fame pitcher Carl Hubbell was in "very good" condition following a hernia operation in Arizona.

Representatives of the Major League Players Association and the owners' Players Relations Committee met for five hours in an attempt to settle their complicated problems, but no progress was reported.

A fan has filed a $1 million suit against the Boston Red Sox and owner Tom Yawkey for a broken neck suffered during the World Series when a spectator tumbled 40 feet from a wall and fell on the fan.

Horse Racing

The number of race tracks may be reduced in future years but not because of interstate off-track wagering, the head of New York City's Off-Track Betting Corporation told Congress. Paul Screvane said the economic basis of racing has been allowed to deteriorate and that is the cause of many race tracks.

Four suspected bookies were ejected from Narragansett Park earlier this week in an apparent effort to stop the siphoning of betting money away from the track.

Football

The Minnesota Vikings signed 235-pound running back Willie Spencer. Spencer was considered one of the premier backs in the now-defunct World Football League. He never played in college, but he spent a year in semi-pro ball before a one and a half year WFL career.

West Des Moines Dowling high school coach Jim Williams accepted an assistant coaching job with the Iowa State University football program. Williams will join head coach Earle Bruce as an offensive linemen coach.

Other Sports

An 18-year-old Bloomington, Ind., man has been charged with drunken driving in connection with an auto accident that critically injured Indiana University track standout Steve Heidenreich last week.

A four-foot section of concrete broke away from a beam being installed on the main mast of the Olympic Stadium in Montreal, and plunged 185 feet into scaffolding. No injuries were reported in the accident, the second in a month at the site of the 1976 Summer Olympics.

Sen. Abraham Ribicoff, D-Conn., introduced a resolution opposing Soviet attempts to bar Radio Free Europe from covering the 1976 Montreal Olympics.

Jim Stefanich averaged 239 to take a first-round lead in the St. Louis $100,000 PBA tournament.

Gary Dornhoefer, the Philadelphia Flyers right wing has been stricken with viral pneumonia and will be out for a week to 10 days. He had played in all 74 Flyer games this year.

Olympic speed-skating champion Sheila Young of Detroit got an official welcome home which included a telegram from President Ford and a king-sized supply of hot fudge sundaes.

A swimming heavyweight battle is expected to shape up in the NCAA swimming and diving championships this week in the 500-freestyle event. Two-time defending champion John Naber of USC and Tim Shaw, a freshman at Long Beach State, the world record holder in the event, highlight the three-day meet at Brown University.

Toma R. Ovici, a member of the Romanian Davis Cup team, was reported in critical condition after he was struck by a car just west of the Omaha city limits. Ovici was visiting an Omaha family he met while playing in the Midwest Tennis meet in Omaha three years ago.

Hindman Wall, athletic director at the University of Cincinnati, is expected to be named to the vacant AD post at Kansas State, according to the Topeka State Journal and the Wichita Beacon.

Bookies Called Arsonists, Linked To Track Brawl

EAST PROVIDENCE, R.I. (AP) — Authorities say they were told that a fight here Wednesday night in which a horse trainer was injured stemmed from bookmakers being kicked out of Narragansett Park.

Sgt. John Hardy of the East Providence Police Department said the trainer was struck with a cane and a police officer hit with a baseball bat during a scuffle at a bar outside the race track gates.

Asked if the fight stemmed from reports that the bookies were somehow involved in the race track fire Monday night, Hardy said "statements to that effect" were made by witnesses to the fight.

"The witnesses feel that there is a connection between the beatings tonight and the bookies being kicked off the track," Hardy said. "They also said there were other unreported beatings."

Two men were arrested after the fight and charged with assault. They were identified as Walter J. Ciccia, 25, and Armando Ugarte, 29, both of Pawtucket, R.I.

Hardy said Ciccia was charged with assaulting Patrolman Walter Cook, 40, with a baseball bat. He said Cook declined treatment for his injuries.

The trainer injured in the fight was identified as Frank Dullea, 28, Chepatchet, R.I. Officials said Dullea suffered cuts to his forehead, right arm and right eye. He was taken to Pawtucket Memorial Hospital for treatment.

Meanwhile, racing sources told The Associated Press that they received tips from unidentified callers that the fire was set by the bookies. The blaze destroyed two stables and killed more than 20 thoroughbreds.

The sources said the bookies were angry because track officials had kicked them off the track grounds on Monday. The fire broke out in a stall of one of the barns about 8:40 p.m. EST Monday.

No official reports on the cause of the fire have yet been issued. However, a spokesman for the state fire marshall's office said earlier Wednesday that the findings should be ready Thursday morning.

Published reports Wednesday morning said four suspected bookmakers were ejected from Narragansett Park earlier in the week because the bookies were siphoning betting money away from the track.

A Narragansett official acknowledged that the men were asked to leave the track after the second race Monday, but he declined to elaborate.

The fire Monday night resulted in the immediate deaths of 22 horses. Since then, six others have been put to death because of burns and other injuries.

Gus DelFarno of the Horsemen's Benevolent and Protective Association said Wednesday that the number of horses that fell victim to the fire rose to 28 after two more had to be killed.

DelFarno said the animals were worth an average of $5,000, making the total about $140,000. He also said about $20,000 in racing equipment was lost in the blaze.

"But that's small compared to the horses that got injured," DelFarno added. "It could run as high as 50 horses."

He said that HBPA officials would begin Thursday morning to check each barn for injured animals so the organization could come up with an official estimate of the losses.

The HBPA carries $10,000 in insurance on each of its members' horses and $500 on their racing equipment. He said the association had already advanced about $5,000 to the horsemen so they could start running again immediately.

Dodgers Use Expos For Practice

By The Associated Press

In the eighth inning of Wednesday's exhibition baseball game against Montreal, the Los Angeles Dodgers made up for some of the batting practice they lost to the delayed start of spring training.

The Dodgers sent 14 batters to the plate against pitchers Chuck Taylor, Ed Riley and Fred Scherman, poured across nine runs on nine hits and two walks and trounced the Expos 13-4. The outburst included a two-run triple by Bill Buckner and a two-run pinch single by Manny Mota.

Catcher Carlton Fisk's tie-breaking single in the seventh inning gave the Boston Red Sox a 7-6 victory over the Houston Astros. A two-run ninth-inning homer by non-roster player Jason Thompson powered the Detroit Tigers past the St. Louis Cardinals 8-6.

The Chicago White Sox split their squad and a pair of games. The 'A' team used home runs by Cleon Jones and Bob Oliver to beat the Pittsburgh Pirates 6-1 while the 'B' squad lost to the Minnesota Twins 6-2 on a five-run third inning that featured Larry Hisle's two-run double.

Five Atlanta errors and Tommy Hutton's two-run single helped the Philadelphia Phillies beat the Braves 6-1 while Lee Stanton homered in the California Angels' 4-1 triumph over the Cleveland Indians.

The San Francisco Giants used Von Joshua's three-run homer in the fifth inning to turn back the Milwaukee Brewers 3-1 and the Chicago Cubs scored three times in the 10th inning, two coming when San Diego outfielder Bobby Valentine dropped a fly ball, and beat the Padres 9-6.

Newly acquired Dave Nelson singled twice, drove in a run and stole home to lead the Kansas City Royals over his old club, the Texas Rangers, 8-3.

NU Swimmers Go To NCAA

Nebraska breaststroker Bryan Moss and diver Dave Watermeier will accompany Husker coach John Reta to Providence, R.I. this weekend for the 53rd annual NCAA Swimming Championships, held at Brown University.

For Moss, a sophomore, it will be his second trip to the nationals. Last year, he qualified by winning the Big Eight title in the 100 and 200-yard breaststroke. Then at the NCAA meet in 1975, Moss' times of :58.974 in the 100 and 2:08.236 in the 200 earned him another trip to this year's NCAA meet.

At the Big Eight this year, Moss finished seventh in the 100 breaststroke with a time of 59.40, and placed fourth in the 200 with a 2:13.16 clocking.

Watermeier, a senior from Lincoln, qualified in the diving this year with a mark of 442.00.

Parks Bill Wins Approval

By The Associated Press

The legislature Wednesday gave preliminary approval to a bill which would allow the Game and Parks Commission to contract with the U.S. Bureau of Reclamation to develop recreational areas in connection, with the O'Neill and North Loup irrigation projects. The bill, LB779, was voted preliminary approval on a vote of 26-1.

The state share of the recreational area costs would eventually be $1.97 million according to the fiscal impact statement, but no money is appropriated by the bill.

Lake McConaughy Area Has It All

It's All Outdoors

By Tom Vint
Outdoor Editor

Those of you who made it to the Omaha Boat, Vacation and Travel Show last month found out that the resorts, bait shops and camping areas around Lake McConaughy have finally put it all together.

They put it together in a brochure, "Nebraska's Big Lake MC CONAUGHY, Directory & Map" which holds all the names and locations of recreational sites around the lake.

Lake McConaughy's 21 concessions logged all the pertinent information as to what's available and where in this handy booklet. To my knowledge, it's the first time all the people out at Big Mac have gotten together to put out one big package for everyone.

Western Outlook Public Relations (P.O. Box 359, Ogallala) producers of the booklet.

At last, for the camper or boat owner who, like me, can't back a car up to the hitch without having three persons around giving directions, "The Bull's Eye Hitcher-Upper" has arrived.

The Bull's Eye Hitcher-Upper is a three-point system aimed at lining up the boat or camper with the trailer hitch on the car without the need for additional help.

It's simple. All the Hitcher-Upper amounts to is a bull's eye placed on the center of the boat or trailer, a cross-hair mirror sight to be attached to the rear-view mirror and a quarter-sized dot fastened to the back window.

When backing up straight to the boat or trailer hitch, all the driver has to do is line up the target, dot and cross hairs — bull's eye. He's hitched his rig single-handedly.

Spring Rush Time

It's spring, temperature-wise if not officially. That makes it legal to pull Momma and the kids out of doors for camping trips or shakedown cruises for the boat

It gets a little nippy in the mornings and evenings, but that doesn't seem to ever stop, much less slow down, the folks who want to get a jump on everyone else.

The state's boat ramps are now in on most of the Game and Parks Commission operated and maintained lakes. The Inland Shores Marina also has its docks and boat slips installed at Branched Oak for the season.

The campers are going to have to wait a little bit for the official opening of the state parks, however May 15 is the traditional opening day for the state's five state parks, according to the commission

Unofficially, state recreation areas, camp sites at state parks and, of course, most of the private camp grounds across the state, are open as soon as the snow has melted and the mud has dried Campers already dot campsites on the Salt Balley Lake system.

So, even with the cold evenings, boaters and campers are thumbing their noses at those who say it's too early Just take along an extra sweatshirt and a blanket Try it, you'll like it, too

Lamar Decks NU Batmen, 8-0, 9-1

Beaumont Texas — The University of Nebraska baseball team suffered its two most lopsided losses of a 12-game southern swing here Tuesday at the hands of Lamar 8-0 and 9-1

Lamar jumped on Husker starter Steve Nagle to score four runs in the first inning of the opener Nebraska could manage just three base hits off Lamar s Ray Heppt who pitched the distance for the win

Nebraska reliever Terry Shields was charged with three more runs after giving up eight bases on balls

Nebraska which has been in contention in every other game during the pre league trip despite winning just two of the 12 games stayed within reach until the sixth inning of the nightcap contest

But four walks an error and two base hits combined for five Lamar runs to settle the issue The Huskers who committed just four errors in the first eight games of the road trip were guilty of five miscues in the second game of Tuesday s doubleheader

Nebraska was scheduled for a final pair of games against the University of Dallas Wednesday afternoon but early morning rains threatened to wash out the wrapup contests

Coach Tony Sharpe s Huskers open their home schedule in Lincoln next Tuesday with a doubleheader against Buena Vista College

Longet Awaits Lab Tests

Aspen Colo (UPI) — Investigators Wednesday said they were awaiting laboratory results before deciding whether to charge singer Claudine Longet with anything other than negligent homicide in the death of her lover former pro ski champion Vladimir Spider Sabich

We don t have the lab reports back yet said District Attorney Frank Tucker Some of the work is being done by private labs and I expected them before this '

Tucker said Miss Longet would not be charged before a formal hearing April 8

He also said investigators decided to talk again to acquaintances of Miss Longet, 35 , and Sabich about the shooting Sunday in Sabich s $250 000 spacious home in the Rocky Mountain ski resort

Tucker said some unanswered questions in the case included where the shooting occurred in the glass and stone house in the exclusive Starwood subdivision where Sabich 31 and Miss Longet had lived for the past two years

Lamar Decks NU Batmen, 8-0, 9-1

Beaumont, Texas — The University of Nebraska baseball team suffered its two most lopsided losses of a 12-game southern swing here Tuesday at the hands of Lamar, 8-0 and 9-1.

Lamar jumped on Husker starter Steve Nagle to score four runs in the first inning of the opener. Nebraska could manage just three base hits off Lamar's Ray Heppt, who pitched the distance for the win.

Nebraska reliever Terry Shields was charged with three more runs after giving up eight bases-on-balls.

Nebraska, which has been in contention in every other game during the pre-league trip despite winning just two of the 12 games, stayed within reach until the sixth inning of the nightcap contest.

But four walks, an error and two base hits combined for five Lamar runs to settle the issue. The Huskers, who committed just four errors in the first eight games of the road trip, were guilty of five miscues in the second game of Tuesday's doubleheader.

Nebraska was scheduled for a final pair of games against the University of Dallas Wednesday afternoon, but early morning rains threatened to wash out the wrapup contests.

Longet Awaits Lab Tests

Aspen, Colo. (UPI) — Investigators Wednesday said they were awaiting laboratory results before deciding whether to charge singer Claudine Longet with anything other than negligent homicide in the death of her lover, former pro ski champion Vladimir "Spider" Sabich.

"We don't have the lab reports back yet," said District Attorney Frank Tucker. "Some of the work is being done by private labs and I expected them before this."

Tucker said Miss Longet would not be charged before a formal hearing April 8.

He also said investigators decided to talk again to acquaintances of Miss Longet, 35 , and Sabich about the shooting Sunday in Sabich's $250,000 spacious home in the Rocky Mountain ski resort.

Tucker said some unanswered questions in the case included where the shooting occurred in the glass and stone house in the exclusive Starwood subdivision where Sabich 31, and Miss Longet had lived for the past two years.

Intercity Bus Firms Seek Fare Increase

(c) Washington Star

Washington — The nation's bus industry, losing money steadily for the first time in years, has asked the Interstate Commerce Commission for a 6% increase in all fares less than $40, except commuter fares. The increase would become effective April 1 unless it is blocked by the commission. Last year, 360 million passengers rode buses. The lack of ballyhoo surrounding the requests for higher fares is in marked contrast to the publicity that accompanied the announcements of big discounts in fares the large bus companies put into effect last fall and winter.

Teamsters Arrange To Take Strike Vote

ARLINGTON HEIGHTS, Ill. (AP) — Teamsters arranged a strike authorization vote for this weekend at a meeting Wednesday of some 1,000 local union officials from across the nation as contract bargaining continued.

The union meeting was delayed for four hours as talks continued, but trucking industry representatives apparently failed to budge from a previous contract offer. The offer will be submitted to union members with a recommendation for rejection, sources said.

Those attending the closed meeting refused comment on the discussions and Frank E. Fitzsimmons, president of the International Brotherhood of Teamsters, avoided reporters before and after Wednesday's session.

The current National Master Freight Agreement, which covers 400,000 truckers and warehousemen, expires at midnight March 31.

Talks recessed Wednesday, but one Midwest union official said that negotiations will continue and proceed "right through the 31st. The romance is still going on."

Labor Secretary W.J. Usery Jr. talked separately with both sides for about 18 hours Tuesday and into Wednesday morning. He then returned to Washington and said that if negotiations at the Arlington Park Hilton break down, he may return them to the nation's capital.

The talks have been held in this northwest Chicago suburb since Feb. 10, after beginning in Washington.

The Ford administration has expressed fears that if the trucking industry is paralyzed by a nationwide strike, the country's economic recovery may be dealt a severe blow.

Sources put the latest offer from the Trucking Employers, Inc. (TEI), the industry bargaining unit, at about a 20% increase over three years for salaries, fringe benefits and cost of living.

Teamsters officials reportedly have said they will not settle for less than a 30% increase.

Sources have indicated that most of the nonmonetary issues have been resolved and the primary stumbling block now is a cost-of-living increase. The Teamsters are seeking a cost-of-living hike with no ceiling on it, but TEI reportedly is unwilling to grant that.

Citizen's Proposals Discussed

Local planners continued discussion Wednesday on various statements proposed by the citizens Goals and Policies Committee.

The City-County Planning Commission is reviewing the committee's latest proposals and will continue discussions at a special meeting 12:30 p.m. April 7.

In other business the commission:

—Approved amendment to the Comprehensive Plan to remove R St. between 27th and 33rd as a "major" street and designated it a "local" street.

—Approved vacation of east-west alley in Blk. 7, Capitol Beach Add., between Q and R, from Brookside Dr. east to Capitol Beach Add.

—Denied application of Mrs. L. R. Blankenship from G Local Business to A-2 Single Family at 70th and Adams.

—Approved application of Knights of Columbus to use building for clubroom on north side of South St., between Manor Court and E. Manor Dr

—Approved application of Jerry Joce to construct community unit plan and amend special permit of Tranquility Base Replat, near 44th and Turner

—Deferred action on proposed vacation of portion of W. Charleston from north bank of Oak Creek to point 70 feet south of south bank of Oak Creek.

Social Security Changes Eyed

By JANE BRYANT QUINN

Jane Bryant Quinn

New York — A lot of people want to change the Social Security system — to their own benefit of course, and at the cost of higher taxes all around Here are some of the suggested amendments

DISCRIMINATION AGAINST WOMEN. A number of technical aspects of the law favor men For example, if a husband and wife in a community property state run a business, Social Security considers the income his unless the wife exercises substantially all the control herself The reform of this and other minor provisions are not expensive and will eventually be straightened out, if not by Congress, then by the courts

But there s one major policy question Working wives now get either the Social Security benefit derived from their paychecks or their benefit as wives whichever is larger Many women think they should have some combination of both, to set themselves apart from wives who never contributed anything to Social Security This is an expensive proposal indeed

I m against it, even though I myself am a working wife There s nothing in the law that says taxpayers should "get their money back from Social Security — and a lot don't Many professionals, for example, collect few or no benefits because they keep an active practice going right into their old age Should they get consolation checks?

The fact is that your payments are not an insurance premium to be returned at retirement, but merely a tax whose proceeds are used to support a broad-based retirement/welfare system

DISCRIMINATION AGAINST MEN Many technical provisions fail to give men the same benefits as women For example disabled divorced widows can receive spouse s benefits if they were married 20 years but not disabled divorced widowers By extension, provisions like these also discriminate against women, since their earnings don t generate the same level of protection for their families that men s wages do Most of these quirks will soon be cleared up either by legislation or court action

But there s a potentially expensive provision here, too A spouse s benefit is now paid to a husband only if he can prove dependency on his wife, whereas a wife is presumed to be dependent If men were treated the same way, a lot of money would be paid to husbands who don't need it

For example a man who worked in a non-Social Security job (like civil service) with a pension of his own, married to a woman covered by Social Security could automatically get a dependent spouse s benefit

Women in the same position can and do claim this windfall now But it isn t fair in either case

DISCRIMINATION AGAINST SOME WORKING COUPLES· A working wife generally gets half her husband's retirement benefit unless her own benefit is higher Because of this some working couples get a smaller retirement check than couples that had the same income but only one breadwinner This particularly affects people in the lower brackets, who are also the least likely to have other sources of income Working couples should be able to apply for benefits based on their combined incomes if that is more advantageous This proposal is expensive but the payments go to people more likely to be in need

THE ANNUAL EARNINGS TEST In general every $2 you earn over $2 760 reduces your benefit by $1 So you gain only $1 in gross income which is reduced to practically nothing by income and Social Security taxes and work-related expenses A Social Security advisory council has suggested that you should be allowed $3 of earnings for every $1 withheld That would be a great help to people who have to supplement Social Security with their labor, rather than from savings or private pensions

Stocks Soar; Dow Tops 1,000 Level

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market ran up its second sharp gain in a row Wednesday in a surge of buying that carried the Dow Jones industrial average through the 1,000 level with little resistance

The closely watched average of blue chips picked up 13 78 to 1,009 21, its highest close since its finished at 1,018 66 on Jan 23, 1973

That brought the Dow's gain since the start of the week to 29 36 points, and left it just 42 points short of its all-time closing high of 1,051,70 on Jan 11, 1973

The daily tally of New York Stock Exchange-listed issues showed gainers outlegging losers by abot a 5-2 margin

Big Board volume accelerated to 32 61 million shares from 22 45 million Tuesday It was the heaviest turnover on the exchange since a 34 32 million-share day Feb 26

The Dow had touched 1,000 five times March 9-11, reaching a peak close of 1,003 31 on the 11th But in each of those forays the average met with some stiff resistance from profit takers

On Wednesday, by contrast, the Dow shot through 1,000 within the first half hour and kept moving ahead without so much as a hint of hesitation That show of strength, in turn, seemed to bring in additional buyers before the market leveled off in the afternoon

Possible Sale Of Cornhusker Was Discussed

There have been discussions about the sale of Lincoln's Radisson Cornhusker Hotel, but there s been no money offered and no contract signed, according to a Radisson Hotel Corporation spokesman in Minneapolis

The potential buyers are "mainly businessmen," said Ron Eastman, vice president of Carlson Properties, Inc Radisson and Carlson are subsidiaries of the Carlson Companies empire (Gold Bond stamps and Arden showrooms)

The Cornhusker is not listed with any real estate firm, Eastman said But any of the Radisson s 13 hotels plus two under construction are "always for sale at the right price," he said

It would take up to $2 million to buy the Cornhusker, Eastman said

Indoor Start Helps

Cattle Prices Turn Higher

OMAHA, Neb (AP)—Following up on the Tuesday's strong undertone on late rounds, cattle prices turned higher on the Omaha livestock market Wednesday on a reduced run

Butcher hogs remained mostly steady, while, for the third straight day, the sheep trade produced another record

The day's hog run was estimated at about 3,200 head, and the trade on barrows and gilts was fairly active

The cattle run was also estimated at about 3,200 head The trade on slaughter steers and heifers was quite active, with steers moving unevenly 50-cents to $1 00 higher, and heifers posting gains of 50-to-75 cents Cows tended steady to weak in only moderate activity

The sheep run was estimated at about 600 head, with shorn slaughter lambs making up the bulk of the supply Shorn lambs turned 75-cents higher, while the trend on the few wooled lambs on offer was called steady Ewes were scarce

Commodity Trade Mixed

Chicago (AP) — Commodity futures were mixed on the Chicago Board of Trade Wednesday with wheat declining slightly and soybeans posting modest gains

Corn and oats were mostly up a cent or less

Wheat prices fell 2 to 3 cents

Soybeans were up more than 3 cents as rains and thunderstorms dampened the soybean belt from Missouri and Iowa eastward

Social Security Changes Eyed

By JANE BRYANT QUINN

Jane Bryant Quinn

New York — A lot of people want to change the Social Security system — to their own benefit, of course, and at the cost of higher taxes all around. Here are some of the suggested amendments:

DISCRIMINATION AGAINST WOMEN: A number of technical aspects of the law favor men. For example, if a husband and wife in a community property state run a business, Social Security considers the income his unless the wife exercises substantially all the control herself. The reform of this and other minor provisions are not expensive and will eventually be straightened out, if not by Congress, then by the courts.

But there's one major policy question. Working wives now get either the Social Security benefit derived from their paychecks or their benefit as wives, whichever is larger. Many women think they should have some combination of both, to set themselves apart from wives who never contributed anything to Social Security. This is an expensive proposal indeed.

I'm against it, even though I myself am a working wife. There's nothing in the law that says taxpayers should "get their money back" from Social Security — and a lot don't. Many professionals, for example, collect few or no benefits because they keep an active practice going right into their old age. Should they get consolation checks?

The fact is that your payments are not an insurance premium, to be returned at retirement, but merely a tax whose proceeds are used to support a broad-based retirement/welfare system.

DISCRIMINATION AGAINST MEN: Many technical provisions fail to give men the same benefits as women. For example, disabled divorced widows can receive spouse's benefits if they were married 20 years, but not disabled divorced widowers. By extension, provisions like these also discriminate against women, since their earnings don't generate the same level of protection for their families that men's wages do. Most of these quirks will soon be cleared up, either by legislation or court action.

But there's a potentially expensive provision here, too. A spouse's benefit is now paid to a husband only if he can prove dependency on his wife, whereas a wife is presumed to be dependent. If men were treated the same way, a lot of money would be paid to husbands who don't need it.

For example, a man who worked in a non-Social Security job (like civil service) with a pension of his own, married to a woman covered by Social Security, could automatically get a dependent spouse's benefit.

Women in the same position can, and do, claim this windfall now. But it isn't fair in either case.

DISCRIMINATION AGAINST SOME WORKING COUPLES: A working wife generally gets half her husband's retirement benefit, unless her own benefit is higher. Because of this, some working couples get a smaller retirement check than couples that had the same income but only one breadwinner. This particularly affects people in the lower brackets, who are also the least likely to have other sources of income. Working couples should be able to apply for benefits based on their combined incomes, if that is more advantageous. This proposal is expensive, but the payments go to people more likely to be in need.

THE ANNUAL EARNINGS TEST: In general, every $2 you earn over $2,760 reduces your benefit by $1. So you gain only $1 in gross income, which is reduced to practically nothing by income and Social Security taxes, and work-related expenses. A Social Security advisory council has suggested that you should be allowed $3 of earnings for every $1 withheld. That would be a great help to people who have to supplement Social Security with their labor, rather than from savings or private pensions.

Stocks Soar; Dow Tops 1,000 Level

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market ran up its second sharp gain in a row Wednesday in a surge of buying that carried the Dow Jones industrial average through the 1,000 level with little resistance.

The closely watched average of blue chips picked up 13.78 to 1,009.21, its highest close since its finished at 1,018.66 on Jan. 23, 1973.

That brought the Dow's gain since the start of the week to 29.36 points, and left it just 42 points short of its all-time closing high of 1,051,70 on Jan. 11, 1973.

The daily tally of New York Stock Exchange-listed issues showed gainers outlegging losers by abot a 5-2 margin.

Big Board volume accelerated to 32.61 million shares from 22.45 million Tuesday. It was the heaviest turnover on the exchange since a 34.32 million-share day Feb. 26.

The Dow had touched 1,000 five times March 9-11, reaching a peak close of 1,003.31 on the 11th. But in each of those forays the average met with some stiff resistance from profit takers.

On Wednesday, by contrast, the Dow shot through 1,000 within the first half hour and kept moving ahead without so much as a hint of hesitation. That show of strength, in turn, seemed to bring in additional buyers before the market leveled off in the afternoon.

Possible Sale Of Cornhusker Was Discussed

There have been discussions about the sale of Lincoln's Radisson Cornhusker Hotel, but there's been no money offered and no contract signed, according to a Radisson Hotel Corporation spokesman in Minneapolis.

The potential buyers are "mainly businessmen," said Ron Eastman, vice president of Carlson Properties, Inc. Radisson and Carlson are subsidiaries of the Carlson Companies empire (Gold Bond stamps and Arden showrooms.)

The Cornhusker is not listed with any real estate firm, Eastman said. But any of the Radisson's 13 hotels, plus two under construction, are "always for sale at the right price," he said.

It would take "up to $2 million" to buy the Cornhusker, Eastman said.

Indoor Start Helps

Doylestown, Pa. (UPI) — Beans, carrots and corn do best if they are sown directly into the garden, but many other plants and flowers benefit from an indoor start, says a seedsman here. Tomatoes and plants with long growing seasons give earlier results if they are started indoors and transplanted as seedlings as soon as weather permits.

Cattle Prices Turn Higher

OMAHA, Neb. (AP)—Following up on the Tuesday's strong undertone on late rounds, cattle prices turned higher on the Omaha livestock market Wednesday on a reduced run.

Butcher hogs remained mostly steady, while, for the third straight day, the sheep trade produced another record.

The day's hog run was estimated at about 3,200 head, and the trade on barrows and gilts was fairly active.

The cattle run was also estimated at about 3,200 head. The trade on slaughter steers and heifers was quite active, with steers moving unevenly 50-cents to $1.00 higher, and heifers posting gains of 50-to-75 cents. Cows tended steady to weak in only moderate activity.

The sheep run was estimated at about 600 head, with shorn slaughter lambs making up the bulk of the supply. Shorn lambs turned 75-cents higher, while the trend on the few wooled lambs on offer was called steady. Ewes were scarce.

Commodity Trade Mixed

Chicago (AP) — Commodity futures were mixed on the Chicago Board of Trade Wednesday with wheat declining slightly and soybeans posting modest gains.

Corn and oats were mostly up a cent or less.

Wheat prices fell 2 to 3 cents.

Soybeans were up more than 3 cents as rains and thunderstorms dampened the soybean belt from Missouri and Iowa eastward.

Swedes Protest Alleged U.S. Spy Activities

STOCKHOLM, Sweden (AP) - The Swedish Foreign Office Wednesday summoned the U.S. charge d'affaires to deliver a verbal protest against alleged spy activities by an American diplomat who already has left the country.

The ministry officials expressed the government's "strong disapproval" that Bruce Hutchins, a former second secretary at the U.S. Embassy, had been operating in Sweden as an agent for the Central Intelligence Agency, it was announced.

The diplomatic move followed a claim in a leftist magazine that Hutchins about one year ago tried to hire a Kenyan citizen, Arthur Opot, to get information about certain African embassies in Stockholm and some Swedish newsmen who covered the war in Angola.

The charges led to an investigation by the Swedish security police.

The U.S. Embassy has refused to comment on the case.

Film Director Bergman Cleared Of Tax Fraud

Stockholm, Sweden (UPI) — Famed film director Ingmar Bergman Wednesday was cleared of tax fraud charges which had reportedly sent him to a mental hospital with a nervous breakdown.

Government prosecutor Anders Nordenadler announced at a news conference, "I am not able to find any basis for further investigation or charges" against Bergman, director of such movies as "The Virgin Spring" and "Wild Strawberries."

The original charges, filed by District Prosecutor Curt Dreifaldt, said the film director had defrauded the government of $114,000 on undeclared income from his Swiss film company Persona, and had not informed the Swedish National Bank that he was transferring the money from Switzerland to Sweden.

"Bergman has not received any cash from Persona which has not been properly declared," Nordenadler said. "At one point his lawyer failed to report dividend incomes but the mistake was corrected in time and cannot be a basis for any charge."

Bergman, 57, had no comment.

Union Chief Chosen

Washington (AP) — David J. Fitzmaurice has been selected to head the 250,000-member International Union of Electrical Workers. Fitzmaurice, currently secretary-treasurer, will succeed Paul Jennings, who announced he was resigning for health reasons.

NOTICE OF FINDING OF NO SIGNIFICANT EFFECT ON THE ENVIRONMENT

This finding relates to the following projects: Low Interest Loan Subsidy and Pentzer Park Improvements, both located in the Clinton area, bounded by 27th Street on the west, Holdrege Street on the south, 33rd Street on the east and Leighton Street on the north; Land Acquisition for West Lincoln Park, located in West Lincoln, bounded by First Street on the east, Cornhusker Highway to the south, I-80 to the west, and Belmont Avenue on the north; and Abandoned Building Removal Program to be located throughout the City of Lincoln.

The City of Lincoln has found that these projects have no significant effect on the environment.

Facts and reasons for this decision are in the environmental assessment and finding of no significant effect.

The City of Lincoln has made an Environmental Review Record available for examination in the Urban Development Office, 129 North Tenth Street, Lincoln, Nebraska.

No further environmental review of these projects is proposed to be conducted and the City of Lincoln intends to request HUD to release funds for the projects.

Any comments may be submitted to the City of Lincoln, Urban Development Office until and including April 7, 1976.

NOTICE OF SPECIAL ELECTION SCHOOL DISTRICT NUMBER 107 OF LANCASTER COUNTY, NEBRASKA

Public notice is hereby given to the qualified and registered electors and voters of School District Number 107 of Lancaster County, Nebraska, that a special election has been called and will be held in said District on the 20th day of April 1976, at which time there shall be submitted to the qualified electors of said District the following proposition:

"Shall School District Number 107 of Lancaster County, Nebraska issue the negotiable bonds of said District in the principal amount of not to exceed Fifty Thousand ($50,000.00) Dollars for the purpose of paying for additions to the existing schoolhouse, and furnishing the necessary furniture and apparatus for the same for said District, said bonds to be dated at the time of their issuance, to become due and payable on such dates as may be fixed by the School Board at the time of their issuance, but in a period not exceeding twenty years from their date, and said bonds to bear interest from date of issuance at such rate or rates to be determined by the School Board, payable annually the first year and semiannually thereafter, provided, however, any or all of said bonds shall be redeemable at the option of the District at any time on or after five years from date of their issuance; and

"Shall the District cause to be levied and collected annually a special levy of taxes against all the taxable property in said District sufficient in rate and amount to pay the principal of and interest on said bonds as such principal and interest become due and payable?"

☐ YES (FOR SAID BONDS AND TAX)
☐ NO (AGAINST SAID BONDS AND TAX)

Electors voting in favor of the proposition shall mark an "X" in the square opposite the words "YES (FOR SAID BONDS AND TAX)" following said proposition, and electors voting against said proposition shall mark an "X" in the square opposite the words "NO (AGAINST SAID BONDS AND TAX)" following the proposition.

The polls will be open continuously from 8:00 A.M. to 8.00 P.M. on said date, and the polling place shall be the schoolhouse in School District Number 107 of Lancaster County, Nebraska, located about two miles west of the city limits of the City of Lincoln, Nebraska, on U.S. Highway, No. 6, on the south side of said Highway 6, on Lot 5, of Irregular Tracks of the Northeast Quarter (NE ¼) of Section 25, Township 10 North, Range 5, East of the 6th P.M., Lancaster County, Nebraska, consisting of 1.14 acres, more or less, on the 20th day of April, 1976, as designated by the Election Commissioner of Lancaster County, Nebraska.

Absent and disabled and confined voters' ballots may be obtained from the Election Commissioner's Office of Lancaster County, Nebraska, as provided by law.

BY ORDER OF THE SCHOOL BOARD OF SAID DISTRICT this 13th day of March, 1976.

Swedes Protest Alleged U.S. Spy Activities

STOCKHOLM, Sweden (AP) - The Swedish Foreign Office Wednesday summoned the U.S. charge d'affaires to deliver a verbal protest against alleged spy activities by an American diplomat who already has left the country.

The ministry officials expressed the government's "strong disapproval" that Bruce Hutchins, a former second secretary at the U.S. Embassy, had been operating in Sweden as an agent for the Central Intelligence Agency, it was announced.

The diplomatic move followed a claim in a leftist magazine that Hutchins about one year ago tried to hire a Kenyan citizen, Arthur Opot, to get information about certain African embassies in Stockholm and some Swedish newsmen who covered the war in Angola.

The charges led to an investigation by the Swedish security police.

The U.S. Embassy has refused to comment on the case.

Film Director Bergman Cleared Of Tax Fraud

Stockholm, Sweden (UPI) — Famed film director Ingmar Bergman Wednesday was cleared of tax fraud charges which had reportedly sent him to a mental hospital with a nervous breakdown.

Government prosecutor Anders Nordenadler announced at a news conference, "I am not able to find any basis for further investigation or charges" against Bergman, director of such movies as "The Virgin Spring" and "Wild Strawberries."

The original charges, filed by District Prosecutor Curt Dreifaldt, said the film director had defrauded the government of $114,000 on undeclared income from his Swiss film company Persona, and had not informed the Swedish National Bank that he was transferring the money from Switzerland to Sweden.

"Bergman has not received any cash from Persona which has not been properly declared," Nordenadler said. "At one point his lawyer failed to report dividend incomes but the mistake was corrected in time and cannot be a basis for any charge."

Bergman, 57, had no comment.

Union Chief Chosen

Washington (AP) — David J. Fitzmaurice has been selected to head the 250,000-member International Union of Electrical Workers. Fitzmaurice, currently secretary-treasurer, will succeed Paul Jennings, who announced he was resigning for health reasons.

NOTICE OF FINDING OF NO SIGNIFICANT EFFECT ON THE ENVIRONMENT

This finding relates to the following projects: Low Interest Loan Subsidy and Pentzer Park Improvements, both located in the Clinton area, bounded by 27th Street on the west, Holdrege Street on the south, 33rd Street on the east and Leighton Street on the north; Land Acquisition for West Lincoln Park, located in West Lincoln, bounded by First Street on the east, Cornhusker Highway to the south, I-80 to the west, and Belmont Avenue on the north; and Abandoned Building Removal Program to be located throughout the City of Lincoln.

The City of Lincoln has found that these projects have no significant effect on the environment.

Facts and reasons for this decision are in the environmental assessment and finding of no significant effect.

The City of Lincoln has made an Environmental Review Record available for examination in the Urban Development Office, 129 North Tenth Street, Lincoln, Nebraska.

No further environmental review of these projects is proposed to be conducted and the City of Lincoln intends to request HUD to release funds for the projects.

Any comments may be submitted to the City of Lincoln, Urban Development Office until and including April 7, 1976.

The applicant is the City of Lincoln, Nebraska; Mayor, Helen G. Boosalis, 555 South Tenth Street, Lincoln.

This notice published March 16, 1976.

NOTICE OF SPECIAL ELECTION SCHOOL DISTRICT NUMBER 107 OF LANCASTER COUNTY, NEBRASKA

Public notice is hereby given to the qualified and registered electors and voters of School District Number 107 of Lancaster County, Nebraska, that a special election has been called and will be held in said District on the 20th day of April 1976, at which time there shall be submitted to the qualified electors of said District the following proposition:

"Shall School District Number 107 of Lancaster County, Nebraska issue the negotiable bonds of said District in the principal amount of not to exceed Fifty Thousand ($50,000.00) Dollars for the purpose of paying for additions to the existing schoolhouse, and furnishing the necessary furniture and apparatus for the same for said District, said bonds to be dated at the time of their issuance, to become due and payable on such dates as may be fixed by the School Board at the time of their issuance, but in a period not exceeding twenty years from their date, and said bonds to bear interest from date of issuance at such rate or rates to be determined by the School Board, payable annually the first year and semiannually thereafter; provided, however, any or all of said bonds shall be redeemable at the option of the District at any time on or after five years from date of their issuance; and

"Shall the District cause to be levied and collected annually a special levy of taxes against all the taxable property in said District sufficient in rate and amount to pay the principal of and interest on said bonds as such principal and interest become due and payable?"

☐ YES (FOR SAID BONDS AND TAX)
☐ NO (AGAINST SAID BONDS AND TAX)

Electors voting in favor of the proposition shall mark an "X" in the square opposite the words "YES (FOR SAID BONDS AND TAX)" following said proposition, and electors voting against said proposition shall mark an "X" in the square opposite the words "NO (AGAINST SAID BONDS AND TAX)" following the proposition.

The polls will be open continuously from 8:00 A.M. to 8:00 P.M. on said date, and the polling place shall be the schoolhouse in School District Number 107 of Lancaster County, Nebraska, located about two miles west of the city limits of the City of Lincoln, Nebraska, on U.S. Highway, No. 6, on the south side of said Highway 6, on Lot 5, of Irregular Tracks of the Northeast Quarter (NE ¼) of Section 25, Township 10 North, Range 5, East of the 6th P.M., Lancaster County, Nebraska, consisting of 1.14 acres, more or less, on the 20th day of April, 1976, as designated by the Election Commissioner of Lancaster County, Nebraska.

Absent and disabled and confined voters' ballots may be obtained from the Election Commissioner's Office of Lancaster County, Nebraska, as provided by law.

BY ORDER OF THE SCHOOL BOARD OF SAID DISTRICT this 13th day of March, 1976.

1. ACT NOW:
This remodeled older home located in South East Lincoln might be just what you're looking for.
2. LIVE IN:
One half and rent out the other apartment to help make the payments and begin building a real investment program.
3. EASY TO BUY:
This is probably the best buy in a mobile home in Lincoln today. It's big, clean, and priced right.
4. ALVO-EAGLE:
We have a very desirable home for sale in each of these fine communities. A good way to get away from it all.
5. A GOOD RENTAL:
Best describes this older home located near the U.N. East Campus. Newer furnace and in excellent condition.

ASTROLOGICAL FORECAST

☆ By SIDNEY OMARR ☆

Thursday, March 25, 1976

For Capricorn, especially those born between four and six in the morning, a more secure emotional and financial pattern is indicated next month. In April, Capricorn native gets chance for new start, added independence, creative expression — and love.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): See clearly where money matters enter picture. You could be expecting too much for price. Be realistic. What appears to be a bargain could be a headache. Know it and do some personal investigating. Some of your desires could be temporarily out of reach. Don't be sold bill of goods.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Be practical. Keep goals in sight. Be aware of priorities. Organize — accept responsibility. Relationship intensifies. Don't play games with emotions. Stakes might be higher than you suspect. Cancer, Capricorn persons may be involved.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Finish what you start. Rid yourself of another's [illegible]. Spread influence. Insist on better distribution, display. Open lines of communication. Deal with Aries, Libra person. One who is a specialist will provide aid.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Involvement is featured. What might seem a harmless invitation leads to complications. Be aware of it and act accordingly. Highlight creativity, willingness to take a chance on yourself. Aquarius could be featured.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Legalities, financial arrangements could affect cash flow. Key is to consolidate, to get act together and to begin campaign aimed at protecting your best interests. Aquarian could be very much in picture.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Accept invitation. Change routine. Spread [illegible] wings. Refuse to be painted into corner. Deal with bright, exciting [illegible]. What appeared humdrum could [illegible] be open door to adventure. Give full play to intellectual curiosity. Ask questions.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Aspects point to frequent times for personal pleasure. [illegible] you do have to face yourself [illegible] are relieved of bother [illegible]. Give full play to creative [illegible]. You are asked for [illegible].

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Be ready for change of scenery, written material which requires personal attention. Gemini, Virgo could be involved. Someone wants information concerning [illegible] of personal nature. Member of opposite sex is likely to be involved.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Relatives may argue and try to draw you into dispute. Remain neutral while attempting to restore harmony. Domestic changes indicated, especially where home surroundings are concerned. [illegible] Libra and Aquarius persons figure prominently. You gain access to secret you never asked to know.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Be realistic about possessions, property. Get proper and valid appraisals. You gain enlightenment — what you do with your knowledge will be what counts. Pisces, Virgo persons are likely to be in picture. Refuse to be short-changed.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Lunar cycle high — despite obstacles your efforts could pay dividends. You find that past experience blends with current events to your advantage. Older individual pulls strings for your benefit. [illegible] legitimate opportunity for advancement.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Finish rather than initiate projects — study [illegible] message. Accent on communication, publishing, philosophy and journeys. [illegible] conference could be on agenda. You learn that a secret fear is based on nothing. You'll be relieved, happier.

IF MARCH 25 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you are introspective, a pioneer, a champion of unpopular causes. You are creative, sensitive, temperamental, an individual to your fingertips, subject to moods and a romantic at heart. Pisces, [illegible] persons play important roles in [illegible]. You may change residence this year. Significant months of 1976 are [illegible], September and November. [illegible] adjust to reality.

[illegible] your love and money mates [illegible] Omarr Astrology Secrets, The Lincoln Star, P.O. Box [illegible], Los Angeles, Calif. 90053. You'll find answers [illegible] book, Secret Hints [illegible] Men and Women.

Here is a pleasant little game that will give you a message every day. It's a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner of the rectangle and check every one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Finish what you start. Rid yourself of another's burden. Spread influence. Insist on better distribution, display. Open lines of communication. Deal with Aries, Libra persons. One who is a "specialist" will provide aid.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Involvement is featured. What might seem a harmless flirtation leads to "complications." Be aware of it and act accordingly. Highlight creativity, willingness to take a chance on yourself. Leo, Aquarius could be featured.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Legal ties, liens, escrow arrangements could affect cash flow. Key is to consolidate, to get data together and to begin campaign aimed at protecting your best interests. Aquarian could be very much in picture.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Accept social invitation. Change routine. Spread emotional wings. Refuse to be painted into corner. Deal with bright, exciting Gemini. What appeared humdrum could actually be open door to adventure. Give full play to intellectual curiosity. Ask questions.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Aspects point to expenditures for personal pleasure. Have fun but you do have to face yourself in morning. You are relieved of bothersome details. Give full play to creative abilities. You are asked for "endorsement."

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Be ready for change of scenery, written material which requires personal attention. Gemini, Virgo could be involved. Someone wants information concerning you — of personal nature. Member of opposite sex is likely to be involved.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Relatives may argue and try to draw you into dispute. Remain neutral while attempting to restore harmony. Domestic changes indicated, especially where home surroundings are concerned. Taurus, Libra and Aquarius persons figure prominently. You gain access to secret you never asked to know.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Be ralistic about possessions, property, proper and valid appraisals. You gain enlightenment — what you do with your knowledge will be what counts. Pisces, Virgo persons are likely to be in picture. Refuse to be short-changed.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Lunar cycle high — despite obstacles your efforts could pay dividends. You find that past experience blends with current events — to your advantage. Older individual pulls strings for your benefit. You can legitimate opportunity for advancement.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Finish rather than initiate projects — study Gemini message. Accent on communication, publishing, philosophy and journeys. Clandestine conference could be on agenda. You learn that a secret fear is based on — nothing. You'll be relieved, happier.

IF MARCH 25 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you are introspective, a pioneer, a champion of unpopular causes. You are creative, sensitive, temperatmental, an individual to your fingertips, subject to moods and a romantic at heart. Pisces, Virgo persons play important roles in your life. RIP KIRBY

by John Prentice & Fred Dickenson

THE NAME IS KIRBY. LET ME BUY A DRINK OF SODA...
WHAT IS HIS HURRY?

OH, THANKS, RIP. THAT WILL BE NICE. I'M THIRSTY.
LATER, AS THEY PEDAL AWAY.
A LITTERBUG, TOO! BUT GOOD, NOW HE'S MADE ME MAD ENOUGH TO CHECK HIM OUT, AND THAT CAN WILL HELP.
